Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Another depression relief measure of far reaching importance was advanced today. The house by a vote of 201 to 43 passed the bankruptcy bill to aid debtors in procuring reduction of their financial obligations or extension of time in which to pay. The bill now goes to the senate, with conditions favorable to its enactment at this session.

The action of the house was significant of the attitude of this congress toward inflation. The increasingly insistent demands of the debtor class for relief have compelled congress to choose between the scaling down of debts or the inflation of the currency in order to cheapen the money in which debts are paid.

Favors Debt Reductions.

The present congress, which is cool to inflationary schemes, chose the debt reduction course. The inflationists, however, look forward to getting their innings in the next congress under the Roosevelt régime.

Just before passing the bankruptcy bill, the house approved the extension for one year of those provisions of the Glass-Steagall act which broaden the rediscount base of the federal reserve banking system, permitting the use of government securities as collateral for the issuance of federal reserve notes. This act provided for a mild form of inflation.

Railways to Reorganize.

The provisions of the bankruptcy bill apply to individuals, to railroads, and to other corporations. The legislation presages a multitude of railroad reorganizations. In fact, it was because of the plight of the railroads, many of which virtually are bankrupt, that the Hoover administration was spurred into action for such legislation. Railroads at present are excluded from the operation of the bankruptcy law. If thrown into equity receiverships their assets will be frittered away in protracted and wasteful proceedings. Under the new bankruptcy bill insolvent roads will be permitted to reorganize instead of going into the hands of receivers.

An individual under the terms of the bill may file a petition in a bankruptcy court asking an extension of time in which to liquidate his indebtedness or ask a reduction of his indebtedness. If a majority of the creditors, including a majority of the amount of claims, agree on a liquidation plan application for its confirmation is filed with the court.

Court May Take Action.

Otherwise, the debtor may submit the plan and the court may confirm it if it is adjudged in the best interest of creditors and debtor. If it is confirmed it is binding upon all creditors, but is not to impair any lien.

If the debtor fails to live up to the terms of the agreement the court may appoint a trustee nominated by the creditors to liquidate the estate. From this provision farmers are exempt unless they consent to liquidation. The court is authorized to enjoin the sale of securities by creditors pending action on an extension proposal. Fees are drastically reduced.

A similar procedure is laid down in the case of corporations. A railroad is permitted to file a petition stating it is insolvent or unable to meet its obligations and desires to reorganize. The reorganization plan is then worked out under the supervision of the interstate commerce commission and submitted to the court.

Debate Sharply Curbed.

It took the house, operating under rigid restrictions as to debate and amendment, less than two hours to pass the bankruptcy bill which leaders on both sides described as the most important piece of legislation likely to be brought up this session. Frequently during the debate members protested that they had no idea as to the general provisions of the bill or its probable effect.

BERLIN THRONGS CHEER HITLER AS CHANCELLOR

Nazis and War Vets Pay Their Homage.

BULLETIN.

BERLIN, Jan. 31 (Tuesday).—(AP)—Disorders broke out in many cities in Germany even before the second day of Adolf Hitler's government dawned. Two persons were killed in clashes in Berlin, one a Nazi and the other a policeman who was a member of a detail escorting 100 Nazis home. The policeman was shot from a darkened house. In another fight between Nazis and communists two communists were injured, one severely. Other serious clashes were reported in Koenigsberg, Mannheim, and Oranieburg. Communists are agitating for a general strike here.

BERLIN, Jan. 30.—National Socialist banners with the Fascist swastika sign waved over hundreds of buildings today after President Paul von Hindenburg appointed Adolf Hitler, Nazi chief, chancellor of Germany to succeed Gen. Kurt von Schleicher, who resigned Saturday.

Tonight 70,000 khaki clad Nazi storm troops and members of the Steel Helmet War Veterans' association in field gray uniforms marched in triumphal torchlight processions through the middle Brandenburg gate, at one time reserved for former Kaiser Wilhelm, to the chancellor's palace to pay homage to Hitler, aged 43, and Von Hindenburg, aged 85.

Cheer Von Hindenburg.

Von Hindenburg stood at a window of the chancellery, which he is using temporarily as his executive mansion, while the uniformed youths paraded by. Those without torchlights greeted him with the Fascist salute.

The first groups in the procession sang a military song, "King Frederick the Great, you are our king and hero," with the president waving his hand in rhythm. Then the Frederick hymn swelled as the storm troops discovered Hitler standing a few windows further on in the new wing of the chancellery. An enormous searchlight was trained on him.

The chancellor waved to the troops. For hours men and women stood in the bitter cold, packing the sidewalks, lined with policemen, to cheer the Nazi "army" and catch a glimpse of Hitler.

At Coburg and other cities with Hitlerite majorities similar festivities were staged.

Reds Are Quiet.

Most of the communist and labor districts were quiet tonight. Labor unions issued an appeal to the masses to keep cool, declaring that the "extreme seriousness of the situation calls for absolute quiet and perfect discipline on the part of all."

A few fights occurred tonight when Nazis and Steel Helmeters marched into the labor sectors singing their military songs.

Presiding over the first session of his cabinet of "national concentration," Hitler tonight declared himself opposed to all policies of suppression, economic adventure, or financial experimentation.

"Under no circumstances must we disappoint the manifestation of faith and trust which today found spontaneous expression among the rank and file of the German people," he warned his cabinet.

Gives Out Statement.

Later, in a press conference, the chancellor, through Dr. William Frick, new Nazi minister of the interior, gave out the following statement:

"We shall try no political experiments nor economic experiments of any kind. We want to live in peace and friendship with our neighbors. We want peace and quiet internally to enable business to recuperate and give us time to reorganize the nation."

Frick branded as lies the rumors that Hitler intends to ignore the constitution.

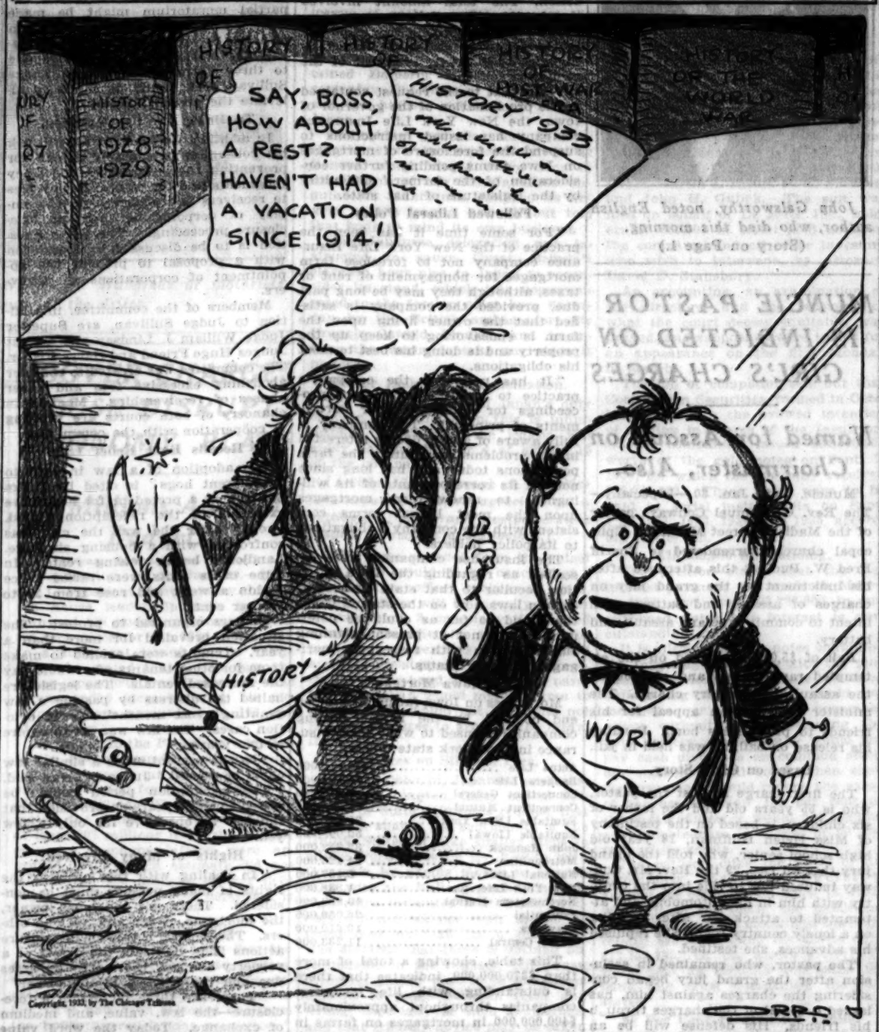

"The Hitler government intends to adhere to the constitution, without establishing conditions of a state of emergency," he stated. "This is a cabinet of national concentration, and the national men who belong to it today agreed on the general lines of its program. We shall negotiate with the Catholic Centrists tomorrow."

Need Centrist Support.

Without the support of the Centrists the Hitler government cannot

Paints Factor as Living in Lap of Luxury

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 30.—The amazing life of luxury lived by John [Jake the Barber] Factor of Chicago, who is fighting extradition from the United States to answer charges of defrauding English investors out of $7,500,000, was revealed in Old Bailey Criminal court today by Harry Geen, former personal secretary to Factor.

Geen, who is accused of receiving $70,000 from the Broad Street Press with the knowledge it had been unlawfully obtained, took the witness stand in his own defense. He testified that he had accompanied Factor to Le Touquet, France, numerous times where Factor gambled heavily at the Casino.

"They said he was the biggest gambler at the Casino," Geen, who worked for Factor in 1925 for $50 a week, said.

Bet on Turn of a Card.

He stated that he had seen Factor win 16 million francs [about $640,000] in less than two hours. Once Factor put 20,000 francs [$800] on the turn of a card and won, the defendant said, adding that he did that five times in one night and won each time.

Geen admitted that Factor also lost considerable sums. One night he saw Factor lose $250,000. Factor, Geen declared, told him he had practically no education of any kind.

"He could only read the simplest printed words with difficulty," he testified. "He was unable to read written words and could hardly write."

Aid London's Poor.

As secretary to Factor, Geen said, his duties included reading Factor's mail and paying his bills. On one occasion Factor produced twelve banknotes of $5,000 each and was upset when he offered one to pay his hotel bill and the management could not change it, Factor's former aid testified.

"Factor was very liberal," he said. "He gave away large sums to charity and also gave food, coal, clothing and blankets to the poor."

Baby, 16 Days Old, Dies of Pneumonia After Operation

Eugene Robert Viola, 16 days old, who underwent a major operation and two blood transfusions in St. Joseph's hospital in Aurora before he was one week old, died yesterday of pneumonia. The baby apparently was recovering from the effects of the operation, which was to remove an obstruction in the intestines, before pneumonia set in. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Viola of Aurora. Viola gave the few ounces of blood necessary for the transfusions.

DIES 15 MONTHS AFTER BREAKING OF SPINAL CORD

Ollie Warden, 28 years old, 721 Ayers court, who amazed surgeons by living almost fifteen months after his spinal cord had been severed in an automobile accident, died last night in St. Anthony's hospital. He had been almost completely paralyzed ever since the accident.

Dr. Joseph Zabokrtsky, 436 Elmwood avenue, Oak Park, explained that breaking of the spinal cord usually results in immediate death. Unlike other tissues, he said, the spinal cord will not knit and it was never expected that Warden would recover.

Warden was injured Nov. 2, 1931, when the automobile in which he was riding went through guard rails on the drainage canal bridge on South Western avenue and fell 5 feet to the canal bank. Three others in the car escaped injury.

GEORGIA BOY, 7, TO RIDE HIS PONY TO INAUGURATION

Chula, Ga., Jan. 30.—(AP)—Toby Cook, 7 year old boy who rode his shaggy pony 250 miles to shake hands with Franklin D. Roosevelt last fall in Atlanta, is getting ready for an 800 mile ride to witness the inauguration in Washington.

His plans are to use four ponies, riding one while the others follow along in an accompanying truck. Resting them in that manner, he expects to cover about 75 miles a day.

Close Durand Hospital; Due to Income Drop

Reduction of income has forced directors of the McCormick Institute for Infectious Diseases, 637 South Wood street, to close the Durand hospital, which the institute operates at that address, and to curtail research work of the institute itself, Dr. Ludvig Hektoen, executive head of the organization, revealed last night.

The McCormick institute, founded in 1902 with funds provided chiefly by Harold F. and Edith Rockefeller McCormick, has been an outstanding contributor during the last 31 years to the general fund of medical knowledge, particularly in respect to studies and researches into the diseases of scarlet fever, measles, and infectious diseases of the blood.

Hospital Built in 1913.

A bequest of the late Annie W. Durand provided for the building of the hospital, which was taken over and has been operated by the institute through an agreement with the Northern Trust company, trustee of the Durand estate. The hospital was built in 1913.

Although Mrs. McCormick never withdrew her support, the shrinkage of her once vast estate made it impossible for her to continue the same donations in recent years which she had previously made. Since her death the institute has received nothing from her estate.

Harold F. McCormick has continued his support of the institute and has informed the directors that he will continue to do so.

Lose Half of Revenue.

Inasmuch as the funds provided by Mrs. McCormick were about half of the amount required to conduct the institute and the hospital and also because the income from the Durand bequest has diminished during the depression, the directors found no alternative to closing the hospital for the present, according to Dr. Hektoen.

The board of directors of the institute is composed of Dr. James B. Herrick, president; Dr. Hektoen, secretary; Norman J. Ford, Judson F. Stone, and E. O. Jordan.

A 2-Handed Drinker Seized by Federal Dry Agents

Marlboro, Ind., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—United States Commissioner Frank Parran asked his janitor to build a fire in the stove in the office in which prohibition is enforced. Lawrence Wood, the janitor, pulled a bottle of bourbon from his hip and took a snorter to fortify himself. Dry agents grabbed, but Wood smashed the bottle on the floor and laughed. They frisked his other hip and snared a bottle of rye.

Galsworthy, Noted British Novelist, Dies

LONDON, Jan. 31 [Tuesday].—(AP)—John Galsworthy, British novelist and dramatist, and 1932 Nobel prize winner, died today. He was 65 years old.

The cause of death was anemia, which followed a cold. He had been seriously ill for for nearly two weeks.

WON NOBEL PRIZE.

John Galsworthy, famed in later years for his series of novels comprising "The Forsyte Saga," became on last Dec. 10 the third Briton to receive the Nobel prize for literature, which was first awarded in 1901. Rudyard Kipling and George Bernard Shaw were the other two.

Galsworthy's literary efforts drove straight to one of two dominant objectives. Either they championed the grievances of oppressed laborers or mistreated prisoners or they treated, oftentimes satirically, the life of the English upper classes.

His plays best revealed his devotion to the cause of the oppressed. Such dramas as "The Silver Box," 1906: "Strife," 1909; and "Justice," 1910, all dealt with social injustice. Indeed, "Justice" is credited with having caused drastic reforms in the British penal system.

"Painfully Observant."

It was said of his writing on social problems that he was not "painfully censorious," but "painfully observant."

His novels served best as vehicles for his thoughts on the virtues and vagaries of English patricians. For that purpose came from his pen such volumes as "The Man of Property," 1906: "The Patrician," 1911: and "The Forsyte Saga," a series, finished in 1928.

Galsworthy, who was 66 years old, developed his literary powers comparatively late in life. When at the age of 26 he met Joseph Conrad on a voyage to the South seas he had not yet begun to write. He had been educated at Harrow and Oxford with the intention of becoming a lawyer.

First Novel in 1898.

It may be that his acquaintance with Conrad, who was the ship's first officer, had much to do with his decision to give up the law for writing, for the two men talked much of literary subjects during the long South sea voyage.

Galsworthy, himself, said that he did not begin to write novels until he had "forgotten all I had learned at school and college."

His first novel, "Jocelyn," was published in 1898 when he was 31, but it was not until six years later that he attracted general attention. That was when "The Island of Pharisees," the first of many works dealing with social problems, appeared.

Lectured in Chicago.

Among his later works are the plays, "Old English," in which George Arliss starred; "Escape" and "Exiled." His last two novels were "Maid in Waiting," 1931, and "Flowering Wilderness," November, 1932.

Galsworthy made several trips to America and saw that nearly all his later productions were published simultaneously in England and the United States. He lectured in Chicago in 1931 during one of his tours.

PAPA'LL SPANK THIS BANDIT WHEN HE GETS HOME

A youthful robber stepped up to George Smigiel, 4301 Haddon avenue, as he was trying to start his automobile last night in front of St. Francis Catholic church at 4418 West Walton street.

"You'll have to put up your hands," said the robber. "This is a stickup."

Mr. Smigiel put out his left hand and wrested the pistol from the bandit. The latter was so disappointed over his failure that he wept.

"Please, sir," he begged, "give me back my pistol."

"Why should I do that?" inquired the prospective victim.

"Because it is papa's," wailed the youth, "and if I don't take it back to him he will beat me."

So hardhearted was Mr. Smigiel that he rapped the robber on his nose with a right swing. The nose bled and the bandit fled. Mr. Smigiel took the pistol and the youth's cap to the police.

BRITISH WAIT FOR ROOSEVELT TO TAKE OFFICE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—Sir Ronald Lindsay, British ambassador to the United States, will depart for London tomorrow with a fair grasp of the tentative program which President Elect Franklin D. Roosevelt will advance at the forthcoming British-American war debt and economics discussions.

While refusing today to give an inkling of the President elect's views on the settling of the war debts problem, the ambassador revealed that arrangements for the parleys have now reached the point where March 5 tentatively has been set as the date for the first meeting. The British delegations will reach Washington the 3d or 4th of March, he said, and be ready to go to work on the day following Mr. Roosevelt's inauguration.

Offered to Coöperate.

The closeness with which the subject matter of the Roosevelt-Lindsay conference was guarded served to emphasize the extent to which President Hoover has lost control of certain phases of his foreign relations policy since he first offered to coöperate with his successor several weeks ago.

Today, the President knows that the President elect and Sir Ronald, a representative of the British government, are arranging for a conference, but according to administration officials he has far less of a grasp of the Roosevelt program of action than has the British ambassador.

Secretary Stimson after a conference with Sir Ronald arranged yesterday's conference between the President elect and the ambassador. The two admittedly discussed a wide range of subjects, gave each other an idea of what the other wanted out of the negotiations and then apparently agreed not to talk.

Calls to Bid Stimson Good-by.

On his return today, Sir Ronald motored to Woodley, Secretary Stimson's home. Later, the state department said the ambassador had called merely to say good-by. The views imparted to Sir Ronald yesterday, it was indicated, were for the ear of the British cabinet.

On the surface it appeared as if the state department had not been let in on the subject matter of the Roosevelt-Lindsay conference. Officials professed lack of knowledge of Mr. Roosevelt's plans.

It seemed probable that the British cabinet shortly will have a better grasp of what is in Mr. Roosevelt's mind so far as the conferences are concerned than will President Hoover or Mr. Stimson. This fruit of the Hoover efforts to persuade the President elect to coöperate in foreign relations matters has served to irritate some state department officials.

Tells Something of Conference.

In response to numerous inquiries, the tall, carefully groomed British ambassador advised newspaper men that he had discussed an extremely wide range of subjects with Mr. Roosevelt. He revealed that the President elect had outlined some of the objects sought by this government and had gone into details regarding the economic subjects to be discussed.

The ambassador said he had a good idea of what subjects would be included in the agenda for the economic and debt conferences. He added that Mr. Roosevelt had outlined a number of points which he suggested the British delegation should be ready to discuss when it arrived in Washington.

"We discussed a lot of things which I will report to my government," the ambassador said. "Our purpose was to clear away obstacles to quick settlement of the problems which will be faced when the two countries begin their discussion. I am hopeful we will be able to come to grips quickly. Of course I cannot go into details at this time."

Keeps Pledge of Silence.

Mr. Hoover and those who have worked with him closely on the war debt problems, have kept the pledge of silence made at the White House conference with Mr. Roosevelt. They will not discuss the fundamental difference in method between the administration and Mr. Roosevelt.

It is learned, however, that Norman H. Davis was responsible for adding the clause in the joint communique from the White House, which extended the invitation to British "representatives" to come for a concurrent discussion of economic problems of mutual interest to the two nations at the same time the debt "representative" was asked to appear in Washington.

Other facts about the Roosevelt-Hoover debt discussion have become known. Among these facts are:

The President feels that his successor has been going about the debt discussion business in the wrong way and that he has gotten himself into a "hole." From the first it has been Mr. Hoover's position that economic topics of common Anglo-American interest should be discussed first between British and American representatives. Tentative agreement having been reached, it was the President's plan that the two nations should then move promptly into the world economic conference and back a program as nearly jointly as they could.

Would Suspend Pay Day.

After that had been done, and the conference was ended, Mr. Hoover then wanted representatives of the two nations to take up the British war debt, and, in the light of the achievements at the conference, come to some accommodation. This course undoubtedly would have involved a suspension of pay day on June 15 for debtor nations participating in the world economic conference which had met their installments regularly.

The President hoped that, under his method, autumn would see agreements all along the line, with the United States compensated by trade and currency concessions for whatever reductions might be made on the basis of "capacity to pay" and the whole program ready for submission to congress.

Mr. Roosevelt's plan is different. When he proposed that he visit the White House on his way south, he had a simple idea. It was a joint notice from himself and the President to Britain, through the state department, that a debt "representative" be sent from London early in March.

Changed on Davis' Suggestion.

During the discussion at the White House, on representations from Mr. Davis that this would not maintain the United States in a trading position in exchange for debt reduction and would be playing into the hands of the British treasury, Mr. Roosevelt agreed to the extra clause.

That afternoon at the state department, the basic difference between the "two Presidents" bobbed up to complicate the writing of the note for the British government, and it took Prof. Raymond Moley, representing Mr. Roosevelt, hours to assure himself that the President elect's and not the President's plan went overseas.

POLICE RESCUE CORPORAL FROM SENSE OF DUTY

At 1 p. m. yesterday an olive drab army sedan drew up at the Union station and Brig. Gen. Frank C. Bolles, Fort Sheridan commandant, alighted with his wife, whom he was taking to a train.

"Wait for me," the general said to his chauffeur, Corp. Harry Reed, smartly neat and starchy stiff in the front seat. The corporal saluted.

The general emerged from the station about an hour later. At 4:20 o'clock Lieut. W. K. Liebel of Fort Sheridan telephoned the Des Plaines street police.

"Gen. Bolles and his chauffeur became separated about 2 o'clock," the lieutenant said. "Will you please find the chauffeur and tell him to return to the fort immediately, that the general is back. He ought to be near the Union station."

Gen. Bolles, the police learned, had searched for Reed, had not found him and had returned alone to the fort.

At 6:20 p. m. Lieut. Liebel again telephoned the police.

"The general's chauffeur is still missing," he said. "Will you please extend the search?"

This call spurred the police to greater efforts. Several squads circled the Union station. Squad 155 spotted an olive drab car in the short stretch of pavement between the station and the river. At the wheel, still smartly neat and starchy stiff, sat Corp. Reed. He had been there since 1 o'clock, more than six hours, waiting for the general.

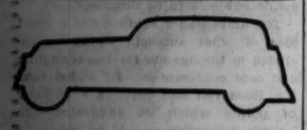

"Just a good soldier," reported Squad 155 to the station after instructing Corp. Reed to return to Fort Sheridan.

Virgin Islanders Oppose Chicago Fair Expenditure

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ST. THOMAS, Virgin Islands, Jan. 30.—Virgin islanders today protested against the government's action in making "secret arrangements" for participation in A Century of Progress exposition in Chicago. An official statement last week said the department of interior has allotted $400 to cover the Virgin islands' space. The St. Thomas Improvement association revealed that the allotment amounted to $1,000. The government explained that the balance was reserved to defray incidental expenses.

ROBERT DUNHAM MAY BE NAMED ENVOY TO BERLIN

Three Others Mentioned as Ambassadors.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Warm Springs, Ga., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Robert Dunham, Chicago capitalist and industrialist, may be offered the post of ambassador to Germany by President Elect Roosevelt, it was reported here today when interest in the new administration's appointments turned from places in the cabinet to diplomatic plums.

ROBERT DUNHAM.

Other ambassadorial appointments, it is said, are slated to be offered to Judge Robert W. Bingham of Louisville, Ky., who may go to Paris as the French ambassador; Newton D. Baker of Cleveland, O., former secretary of war, to London, and Clark Howell, publisher of the Atlanta Constitution, to Tokio or Rome.

To Honor Flynn.

One other appointment upon which Mr. Roosevelt is reported to have reached a decision is that of Edward J. Flynn of New York, his lieutenant in the Bronx, who is slated for collector of the port of New York.

Mr. Roosevelt made it plain at today's press conference that in using the word "satisfactory" to describe his conversation with Sir Ronald Lindsay, British ambassador, over the war debts, he referred only to the fact that they had made satisfactory arrangements for the holding of the conference. He in no way intended, he explained, to convey the impression that they had reached any accord on what was to be done. The President elect also said he expected two delegations would come from Great Britain, one to discuss the debts, and the other general economic questions.

Cuts Birthday Cake.

The President elect today celebrated his fifty first birthday by holding a general celebration in the Merriwether inn, central gathering place in this colony established by Mr. Roosevelt for the convalescent treatment of victims of infantile paralysis. The President elect presided over the cutting of a huge birthday cake, which was shared in by the patients and their friends.

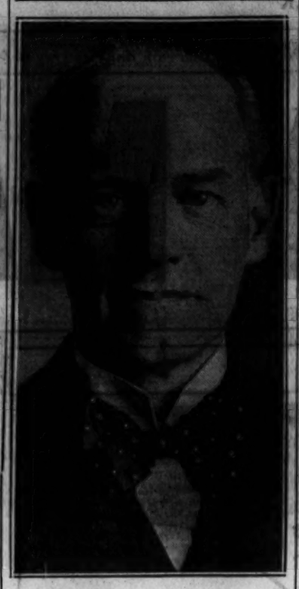

Tonight Mr. Roosevelt was host at a private dinner party in his cottage, the "Little White House," on the slope of Pine mountain. Attending the dinner were Mrs. Roosevelt, Elliott Roosevelt, a son; Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall, a daughter; James A. Farley, Frank C. Walker, Democratic party treasurer, and Louis McHenry Howe, the governor's personal assistant.

Dutch Troops Quell Mutiny on 3 Cruisers

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, Jan. 30.—A mutiny has broken out on three cruisers attached to the Dutch East Indian fleet, according to reports received here today from Surabaya. The crews of the three cruisers, the Java, Evertsen, and Piet Hein, refused to obey orders of the commander of the fleet, it was related. It was necessary to send Dutch Indian troops aboard to assist officers in quelling the disturbance. Forty agitators were arrested before the fleet sailed on its cruise. A reduction in pay is believed to have been the cause of the outbreak.

MUNCIE PASTOR IS INDICTED ON GIRL'S CHARGES

Named for Assault on Choirmaster, Also.

Muncie, Ind., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—The Rev. G. Lemuel Conway, pastor of the Madison Street Methodist Episcopal church, surrendered to Sheriff Fred W. Puckett this afternoon after his indictment by the grand jury on charges of assault and battery with intent to commit rape and assault and battery.

Bail of $5,000 was fixed on the attempted rape charge and of $500 on the assault and battery charge. The minister sent out an appeal for his friends to provide his bond. Pending his release on bail, he was held in jail.

Based on Girl's Story.

The first charge against the pastor, who is 55 years old and the father of six children, is based on the testimony of Miss Helen Huffman, 18 year old high school senior, who told the grand jury that on Dec. 29 the Rev. Mr. Conway induced her to ride into the country with him in his automobile and attempted to attack her after parking on a lonely country road. She repulsed his advances, she testified.

The pastor, who remained in seclusion after the grand jury began considering the charges against him, has issued a denial of the charges through his friends. His defense will be an alibi, it was indicated.

The pastor is soon to face a church trial on a charge of imprudent and unministerial conduct before Bishop Edgar Blake of Detroit and twelve members of the Methodist Episcopal conference. A preliminary hearing has already been held by Dr. Frank J. Dougherty, district superintendent of the church.

Remains as Pastor.

Pending action by the church authorities, the minister will remain as pastor of the Madison Street church, which is the second largest in Muncie.

The second count of the indictment against the Rev. Mr. Conway is based upon testimony that he struck Willard F. Aurand, the church choirmaster, at Sunday evening services Jan. 22, knocking Aurand over the chancel rail. Aurand was reported to be one of the men who had been active in gathering evidence for presentation against the minister.

N. Y. LIFE HALTS FORECLOSURES ON IOWA FARMS

Plans to Await Action by Legislature.

New York, Jan. 29.—[Special.]—The New York Life Insurance company announced today that it had suspended foreclosure of mortgages on farm properties in Iowa. Other companies are expected to take similar action. The total amount involved may be 400 million dollars.

The company's action was explained in the following statement issued by Thomas A. Buckner, president of the company:

"Pursuant to the request contained in the proclamation of the governor of Iowa, the New York Life Insurance company has issued instructions to suspend the foreclosure of mortgages on Iowa farms pending further consideration of the farmers' difficulties by the legislature of that state.

Followed Liberal Policy.

"For some time it has been the practice of the New York Life Insurance company not to foreclose farm mortgages for nonpayment of rent or taxes, although they may be long past due, provided the company is satisfied that the owner living upon the farm is endeavoring to keep up the property and is doing his best to meet his obligations.

"It has not been the company's practice to institute foreclosure proceedings for nonpayment or curtailments of principal. The company is fully aware of and is deeply interested in the problems confronting the farm populations today and has long since notified its correspondents of its willingness to renew farm mortgages upon the most liberal terms consistent with the company's obligations to its policy holders."

The insurance companies were described as regarding the Iowa situation peculiar to that state because of certain laws now on the statute books there and so far as could be determined were not at present planning similar action with respect to mortgages in other states.

Hold Iowa Mortgages.

Aetna Life	$14,056,000
Bankers Life	35,131,000
Connecticut General	8,148,000
Connecticut Mutual	12,749,000
Equitable [New York]	90,040,000
Equitable [Iowa]	50,098,000
John Hancock	33,252,000
Metropolitan	64,423,000
National Life	6,467,000
New York Life	1,838,000
Northwestern Mutual	40,809,000
Prudential	26,050,000
Travelers	10,610,000
Union Central	11,233,000

This table, showing a total of more than $370,000,000, indicates that there is outstanding with life insurance companies throughout approximately $400,000,000 in mortgages on farms in the one state of Iowa.

Name Board in Nebraska.

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Gov. Charles W. Bryan announced the creation of a board of conciliation to attempt to bring farm debtors and creditors together to solve farm mortgage problems. The board is to be authorized to bring about "fair and equitable settlements between debtors and creditors in an effort to keep farmers on their land."

SHOOTING VICTIM IS DEAD.

Judge to Urge Moratorium on Mortgage Foreclosures

Declaration of a moratorium on mortgage foreclosure proceedings will be considered today by a committee of the chancellors of the Circuit and Superior courts. A plan to hold foreclosure actions in abeyance pending the enactment of relief legislation is to be presented by Superior Judge Denis E. Sullivan.

Judge Sullivan holds the actions can be delayed under the discretionary powers granted in equity proceedings. The delay can be only temporary, he said, because the power should not be arbitrarily exercised and because complainants may circumvent it by bringing actions in courts of law.

A delay of 30 days would give time for legislative action, he said. The partial moratorium might be made more nearly complete by the adoption of a law to extend the redemption period on foreclosed property from one to three years. Such a law, Judge Sullivan held, would do much to alleviate the present distress.

To Bring Up Fee Question.

In addition, Judge Sullivan will ask his colleagues to consider a plan for preventing the issuance of deficiency judgments and for refusal to pay fees to receivers and attorneys in the employ of corporations bringing foreclosure proceedings. The latter question is to be discussed in connection with a proposal to prevent the appointment of corporations as receivers.

Members of the committee, in addition to Judge Sullivan, are Superior Judge William J. Lindsay and Circuit Judges Hugo Friend and Harry Fisher. The committee was created to consider abolishing excessive fees and other abuses of receiverships. Masters in chancery of both courts are working in coöperation with the committee.

Recalls Rent Relief Law.

The adoption of a law in 1921 to curb "rent hogs" is cited by Judge Sullivan as a precedent for legislative extension of the redemption period. Shortly after the war the city was confronted with a housing shortage. Landlords began raising rents. In some cases rents were raised twice within a week and rose from 25 to 100 per cent.

Renters organized to protest. The situation prevailed for more than a year. Tenants were evicted to make room for other tenants who would pay the increased rentals. The legislature halted the distress by passing a law granting a six months' stay in eviction cases. The law was set to expire in two years.

"In the present crisis a similar law could be passed," Judge Sullivan said. "The redemption period could be raised to three years on provision that the law be operative for only a few years.

Rights of Many Involved.

"In dealing with this problem the rights of many persons must be considered. There are the home owner, the mortgage owner and various others. The general theory of foreclosure actions is to liquidate the assets of a property and pay the money on notes due and the balance to the owner.

"There are three factors in a foreclosure—the law, value, and medium of exchange. Today the word value has been taken from the dictionary and there is no money. Therefore the purpose of a foreclosure is defeated. As it is now the home owner is under attack and the strength of our country depends on the small home owner."

Courts of equity may delay foreclosures because they are given wide latitude, the judge explained.

"However," he added, "foreclosure is not the sole relief of complainants. The complainant may bring action in a court of law either by suing to evict the possessor of a property or by securing a judgment against him for the amount of the debt. For this reason the legislature should act. Judges should not make law even in the interpretation of their powers in equity."

Judge Sullivan said judges should refuse to grant deficiency judgments in order to protect the "honest debtor class." Deficiency judgments are obtained when the sale of a property on foreclosure fails to bring the amount of the mortgage.

"For example," the judge said, "a man holds a mortgage for $5,000 on a $12,000 home. He forecloses; there is a sale; the property brings $4,000. The mortgage holder secures a deficiency judgment for the $1,000 balance. He can attach whatever property the home owner has."

In advocating that no fees be paid to receivers and their attorneys in the employ of complainant corporations, the judge said it had been shown that the fees paid do not go to the individuals giving the service but to the corporations, as the employes receive only their salaries for performing receivership duties. Such fees, he held, should be turned into the income of the property for distribution to the bondholders.

"Responsible to Employer."

"The theory of receivership is that the receiver shall be responsible only to the court," Judge Sullivan said. "In the case of receivers who are employes of complainant corporations, they are responsible to their employer. This responsibility is deemed more important by them than that due the court.

"They cannot be said to be disinterested. Corporations as receivers present another problem. If an individual receiver violates his trust he may be sent to jail. One can hardly send a corporation to jail."

IOWA BUSINESS MEN INDICTED FOR FATAL FARM STRIKE RIOT

Cherokee, Ia., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Naming five prominent business and professional men, twelve indictments were returned by the grand jury today investigating the shooting of fourteen pickets in the farm strike near here last Aug. 20. The indictments charged conspiracy, assault with intent to commit murder and, in one case, perjury.

The principals named are Farrison Steele, bank president and head of the Cherokee county vigilant committee; Ralph White, an employé in the Steele bank; Sheriff A. N. Tilton, Dr. Forrest Harnes, Claude Bensley, and six designated as "John Doe."

Twelve of the fourteen men shot at farm meeting were treated for gunshot wounds. The attack was made on an open air meeting of farm holiday members by a truck and two carloads of men, armed with shotguns, pistols and tear gas bombs.

Evanston Council Votes Sunday Movies, 9 to 7

The Evanston city council last night passed an ordinance permitting Sunday motion picture shows in the suburb by a vote 9 to 7. Barring a veto by Mayor Bartlett, or court action, the law will become effective in ten days, and the Evanston show houses can open on Feb. 12. The mayor has not committed himself as yet. A referendum was taken on Sunday movies in Evanston in 1930 and resulted in a majority of 56 for opening.

BRITTEN OFFERS BILL REPEALING JONES 5 AND 10 LAW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Repeal of the drastic Jones five and ten law which added new teeth to the national prohibition act was called for today by Representative Fred A. Britten of Chicago, in a bill introduced in the house. The measure was immediately referred to the judiciary committee, where hearings will be asked.

In a statement accompanying the measure, Mr. Britten asserted that the Jones law should be wiped from the statute books without further delay. He declared that public sentiment is practically unanimously opposed to the excessive fines and imprisonment provided "in the now thoroughly discredited Jones law." Under the terms of the measure, prohibition offenders could be sent to jail for five years and fined $10,000 for a prohibition offense.

The Britten bill was begun today in the hope that action would be taken during the special session to remove this measure from the statute books.

Now Thoroughly Discredited.

"Many states of the Union have repealed their prohibition laws during the past two years and public sentiment is practically unanimously opposed to the excessive fines and imprisonment provided in the now thoroughly discredited Jones law," said Mr. Britten.

"National prohibition is dead and the Anti-Saloon league, under whose lash this infamous Jones bill was enacted into law, is equally dead and without a following excepting selfish professional prohibitionists."

The Britten bill was introduced shortly after the senate finance committee had given new impetus to the Collier-Blaine beer and wine bill by recommending it to the senate for immediate approval.

Wet leaders agreed, however, to give the eighteenth amendment repeal resolution precedence over the beer bill. As both repeal and the appropriation bills probably will be acted on before the beer bill comes to a vote, its prospects for enactment at this session are not considered unusually bright.

Beer Bill Delayed.

The decision of the finance committee to report the beer and wine bill and cancel plans for protracted hearings came as a surprise. Chairman Reed Smoot [Rep., Utah] led a fight for hearings but was defeated by a vote of 12 to 5. The committee made no changes in the measure and as it went to the senate floor it called for beer and wine with an alcoholic content of 3.05. The tax of $5 a barrel remained the same. The committee also retained the sections forbidding shipments into dry states, banning sales to minors, and forbidding advertising in dry states.

Shortly after the committee acted, Senator David I. Walsh [Dem., Mass.] served notice that he will lead a fight to knock out all the provisions for federal control over the sale and manufacture of beer. Senator Hiram Bingham [Rep., Conn.], Republican wet leader, said he would work to replace the senate with the house bill as originally passed. That measure legalized beer with an alcoholic content of 4 per cent by volume.

During a short executive hearing Secretary of the Treasury Mills estimated the bill would raise between 125 and 150 millions of revenue.

CANADA MOVES TO REPEAL BAR ON RUM FOR U. S.

Two Bills Are Presented in Parliament.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 30.—Two separate moves were made in the Canadian parliament today, the first day of its reassembly for the winter session, to kill the law passed by the old Liberal government prohibiting liquor exports to the United States so long as prohibition is the law of the republic.

Col. Sydney C. Robinson, Conservative member for West Essex, who in previous sessions has argued that Canada "should not legislate to keep America dry" and that America's tariff enactments against Canada have been "unfriendly," tabled a bill to knock out the clause in the Canadian customs act prohibiting liquor shipments to America.

Passed on First Reading.

His bill, which secured first reading without comment from the government, was briefly explained by him as one "to restore revenues to Canada and to open the way by agreement or convention between the two countries for reciprocal duties or obligations." The revenues Canada formerly received from liquor exports to the United States amounted to about $15,000,000 annually.

The second move to have Canada resume liquor exportation to America came from Charles G. Power, Liberal member for Quebec, who submitted a resolution to repeal the Canadian law. His resolution died as it was read, however, because of Robinson's prior submission of the same subject in a bill.

Sentiment in Favor of Bill.

Both of these members were opponents of the liquor prohibition law when it passed in 1930. They believe the sentiment of the Canadian parliament to have changed, since Canada is faced with a huge national deficit and especially since the American people are deemed to have voted wet in the last presidential election.

If members of the Canadian parliament vote publicly the way they speak privately, Robinson's measure would carry by a large vote. But the Bennett government is likely to put the screws on in caucus and, if the bill comes to a vote, effect its defeat. It may be ruled out of order as affecting revenues and eligible only from a cabinet minister.

GETS WARRANTS FOR PAIR SEIZED IN FORGERY CASE

Commissioner's warrants were obtained yesterday by Assistant United States Attorney James C. Leaton for the removal of two men under arrest in St. Louis charged with forging obligations of a foreign government. They are Samuel Sparks and Manuel Benemeliz. According to Prosecutor Leaton, the men passed 32 forged Cuban money orders for $100 each in Chicago. According to the serial numbers of the orders, Leaton said, it is believed that approximately 7,000 of the bogus orders have been passed in the Chicago area.

The price per ton has little relation to value in coal, because value is governed by quality, clean preparation, heat content, burning characteristics—things which cannot be measured by the pound. VOTE TO INDICT 3 STEVENSES ON FRAUD CHARGES

Embezzlement Is Alleged, Also Conspiracy.

James W. Stevens, 80 years old, and his sons, Ernest J. and Raymond W. Stevens, were reported named in three true bills voted by the Cook county grand jury yesterday, charging conspiracy and embezzlement in connection with the failure of the $150,000,000 Illinois Life Insurance company.

The true bills were voted after the jurors had listened to the testimony of three witnesses for about one hour. Bonds totaling $25,000 each for the three Stevenses were fixed by the grand jury and the indictments, one charging general conspiracy and two charging embezzlement, will be returned before Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court this morning.

Ernest Stevens in Court.

Before the grand jury acted Ernest J. Stevens appeared at the Criminal courts building and charges of conspiracy against him, made in a warrant issued last Friday to prevent his departure from the country, were continued one week by Judge Philip L. Sullivan.

Stevens, who surrendered a passport for a Mediterranean cruise after his arrest on the warrant, was late in court because neither he nor his taxicab driver knew the address of the building. He explained to Judge Sullivan that he instructed the driver to take him to 26th street and Crawford avenue and had to get another driver before he found out that his destination was 26th street and California avenue.

General Conspiracy Charged.

The first true bill voted by the grand jury contains four counts charging a general conspiracy to [1] obtain money under false pretenses, [2] make unlawful loans through dummies, [3] make false reports on the condition of the company to the state superintendent of insurance and policyholders, and [4] embezzle divers unspecified sums from the company's funds.

The second true bill charges embezzlement in connection with the making of the alleged dummy loans, which totaled more than $3,000,000 and the proceeds of which were used, it is charged, for the benefit of the Stevenses or the hotels which they controlled, the Stevens and the La Salle. James W. Stevens was chairman of the insurance company and of both hotel companies. Raymond W. Stevens was president of the insurance company, and Ernest J. Stevens was president of both hotels and is still manager at a reported salary of $3,000 a month.

Dividend Payments Hit.

The third true bill charges embezzlement in connection with the declaration and payment of dividends totaling $2,000,000 by the insurance company for the years 1930 and 1931, $1,000,000 of which, it is charged, went to James W. Stevens. The true bill alleges that the dividends were unlawfully declared because the company, instead of having actual earnings for the years in question, was operating at a net loss.

For conspiracy the maximum penalty is 1 to 5 years' imprisonment, and for embezzlement the punishment is an indeterminate sentence of 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary.

The three witnesses heard by the grand jury were Bert J. Stookey, former director of the insurance company and a nephew of James W. Stevens; George F. Ramer, former auditor for the company and personal secretary to the elder Stevens; and Clarence C. Walker, accountant for the state's attorney.

They were taken before the grand jury by State's Attorney Courtney and his assistant, William A. Rittenhouse. Minor technical defects in the indictments, which are being corrected by Assistant State's Attorney Granville Beardsley, prevented their return in court yesterday.

Comment of Hotel Receiver.

Arthur B. Hall, receiver of the Stevens hotel, was asked last evening whether Ernest Stevens would retain his job as manager now that the true bills have been voted.

"This is the first I have heard about it," said Mr. Hall. "However, I don't think there will be any immediate change. There is a difference between an indictment and a conviction. Many times a man is indicted when no crime has been committed."

MARK CENTURY OF STATE STREET GROWTH TODAY

Trace History from Dirt Road Days.

The hundred year metamorphosis of State street, from a dirt road which in bad weather was little more than a succession of mudholes bridged by logs, to its present condition as the world's most concentrated retail shopping district, will be celebrated today at the annual luncheon meeting of the State street council at the Palmer house.

Walter L. Gregory, general manager of the Palmer House, is president of the council, whose membership embraces representatives of most of the buildings and ground floor business establishments in State street between Lake and Congress streets. The council will observe today as the 100th anniversary of the creation and naming of the street.

On the luncheon program President Gregory will speak on the past activities of the council; Gordon Strong, chairman of the board of the council, on "State Street and Chicago"; Attorney William B. Hale on the sales tax; and L. H. Lohr and Salem N. Baskin on State street's participation in the World's Fair.

Factors in Development.

State street owes its present prestige and prosperity, Mr. Gregory held yesterday, to three factors: Its location at the hub of the city's local transportation system; the development of display advertising by merchants of the street to persuade their customers to make use of that transportation; and the early promotional activities of Potter Palmer.

Chicago's first street car track was laid in State street, from Lake street to Madison street, two years before the civil war. The next year, 1859, the tracks were extended south to 12th street, and then to 22d street, and the first cars, drawn by horses, were put into service. In the first year 727,476 passengers used the car line.

Potter Palmer's Part.

Potter Palmer opened a store on Lake street, which was then the shopping district of Chicago, in 1852. About the time the car line was built, Mr. Gregory said yesterday, Mr. Potter sold that property and invested his money in a mile of frontage on State street.

The street was then dirty, ill-paved, and in little favor for business purposes. Mr. Palmer brought about the widening of the street to 27 feet, and after gas, sewer, and water pipes had been laid, he built more than thirty business buildings on the new business thoroughfare, which he rented or sold. That started the tide of business toward State street and incidentally laid the basis of the Palmer fortune, one of the greatest of 19th century Chicago.

WOMAN FOUND DEAD IN HOME.

Mrs. Elizabeth Plunkett, 72 years old, was found dead yesterday in her apartment at 7344 South Shore drive. Police said she apparently had died of heart disease.

Snowplows at Work

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—The gold rush of 1849 was nothing like today's rush for soup, steaming coffee, and a warm fire when snow plows after 24 hours of puffing opened a road to the Lake Arrowhead mountain district and liberated 2,000 men, women, and children who had been marooned since yesterday by a sudden blizzard.

Tractors had to pull hundreds of stalled automobiles off the highway to make room for the snow plows. Of the crowd that had gathered at Lake Arrowhead for a Sunday program of winter sports, it was estimated tonight that 500 persons still are snowed in. Snowshoe posses expect to get them food.

No fatalities have been reported, but the cold wave brought indirect death and accidents. Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Dunklin died of gas heater poisoning in a room at Banning. Twelve persons, including Morley Drury, former football star, were rescued when their boat capsized on Lake Arrowhead, none in serious condition. R. B. Seeley and D. S. Cline were rescued after drifting most of a day in Catalina channel.

POLICEMAN HELD TO GRAND JURY FOR SHOOTING

Patrolman Roy Sullivan, 33 years old, 4823 North Oakley avenue, was held to the grand jury on a charge of assault yesterday by Municipal Judge Donald S. McKinlay. The charge was the result of the shooting of a street car conductor several months ago following an argument over payment of fare. The conductor, Andrew J. Gallagher, 2023 Lyndale street, was shot three times. Gallagher and three other witnesses testified that Sullivan seemed to be intoxicated when he fired the shots. Sullivan was suspended from the police force as a result of the shooting.

HOOVER CHARGES HOUSE DISRUPTS ECONOMY PLANS

163 Millions Added to Budget.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—President Hoover today charged the house leadership with ignoring many of his budget recommendations for economies for the 1934 fiscal year. In a statement issued at the White house he stated that up to date the house appropriations committee had recommended increases over his recommendations amounting to 163 million dollars.

According to the President, adoption of the house committee recommendations will make an increase in the estimated deficit for the1934 fiscal y ar of 163 millions. The treasury estimated the deficit for 1934 would be at least 307 millions if all the Hoover economy recommendations were approved. This deficit estimate did not include the 329 millions of war debt payments due but whose collection is problematical.

Discusses Supply Bills.

"The appropriation bills for the next fiscal year for the state, justice, commerce, and labor departments—together with the independent offices bill, have now been reported out from the house appropriations committee," the White House stated. "The President recommended total appropriations for these services of $1,058,741,556, including permanent appropriations amounting to $81,104,553, or $977,637,003 excluding permanent appropriations.

"The house committee recommended $1,106,172,818, excluding permanent appropriations, or $128,535,815 increase over the President's recommendations. To this should be added $1,268,480 for deferments which will be required in the fiscal year, making a total increase for these services of $129,804,295.

Will Increase Deficit.

"Since the statement of Jan. 20, which showed on the same basis net increases of about $35,000,000 for the departments of agriculture, interior, postoffice, treasury, and war, further action by the house on the war department bill has modified this figure to about $33,500,000.

"The totals of the increases over the President's recommendations to date are therefore $163,319,642, and if finally adopted by the congress will make an increase in the estimated deficit by that amount."

JAPAN WILL QUIT LEAGUE; MIKADO GIVES APPROVAL

Tokio Orders Envoys to Spurn Compromise.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Jan. 31 [Tuesday].—Foreign Minister Count Yasuya Uchida left for Okitsu at 9 o'clock this morning to inform Prince Saionji, last of the elder statesmen, that the government has given up all hope in the league of nations and to request the prince's approval and final instructions for recalling the Japanese delegates from Geneva. Count Uchida obtained Emperor Hirohito's approval yesterday. The emperor and the prince are the highest political advisers in Japan.

The cabinet yesterday sent final instructions to its representatives at Geneva which closed every door to conciliation of the Sino-Japanese dispute over Manchuria, snapped its fingers at the league, and all but told that body to mind its own business.

The Japanese delegation was instructed to spurn Great Britain's eleventh hour plea to Japan to reconsider its stand, which was communicated to the foreign office here Saturday by the British ambassador, Sir Francis Oswald Lindley, and to inform the league to take any steps it pleases.

Never Believed in Conciliation.

The foreign office said Japan's only concern now, and even this is infinitesimal, is whether the league will apply paragraph 3 or 4 of article 15 of the covenant.

[Article 15, paragraph 3, provides for disputing powers agreeing on a settlement; paragraph 4 empowers the league to declare a settlement.]

"We were satisfied from the outset that there would be no conciliation," the foreign office spokesman said. "Our position will be morally weaker by paragraph 3, especially if we used armed force after its application, for paragraph 3 pertains to conciliation and this pre-supposes nonuse of force. On the other hand, by accepting paragraph 4 Japan would merely agree to disagree and would not be bound not to have recourse to arms in the meantime."

Hedges on Stimson Plea.

Katsuji Debuchi, Japanese ambassador at Washington, today cabled Secretary of State Stimson's request that if Japan shares the sentiments of the United States, it take similar steps to advise Peru to settle its dispute with Colombia by pacific means in accordance with the Kellogg pact. The foreign office intimated that Tokio probably will not act nor reply as the request does not call for a reply. It was declared that there is nothing objectionable in the request, but Japan must remember that it is sometimes difficult to judge between right and wrong, especially at such a distance, and that friendly advice may be taken otherwise.

Chinese Attack; Lose Again.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TIENTSIN, Jan. 30.—Chinese troops were reported today to have attacked the Japanese invaders again at Chiumenkow, a pass through the Great Wall north of Shanaikwan, but without success. Japanese reports said the assault was broken up and that the Chinese, after suffering heavy losses, retreated to the west. The Japanese reported no casualties. This was the third attack by the Chinese at Chiumenkow in four days.

HELD ON ROBBERY CHARGE.

Louis Mullen, 56 years old, 636 South Wabash avenue, was held to the grand jury yesterday by Judge Donald S. McKinlay on a charge of robbery. He was captured while taking part in a holdup of a cigar store at 1416 Cullerton street.

INSULL SECURITY DIRECTORS SUED FOR 23 MILLIONS

Suit Names Swift and Stanley Field.

Another investors' suit growing out of the crash of the Insull utilities empire, in which hope of recovery lies in the directors rather than the now empty shell they once managed was filed in federal court yesterday. The suit seeks $23,233,000 from Corporation Securities company, a $150,000,000 Insull investment trust.

Like the suit for $80,000,000 filed last week against the Insulls and fellow directors of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., the $250,000,000 investment trust, yesterday's petition charged that the assets of Corporation Securities were dissipated by the payment of unearned dividends, the negotiation of fraudulent bank loans and the purchasing of questionable securities for the individual profit of directors.

Field and Swift Named.

Stanley Field and Edward F. Swift are Insull directors named in this suit for the first time in recovery litigation. Besides these two and Samuel Insull Sr. and Samuel Insull Jr., the other directors of Corporation Securities made defendants are C. W. Sills, Harold L. Stuart, C. B. Stuart, Edward J. Doyle, Martin J. Insull, F. K. Shrader and John H. Gulick. The suit was filed on behalf of De Mets, Inc., holders of $20,000 in serial gold notes of the company, and all other investors who wish to intervene, by Attorney David D. Stansbury.

An accounting, an examination of the directors, and the recovery of what the court deems equitable, was prayed, and subpoenas were issued for an appearance on the first Monday in March.

The bill of complaint sets out that Corporation Securities, formed in October, 1929, with the avowed intention of dealing in shares of the Insull operating companies, issued $31,500,000 worth of the gold notes on Sept. 1, 1930, for which the company received $30,290,139. These notes were to be paid in serial installments on Sept 1 of 1932, 1933, 1934, and 1935, according to the bill.

$23,233,000 Outstanding.

The petition states that the last interest payment was made on March 1, 1932, and that $23,233,000 in unredeemed notes and interest is now outstanding and due.

It is alleged that the notes contained the following covenants with the purchasers: So long as any note remained outstanding the company would not mortgage or otherwise encumber assets without equally securing the note holders; the company would not pay cash dividends on common stock nor redeem capital stock when such disbursements would reduce the value of the assets below 150 per cent of the indebtedness; it would not assume any indebtedness in excess of 50 per cent of its assets.

The petition cites the filing of an involuntary bankruptcy petition against the company on April 18, 1932, when, it is set forth, the liabilities, other than capital stock and surplus, totaled $56,768,234 and the assets only $12,153,785. Of the assets $12,041,017 were held as security for loans by bank and trust companies, the bill states.

99 Per Cent Pledged for Loans.

At the time of the filing of the bankruptcy petition the total securities pledged for loans constituted 99 per cent of the company's assets and when the loans were made the liabilities exceeded more than 50 per cent of the assets, it is charged on information and belief.

These transactions, according to the bill, were sanctioned by the directors in violation of a covenant with the investors. The Illinois law providing that "directors shall be jointly and severally liable for the debts and contracts of the corporation" is cited in this connection.

The directors also approved, the petition charges, cash dividends in 1930, 1931, and 1932, and authorized the payment of large sums in 1931 and 1932 to settle claims and lawsuits against individual directors.

BERLIN THRONGS CHEER HITLER AS CHANCELLOR

Nazis and War Veterans Pay Their Homage.

survive. The parties supporting the new régime are assured of 247 votes in the reichstag, while the majority needed consists of 293. Hitler hopes that the Centrists will at least tolerate his government, thereby preventing adoption of a nonconfidence vote.

The Centrists are infuriated. They charge that former Chancellor Franz von Papen slighted them in negotiating for a cabinet headed by the Nazi leader; but several leaders have announced that the party will coöperate if Hitler abides by the constitution.

Elders of the reichstag, in order to give the cabinet time to prepare a working arrangement with the Centrists, postponed the next meeting of the reichstag until Feb. 7.

Papen to Watch Over Hitler.

The new cabinet is a strange mixture. Von Papen, the man whom the president trusts more than all other political leaders, has been selected vice chancellor and premier of Prussia. The president awarded him special powers to watch over the Austrian born Hitler.

Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, Nationalist leader, monarchist and ardent friend of the former kaiser, will rule the ministry of economics and agriculture.

Franz Seldte, leader of the Steel Helmet members, who is also a loyal supporter of the Hohenzollerns, is minister of labor. The ministry of defense is in the hands of Lieut. Gen. Werner von Blomberg, who is well known in the United States, where he went several years ago on a special mission to study American military institutions. Von Blomberg has been Germany's chief military expert at the disarmament conferences at Geneva.

Nazis Get 2 More Posts.

To counteract the influence of these numerous Nationalists in the cabinet, Hitler insisted upon two further key posts for his Nazis, including Dr. Frick, minister of interior. He is leader of the Nazi party in the reichstag and acquired governmental experience as premier of Thuringia for almost a year and a half.

Capt. Herman Goering, one of the stars of Hitler's party, becomes minister without portfolio, commissar of aviation and acting minister of interior for Prussia. This means that he is in control of all police forces in more than half of Germany.

Gen. von Blomberg is the only relatively unknown member of the cabinet. Other members have played important rôles in recent German history. The new head of the ministry of defense is in his 55th year and has had a regular military career which landed him on the general staff in 1911. During the war he was general staff officer with the 7th army. After the revolution he remained with the reichswehr, rising to the rank of lieutenant general in charge of the first division at Koenigsberg.

Shortly after his appointment, Hitler issued a proclamation which emphasized that his cabinet is not truly representative of Hitlerism and the Nazi organization.

"We must carry on the fight within the government as tenaciously as we fought outside," the proclamation said. "After a 13 year struggle the National Socialist movement has succeeded in breaking through to the government—the struggle to win the German nation, however, is only beginning."

Thanks Von Hindenburg.

Later Capt. Goering, speaking for Hitler said:

"This is as great a day as Aug. 1, 1914, when the nation rose to defend itself from a world of enemies. Today we close the chapters of misery and shame of recent years. We wish to thank President von Hindenburg for making an alliance with youth through Hitler to create better times with bread and work for his countrymen and liberty and honor for the nation."

NATIVE OF AUSTRIA.

At the age of 43 Adolf Hitler, who for a long time was a man without a country in Germany, has attained the ambition of a picturesque political career which began in 1921.

He is an Austrian by birth, but at the age of 23 he went to Munich and enlisted in the German army of 1914, sacrificing his Austrian citizenship. On the western front he was gassed and wounded, winning a silver war service medal.

In 1918 the Hohenzollerns were overthrown. Hitler was outraged. He hated the republic from the day it was born and swore he never would rest until he set things right again.

His ambitious campaign began in the beer cellars of Munich. He talked interminably over the little tables. Before long his audiences overflowed the beer stubes and in 1921 Hitler was the accepted leader of the anti-republic movement.

Strong Military Following.

In that year he formulated the party program which emphasized centralized government on nondemocratic lines. The movement had a strong military following and Hitler overestimated its power. Gen. Eric Ludendorff was one of his closest advisers and together the two attempted a "coup" on the night of Nov. 8, 1923. They declared the provincial government of Bavaria overthrown. The Bavarian authorities pretended to accept this ukase, but Hitler was soon arrested and sentenced to five years in prison. A year later he was liberated but it was not until 1928 that he resumed his activities.

By 1930 the National Socialist party, as it had christened itself, attained a strength that surprised the old line political leaders. The reichstag election of that year brought victory to 107 of Hitler's brown shirted disciples.

In successive elections his strength mounted and in 1932 Hitler received official political recognition when Chancellor Heinrich Bruening asked his opinion on a proposal to extend President von Hindenburg's term by act of parliament. Hitler would not approve the proposal, declaring it was unconstitutional.

Defeated by Hindenburg.

He became a candidate against Von Hindenburg, but was defeated by more than 6,000,000 votes.

In that election Hitler reached the peak of his strength, polling more than 13,000,000 votes. The reversal of the tide came with the reichstag elections a few months later, when the National Socialists suffered a loss of about 2,000,000 votes.

Hitler maintains that the family is the basis of civilization, but he never married. He asserts that women have no place in government, but the woman's vote is his.

Jubilation and Gloom Greet Hitler's Accession to Power

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

The accession to power of Adolf Hitler in Germany brought comments in world capitals varying from jubilation to gloomy predictions of impending trouble. Here is a summary of the dispatches:

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Little apprehension was voiced concerning the effect the appointment of Hitler might have on international relations. It was believed the responsibility imposed upon the new chancellor would result in a more conservative policy than he has heretofore pursued.

PARIS.—Although official circles were not alarmed, there was a repercussion on the bourse, where Young plan bonds lost four francs [about 16 cents] in the day. Earlier the loss had ranged up to 18 francs. Official quarters kept a careful watch on the situation and expressed interest especially in the new chancellor's attitude concerning the league of nations and disarmament.

London Is Excited.

LONDON.—Talk of the appointment shoved into the background discussion of the forthcoming debts negotiations with America. The effect of the German Nazi victory on France became a matter of great moment to political circles.

BUDAPEST, Hungary.—The semi-official pester Lloyd said: "As we see it, it is a matter of downright revolution. The only certain thing is that difficult times are ahead for Germany and a serious shock which may affect the destiny of all Europe can hardly be avoided."

Fears for Germany's Future.

VIENNA, Austria.—The Allegmeine Zeitung described the situation as Germany's loss of "its second battle of the Marne," and added: "This appointment opens up disastrous prospects for Germany at home and abroad." The national socialist Kamprfuf, however, announced Hitler's victory with an extra edition, which contained demands for an immediate dissolution of the Austrian parliament and new elections.

ROME.—Newspapers acclaimed the appointment and described it as a vindication of a fascism and an indication that the movement was spreading. Giornale d'Italia said: "The first aspect of the new German government worthy of reflection is that it is a triumph of a new Germany. She adheres to that profound revolution, spiritual and economic, which is being accomplished in every part of the world."

WARSAW, Poland.—The consensus in Polish political circles appeared to be that the Germans would have so much internal trouble with the advent of a Hitler cabinet that the question of changing the eastern frontiers would be relegated to the background. The official Gazeta Polska foresaw grave internal struggles between the right and the left which would clearly reveal the strength of these two antipodal forces. The national democratic Gazeta Warzawska doubted whether the new government would stick to legal means, and expressed the belief that labor would cause trouble.

Appointment Stirs Czechs.

PRAGUE.—Czechoslovakia was thrown into excitement by the coming into power of Adolf Hitler. Crowds on the streets of Prague agitatedly discussed it. Official quarters said to wait and see what Hitler has to say. The rightist press was alarmed. The national democratic Warodni Politica said: "We must prepare for a much more vigorous defense of our interests than heretofore. We are convinced that the new danger will draw into a closer front the nations imperiled by it." [This obviously meant the nations of the little entente.]

DALADIER FORMS 'JUST ANOTHER' FRENCH CABINET

Based on Old Lines; Not Expected to Last Long.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 31.—[Tuesday.]—With the entire country agreed on the necessity of establishing a strong government to meet the menace represented by the long dreaded triumph in Germany of Adolf Hitler, Fascist leader, the elective representatives of the French people today were forced to admit that they could not even find a government capable of solving the internal problems of the nation.

This became evident at 1 o'clock this morning when Edouard Daladier premier-designate, announced the general lines of a cabinet which he will present to President Albert Lebrun at noon today and gave out the names of five men whom he has already selected for the principal portfolios.

Just Another Government.

It is just another French government—a rehash of the governments of Edouard Herriot and Joseph Paul-Boncour. Like them, it can count surely on the votes of the Radical Socialist party, and for a majority has to depend on the fickle and alternate support of the center parties and the Socialists. This means that it faces the same dilemma over the budgetary situation that ended the life of the Paul-Boncour government and would have overthrown the Herriot government if the war debt issue had not accidentally come first.

The cabinet nucleus which Daladier announced shows himself as premier and minister of war; Paul-Boncour as foreign minister; Camille Chautemps minister of interior; Georges Bonnet, minister of finance, and Lucien Lamoureux, minister of the budget.

The rest of the cabinet has not yet been announced, but nothing startling is expected. Herriot will doubtless accept a minor post just to lend the support of his personal prestige to his former subordinate.

Socialists Refuse to Coöperate.

Daladier's last hope of forming a really stable government was the desperate one of getting the Socialists to break tradition by participating in the cabinet. For a couple of hours yesterday afternoon it looked as if they would do this. In fact, they voted to participate in principle, but when they tried to get together with Daladier's Radical Socialist financiers on the budget program, the gulf between the two parties was as wide as ever and the Marxians stalked out in a huff.

With Hitler in power in Germany and the budget deficit growing at a rate of $45,000 an hour, the march of destiny for this country, at least in the opinion of the politicians of the right, who are plugging for some kind of dictatorship, is growing dramatic.

A further batch of incidents have sprung up tending to support the claim of the rightists that the authority of the state is collapsing. Two enormous demonstrations in the country's revolt against excessive taxation were staged yesterday.

Threaten to Close Factories.

The first was a meeting of nearly 15,000 substantial business men representing 750 syndicates and commercial and industrial interests throughout the country. A resolution was adopted declaring that taxation is strangling the country's business and announcing that if the new government attempts to increase the burden of taxation all interests represented will shut down their shops and plants.

A second meeting was held by smaller merchants, artisans and industrials not included in the above association. They adopted a similar resolution and backed it up by marching in small groups to the chamber of deputies, where the ringleaders were arrested by an imposing police force which has been guarding the building for the last few days.

An even greater impression was made on parliamentarians by the simultaneous misfortunes which befell three deputies in different parts of the country.

One deputy named Chauvin, traveling to Paris on a train, found his compartment occupied by a gang of peasants. When he announced his identity and asked them to move out they announced that they were going to throw him out the window and he was obliged to call for help.

At the little village of Riec sur Belon, in Brittany, where 15,000 peasants demonstrated Sunday against the government, a mob damaged the home of Deputy Cadoret and insulted and threatened his wife.

Another deputy, a Socialist, made the mistake of talking pacifism in a cafe where army officers were sitting. One of the officers tweaked his nose and kicked him in the seat of his pants.

EX-KAISER REGARDS CHANGE IN RULE 'STEP IN RIGHT DIRECTION'

DOORN, Holland, Jan. 30.—(AP)—The impression was gathered tonight from statements by several members of the former German kaiser's household that he regards the change in Germany's government as "a step in the right direction." Wilhelm, however, is not very hopeful that the new chancellor, Adolf Hitler, will be able soon to recall him to Germany, as was rumored among Doorn villagers.

If Hitler were not dependent on others less favorably disposed to the monarchy, there seems little doubt, it was said here, that the former kaiser and his family would have already started preparations for an early departure.

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—After having his left ear in bandages for several days Lionel Barrymore today was pronounced as recovering. His trouble was caused by a clot in the inner ear. An operation was feared, but tonight was said to be not necessary.

JUDGE TO RULE ON SUIT TO BALK LOAN CO. CLAIM

First Case of Kind to Go Into U. S. Court.

Federal Judge George A. Carpenter will rule this morning on the petition of a bankrupt to obtain a permanent restraining order against a loan bank to enjoin it from collecting his wages under a wage assignment made after the adjudication of his voluntary bankruptcy petition.

At a previous hearing Judge Carpenter indicated that he would issue the injunction as soon as a formal order was prepared by the attorneys in the case. This is the first case in which the contention of a loan bank that its claim under a wage assignment is not cleared with the rest of the creditor's claims in a bankruptcy action is to be ruled on by a federal court. The loan companies have indicated they will carry their case to a higher court.

Suit Filed by Salesman.

The petition in the present case was filed by Frank Wiggins, 57 years old, a department store salesman, living at 5331 North Winthrop avenue. His suit was filed against the Money corporation, 100 North La Salle street, and Gerald S. Rolfes, an official.

The bankruptcy docket shows that Wiggins filed a voluntary bankruptcy petition on Jan. 12. According to his attorney, Lloyd Faxon, Wiggins listed assets of $110 and no liabilities other than the loan claim. On Jan. 13 Judge Carpenter entered a temporary restraining order preventing the loan company from collecting Wiggins' weekly pay of $20 under their wage assignment.

According to Attorney Faxon, Wiggins, on an original loan of $230, has paid the loan company approximately $370 and still owes about $600, including accrued interest. Under the wage assignment virtually all of Wiggins' weekly salary was consumed by the loan, the attorney charged.

Enjoined from Collection.

Under the temporary restraining order the Money corporation was enjoined from collecting any of the salary paid to Wiggins, either by wage assignment or garnishment, pending a further order of the court.

On Jan. 19 the final adjudication of the bankruptcy petition was ordered. The following week the arguments for a permanent restraining order were taken under advisement. Subsequently Judge Carpenter ordered the attorneys to prepare their formal order.

It was brought out at the hearings that in all but eight states, of which Illinois is one, such an assignment as that made by Wiggins is illegal. The state Supreme court has held that under Illinois law a wage assignment is not cleared by adjudication in bankruptcy. Attorneys pointed out that a ruling by a federal court will take precedence over the Illinois Supreme court ruling, given in a suit in which an employé tried to make his employer pay him his wages instead of turning them over to a loan agency.

Unable to Lift Burden.

"Under the existing Illinois law," Attorney Faxon said, "a man caught in the toils of a loan company is nothing more than a bonded servant. No matter what action he takes to clear himself of his burden of debt his wage assignment always hangs over his head.

"In this case it is particularly deplorable when one considers that at no time did Wiggins himself derive any profit from the transaction. He signed the note as an accommodation for a friend in 1932. His friend suffered a paralytic stroke and never paid a cent on the note. Wiggins has been paying ever since."

Litchfield, Ill., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—"Jawgo" Aubrey, 18, no longer is homeless. Early Sunday morning he stuck his left foot between the bumpers of two freight cars. The crushed foot was amputated and "Jawge," "on the bum" for three years, had a home in a hospital for the rest of the winter.

LINER EUROPA CAUGHT IN GALE RUNS OUT TO SEA

U.S. Cutters in Gotham Harbor Drag Behind.

New York, Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Caught in a tremendous battle of strength between a fifty mile gale blowing out of the harbor and a storm driven tide rushing past quarantine into the harbor, the North German Lloyd liner Europa suddenly hauled up her anchor today and ran out to sea with several government cutters dragging behind.

Shrieks from sirens and roars of angry cutter officers failed to stop the big ship. The cutters had been alongside taking off mail and putting on immigration inspectors, customs men, and reporters when the liner got under way.

Anchors with Bow to Sea.

There was some question about the way to anchor, whether to point her bow out to sea to avoid the strain of the incoming tide on her chains or to point her bow inland to bear the brunt of the gale. It was impossible to tell which force was the stronger.

The Europa finally chose to anchor with bow to sea and the anchor went down. A port anchor followed immediately. It didn't hold. The ship ran out 360 feet of anchor chain and still the hook slipped on the sea bottom.

A German freighter, the Aachen, lay astern of the Europa. The liner signaled to the Aachen and the freighter shied off. The situation became so dangerous that Capt. Oskar Scharf decided not to risk any movements of his liner in such narrow quarters. The Europa hauled up the anchor and started off into Gravesend bay to make a new and firmer anchorage with her bow thrust into the gale.

Ships Are Dragged Along.

Most of the cutters broke away. But the Raritan, with the customs men and reporters aboard, and the mail boat President were not fast enough.

The President was dragged along on the side of the Europa. The cutter keeled over until the rushing water almost reached her decks. At last somebody cut her line and she broke free.

The Raritan, on the port side, was in similar position. She, too, keeled far over and was dragged along. At last she broke loose and escaped.

Later in the day, the Europa was able to reach its dock and discharge its load of passengers.

ALIMONY SEEKERS RANT IN VAIN; NO ONE GOES TO JAIL

Judges Firm as Women Storm and Weep.

A stone wall of judicial disapproval was encountered by scores of wives who appeared yesterday in the divorce courts of Chicago asking the imprisonment of their husbands for failure to pay alimony. Not a single husband was sent to join the members of the Alimony club in the county jail despite the many petitions presented.

Some of the alimony seekers stormed and others wept in court when their petitions to jail their husbands were refused. But neither protestations nor tears moved the judges.

Bills now being considered by the judiciary committee of the state senate would remedy some of the defects in the antiquated divorce statutes of Illinois. A first hearing on these bills, introduced by Senator R. V. Graham, administration floor leader, is scheduled for this week.

The Case of Mrs. Lax.

Among the court cases was that of Mrs. Mary Lax, 4033 Adams street, a clerk in the county tax extension department, who appeared before Judge Joseph Sabath to demand the imprisonment of her former husband, Carl Lax, 312 Henrietta avenue, Brookfield, from whom she was divorced fifteen years ago.

Mrs. Lax' wages are $92 a month, testimony revealed. She pointed out that the county is months behind in its payment of salaries. She demanded $25 a month from Lax for the support of a 16 year old daughter, Mary, a high school girl. Lax, who is remarried and has three children by the second marriage, protested that his income is only $40 a month and that alimony of $25 a month would leave him only $15 a month to support his present wife and three children.

"I'll try to give her $10 a month from my $40," he told Judge Sabath. "Even that will bring my family close to starvation. I haven't had work for twenty months, although I've looked hard for a job."

First Wife Asks Jail.

"If this woman were receiving her wages promptly, I would not hesitate to declare her responsible for the support of the daughter," remarked the judge.

"If he went to jail today, he'd get the money within 24 hours," said the first Mrs. Lax.

"I can't do that," said the judge. "I can't drive a man to desperation or to the commission of some crime to get money for alimony. If he borrows from loan sharks, he's in their clutches for life."

The judge told Lax to pay $10 a month temporarily. The question of Lax seeing his daughter by the first marriage arose.

"If he hasn't got pluck enough to pay $25 a month, he's not going to see the girl," shouted the first Mrs. Lax.

Judge Sabath rebuked her and told Lax to see his daughter once a week.

Childless, She Asks Alimony.

Another militant wife and frightened husband appeared before the bench. Mrs. Lulu La Rochelle, 4347 Greenwood avenue, wanted $12 a week from Claude La Rochelle, a printer, whose wages are $16 a week. They have no children.

Reluctantly the wife admitted under questioning by Judge Sabath that she has an income of $25 a week from the parents of four children of whom she takes care.

"This is no case for alimony," said the judge curtly. "Case dismissed."

In the other divorce courts the same scenes were repeated. Judge James J. Kelly ordered two husbands into custody during the morning session but later released them on their promises to try to get some money to pay for the support of their wives.

REPORT YOUNG ASTOR, ITALIAN PRINCESS TO WED; HER KIN DENY IT

New York, Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Society was excited today by reports from Milan, Italy, and Annapolis, Md., of the engagement of John Jacob Astor 3d and Princess Donnia Cristiana Torlonia, daughter of Prince Torlonia of Rome and Mrs. Elsie Moore Torlonia of New York.

The news first came in a Milan cable, which quoted Admiral Camperio as saying that his daughter, Luisa Maria Camperio, now visiting in Annapolis, had written him that she had been invited to serve as a bridesmaid at the wedding. The admiral said young Astor and Princess Torlonia had met at an Alpine resort only last summer, where they hiked, danced, and played tennis.

Later in the day a dispatch from Annapolis quoted Miss Camperio as confirming the news given out by her father. She added that she understood the ceremony would be performed in April in Italy, and that she was awaiting definite advices before making her sailing plans.

Mrs. Torlonia herself was reached on Richard Howe's yacht, the Seaborn, off Miami.

"There is nothing to the rumor," she said. "I can't understand how it got started. It's the most absurd thing I ever heard of." Miss Torlonia was with her mother and they were planning to sail for a cruise on the Howe yacht.

Meantime Mrs. William K. Dick, the mother of young Astor, had declined to make any statement at Palm Beach except to say that any confirmation would have to come from the mother of Princess Torlonia.

HORNER INTENDS TO CONSOLIDATE STATE BUREAUS

Two Departments Will Be Merged with Others.

BY PARKE BROWN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Gov. Horner's silence in reference to the selection of directors of two of the present state departments was explained today by his intention to merge those two with others, reducing the total number of departments from the present total of eleven to nine, as was provided originally in the Lowden code of 1917.

The two governmental branches facing this prospect are the department of conservation and the department of purchases and construction. Both of these were added to the code list during the Len Small régime and Judge Horner's preliminary surveys have convinced him that their duties may be transferred elsewhere without reducing the efficiency of the administration.

No Official Announcement.

While nothing official has been announced on this subject, it is understood that conservation work will be placed under the department of agriculture, where it was originally located by the Lowden plan of operation. The department of purchases and construction, it is said, will be split in two, the purchasing work being transferred to the department of trade and commerce, and all construction placed under the department of public works which now does all road building.

The department of conservation, which concentrates largely on fish and game protection and propagation, already has been trimmed materially by the Horner retrenchment program. About eighty deputy game wardens, "rabbit shepherds" in statehouse slang, have been ousted and their places are not to be filled.

The new administration already has shaken up one part of the department of purchases and construction—the division of printing—and is expected to put it on an entirely new basis soon. A quiet survey has been under way in that division for some time.

Little State Construction.

So far as construction is concerned it is believed that there will not be much state building going on for some time so that public works can take over what there is without increasing its labors to any large extent.

It also is pointed out that the work of the waterways division, has almost nothing to do since the Illinois waterway was taken over by the federal government, so that bureau will be abolished or its personnel reduced to a minimum.

Estimates of the number of employés ousted by the Horner administration to date run close to the 600 figure, and many of these positions are to be eliminated from the budget before it goes to the assembly.

Few appointments are expected to go to the senate for confirmation this week. One that probably will be presented will be the nomination of Frank Purtill of Duquoin, a representative of the International Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, as the fourth new member of the industrial commission.

URGES MOVING UP COURT ELECTIONS TO SAVE MILLION

La Buy Drafts Resolution for County Board.

Advancement of the dates of the 1934 and 1935 November elections for judges of the Superior court to next June 5 was urged yesterday by County Commissioner Walter J. La Buy, who estimated the measure would save taxpayers of the county $1,000,000.

Under the present arrangement six judges of the Superior court are to be elected in 1934 and 18 in 1935. Commissioner La Buy is preparing a resolution for submission to the county board, recommending that these posts be filled in June, when 20 judges of the Circuit court are to be elected.

Would Delay Inaugurations.

Under the plan the Superior judges elected in June would take office at the same time as if they were elected in 1934 or 1935. Judges now sitting, who might be reelected, would continue in office until 1940 or 1941.

At a conference attended by Gov. Horner, Mayor Cermak, and Democratic leaders Sunday the proposal to fill next June the six Superior court posts scheduled for the 1934 election was indorsed. It is estimated this would save $500,000. Commissioner La Buy holds that an additional $500,000 might be saved by including the 1935 judgeships.

La Buy said the Chicago Bar association is recommending the combining of judicial elections to take the contests out of party strife. Judges of the Circuit court are chosen at separate elections but judges of the Superior court frequently are candidates at the time of contests for county, state, and national offices.

Expect Judges' Approval.

Superior Judge Denis E. Sullivan, whose term expires in 1935, said he has no objection to the plan. He added that he believed it would meet with but little objection from other judges.

"Those of us who might be reelected will continue to serve and those of us who might be defeated will have a year or two to look around."

LOUISIANA LINEN IS SHAKEN OUT BY LONG, BROUSSARD

Senators Speak At but Not To Each Other.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Louisiana's linen—and it was said to be splotched in spots—was shaken out on the senate floor today as Louisiana's Huey Long and Louisiana's senior but less publicized senator, Edward S. Broussard, tossed everything at one another except the short and ugly word.

The two senators do not speak to each other, but they proved with fluent energy that they could speak about each other. For Huey is "kingfish" of Democratic politics in his state. And Mr. Broussard is anti-Long—and as a consequence a lame duck, having been beaten in the primaries last September by John Overton, now a representative and a Long loyalist.

Resents Newspaper Story.

"A more damnable falsehood was never printed," shouted Huey as he began it by resenting a newspaper story telling of the charges of fraud and corruption which a special senatorial campaign committee is about to investigate. Mr. Broussard instituted the charges.

Senator Long told how he beat impeachment charges made against him when governor for "stealing $900, carrying a pistol, and stealing a cord of wood." The "kingfish," he painted was an official who rescued his state from rapacious oil interests, gave it hard roads, and public education.

Then it was Senator Broussard's turn. He wanted nothing for himself.

"But the state of Louisiana has been degraded to such an extent that corruption, bribery, and intimidation are such that no honorable man dare offer himself for public service," he said, and with an indignant finger pointed at Senator Long. "If they think a man is honest," he shot out, "he cannot get past."

Recalls Brother's Defection.

Senator Broussard recalled the defection of Senator Long's own brother from the Long faction. This was the brother who remarked that the "kingfish" was just "crawfish" to him.

He would give a proper answer tomorrow, said Senator Broussard, when he had had a chance to read Senator Long's speech in the record.

"And when I answer," he said, "I do not answer for the men who have bought votes, but for the respectable element of Louisiana."

Senator Broussard had not spoken to Senator Long, but was waiting for him to speak first.

"He says he's waiting for me to speak to him," chortled Huey Long. "Well, I hope the senator will not hold his breath for that to happen."

What Is it about CHESTERFIELDS?

Well, I can't tell you much of anything about what is in Chesterfields

BUT I smoke a good deal, and I noticed that they said that Chesterfield Cigarettes were milder and tasted better; so I smoked a package or two and found it to be true.

I also noticed that the cigarettes were well-filled, seemed to be the right length and the right circumference, and burned uniformly—not up one side and down the other.

I liked the aroma—very pleasing. I liked the appearance of the cigarette—the paper, dead white. The package rather appealed to me.

I don't know exactly what it is, but I just like 'em. It's about the only luxury that I enjoy; so I think it's all right for me to have a good cigarette, and I believe Chesterfield is just about the best.

SCHOOL BOARD VOTES BUDGET OF $71,549,701

Further Cuts Predicted by Trustees.

The school board adopted its 1933 budget of $71,549,701 yesterday by a vote of 5 to 1. The dissenting vote was cast by Trustee John A. English, who declared that the slash of 15 per cent in the salaries of teachers and other employes was unjustified.

The 1933 school budget is $3,630,562 under the $75,180,263 budget for 1932. 1932 budgetary appropriations, which amounted to more than 90 million dollars at this time last year, were trimmed 15 million dollars last summer after a series of night conferences of the board.

The budget will have to be trimmed further so that the board may live within its income for this year, according to several trustees, notably Joseph P. Savage.

"I believe that the board of education and all public bodies," asserted Mr. Savage, "will have to retrench some more before the year is out. We're spending without any idea of how much money we are going to get. To spend a dollar you must produce a dollar, and the taxpayers who formerly gave us the funds are not in the same position now."

Vote for the Budget.

The trustees who voted for the budget were President Lewis E. Myers, Mr. Savage, James A. Hemingway, Orville J. Taylor, H. Wallace Caldwell, Ernst Buehler, Robert F. Carr and William D. McJunkin.

Trustee Taylor moved the adoption of the budget and was seconded by Trustee Carr.

In making the first statement, Trustee Caldwell declared that the school board had cut its budget more than the city had.

"Back in 1930 the legislature established the tax rate for succeeding years," said Mr. Caldwell. "The school board was given a tax rate of $5.225 per hundred for 1933 and the city's rate was set at $1.835. On the basis of an assessed valuation of $3,285,000,000 for 1931 the school board has cut $19,139,133 from the taxes it could levy. The city's reduction is $10,328,000."

Mr. English declared that the reductions in the budget would seriously interfere with the educational opportunities of the school children. He contended that proposed taxes to carry on the relief program for the idle should be used instead to finance municipal projects and thus put men to work.

"But this budget shows practically no curtailment in the schools," said Mr. Savage, in reply. "None of the advantages for education have been taken away from the children and provision is made for additional teachers."

Discusses Salary Cuts.

President Myers touched on the question of salary cuts. The budget provides for a straight 15 per cent cut in the basic salary and wage scales of all employés in the school system—with the exception of a few employés who draw less than $1,000 yearly.

"This reduction in pay," declared Mr. Myers, "is not comparable to that in industry. There are many in this board room whose incomes have dwindled far greater in proportion. Our economies have not been made at the expense of the school children, who are our first consideration."

In keeping with his recent announcement to Mayor Cermak that his resignation as president and member of the board would become effective upon adoption of the budget, Mr. Myers stepped from the rostrum when the secretary had announced the votes. He relinquished the gavel to Trustee J. Hemingway, who as vice president, became the presiding officer of the board.

In speculating privately as to who will be the new president of the board the trustees have mentioned the name of Mr. Taylor. It also was considered possible that Mr. Hemingway might be allowed to remain as presiding officer until his term ends. The trustees elect their own president.

Praise President's Work.

Upon the motion of Trustee Carr, the board members rose for a standing vote of appreciation for the retiring president's services.

Then the board listened to the reading of several tax levy ordinances, setting up the tax resources for the school system in 1933, and adopted them without comment. The ordinances, requesting that taxes totaling $56,884,444 be levied for all school purposes this year will be forwarded to the city council for passage by that body.

The proposed tax levies by funds include: educational, $44,536,000; bond redemption and interest, $7,984,444; building, $2,441,569; playgrounds, $808,300, and teachers' pension and retirement, $1,314,131.

To make up stated resources of $71,573,385, against which the board plans to balance the appropriations, the budget includes, in addition to tax resources, $5,224,972 of revenue from miscellaneous sources such as the state distributive fund and rents, and the questionable "surplus" of $9,463,869.

The "surplus" represents mainly uncollected taxes for prior years.

FINED IN COURT

A police investigator testified yesterday before Judge Robert J. Dunne that the first move of an instructor in a "dancing school" which he visited was to turn out the lights. On his testimony Judge Dunne fined Mildred Wood, 22 years old and red-headed, owner of the so-called school at 3747 Washington boulevard, $5 for operating without a license.

The policeman posed as a patron seeking private instruction in dancing. He was led to a room in the remodeled apartment occupied by Miss Wood's "school." He testified also that he was a former dancing master.

"From my experience," he said, "I know that the young woman with me was not a competent instructor. The first thing she did was to turn out the light in the room."

Assistant Corporation Counsel Otto Weiner, who prosecuted the case, charged that the "school" was one of the places which have succeeded the more public taxi dance halls. Fining of the owner will permit the police to keep the place closed without fear of injunction proceedings against them, he pointed out.

TAXPAYERS GET THEIR BILLS FOR 1931 BY FEB. 20

Clerks to Work Nights on Tax Figures.

Cook county taxpayers will have received all of their 1931 personal property and real estate tax bills by Feb. 20, eight days before the penalty date on the first installment of real estate taxes, under the plans for expediting the tax collection worked out yesterday by county officials.

The board of tax appeals will finish its work on the change sheets, where its revisions of personal property assessments are recorded, this morning. The board does not start hearing complaints on real estate assessments, under the new assessment system put into effect for the first time this year, until the bills for the first half of the tax go out.

Assessor Jacobs' assistants will have to enter the changes made by the tax appeals board upon the tax books after receiving the change sheets. Mr. Jacobs said yesterday that his office was up to date on this work, and would be able to turn the books over to County Clerk Sweitzer for computation of tax rates within five hours after he received the final change sheets. He expected to turn the books over to the county clerk before evening.

Clerks to Work All Night.

Mr. Sweitzer said that his assistants had prepared the preliminary figures for computing the hundreds of individual country town tax rates, which is the most difficult part of the rate computation. He estimated that by starting work tonight, working all night, and keeping at their tasks over the week-end, his clerks would be able to send the first tax books to County Treasurer McDonough within six days.

The county clerk sets down in the tax books the tax rate to be applied on the assessment of each piece of property. The tax extension department in Mr. McDonough's office has to figure the actual amount of the bill and enter it on the tax books. Mrs. Laura Weibler, head of that department, says that the first tax books can be sent to country town collectors 24 hours after they are received from the county clerk's office.

By working a day and a night shift in her office, Mrs. Weibler estimates that the last of the books, both for real estate and personal property, can be completed by Feb. 20. The country town tax books will be sent out first. The thirty country town tax collectors, who collect taxes on a percentage basis, have to prepare their own bills from the tax books and mail them out to taxpayers. The county treasurer prepares and mails the bills to all Chicago taxpayers.

Get Percentage of Taxes.

Under the law, the country town tax collectors are allowed to keep the tax books for three weeks, receiving a percentage of all the taxes which they collect during that period. The townships by which they are elected get all of their fees above $10,000.

This year the suburban collectors will keep the books until two weeks after the penalty date, returning them then to the county treasurer, who continues the collection process. The books go to the country town collectors for another three week collection period on the second installment of 1931 real estate taxes. The penalty date on that installment is July 1. Personal property taxes are payable in a single installment as in the past, with a penalty date fixed at May 1.

KERNER FIGHTS PLEA FOR U. S. REHEARING ON COOK CO. TAXES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—(AP)—Attorney General Otto Kerner of Illinois filed in the Supreme court today briefs opposing reviews of two Cook county tax cases testing the validity of Chicago real estate taxes, based on contention that personal property is not bearing a fair share of the tax burden.

The cases are those of Lillian Clear from the state courts and the American Mutual Liability Insurance company from the federal courts. Both had been decided against the real estate owners in lower courts.

The Illinois attorney general asserted the complainants had failed to exhaust their remedies before the board of review and declared both would have opportunity in Cook county courts to challenge the validity of taxes assessed when the county treasurer and collector brought suit to enforce payment of taxes.

The attorney general said Mrs. Clear made no return on her personal property and had not been assessed on it. This, Kerner said, placed her in no position to complain against the county's method of taxing personal property.

HOLD UP FUNDS TILL SALE OF FULL WARRANT QUOTA

The city, school board and county will get no cash for their employes' pay rolls from the sale of 1932 tax warrants by the Dewey committee until the committee reaches its goal of $41,000,000 in warrant subscriptions.

That information was given to Mayor Cermak yesterday by Charles S. Dewey, who undertook the direction of the warrant sales drive at the request of the Sargent committee on public expenditures. The first installments on subscriptions already made, which now exceed $8,000,000, are due tomorrow, but Mr. Dewey told the mayor that unless the committee reached its full quota the subscribers would be released from their pledges.

City Treasurer Kearns announced yesterday that funds were ready in his office to retire $700,000 worth of maturing school board bonds and to pay $46,000 in interest on other school board issues tomorrow, the maturity date. Arrangements to refund the bond issues were included in the plan worked out by the Sargent committee and banks at the first of the year to refund 23 millions in city and school bond obligations falling due.

Sackett in London; Will Discuss Economic Parley

[Copyright; 1933; By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Jan. 30.—Ambassador Frederic Sackett of the United States arrived in London from Geneva today on a brief visit concerning the world economic conference. The ambassador expects to interview several British bankers and economists on preparations for the conference. He expects to return to his post in Berlin Wednesday.

MAYOR CERMAK UNDECIDED ON SCHOOL POSTS

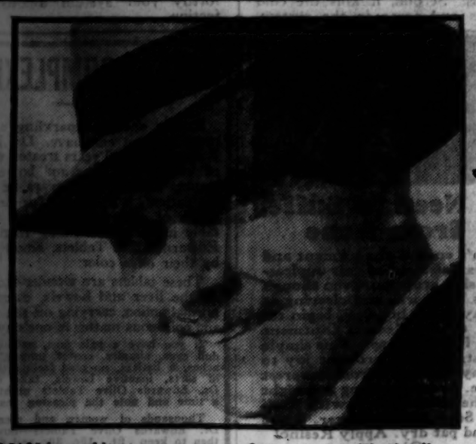

Mayor Cermak has no one in mind for the school board vacancies created by the resignation of Trustee Carter Blatchford and by the announced intention of President Lewis E. Myers to quit as soon as the school budget is finished, he said yesterday. He will not fill the Blatchford vacancy until after the budget is finished, he added.

The mayor made the statement after he had received delegations from the Chicago Woman's club, Woman's City club and Woman's University club, each of which presented him a list of proposed appointees having their indorsement.

"Some janitors and engineers are being paid more than teachers," Mayor Cermak told the women. "More money should be spent in the school system for educational purposes and less for operation and maintenance of buildings. If there is any way to take politics out of the schools I'll do it."

James Mulenbach, former trustee; Mrs. Samuel T. Lawton, president of the Association for Child Study and Parent Education, and Miss Dora Wells, a high school principal, received indorsements from all three clubs.

Fifty and Fit

A MAN is as old—or as young—as his organs.

Why go along with "fairly good health" when you might be enjoying vigor you haven't felt for years?

There's a simple little thing anyone can do to keep the vital organs stimulated, and feel fit all the time. People don't realize how sluggish they've grown until they've tried it. The stimulant that will stir your system to new life is Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin. It will make a most amazing difference in many ways.

This famous doctor's prescription is a delicious syrup made with fresh herbs, active senna, and pure pepsin. It starts its good work with the first spoonful. That's all you need to drive away the dullness and headache of a bilious spell, and rid the system of that slow poison that saps your strength. It's better than a tonic for tired bowels, and unlike habit-forming laxatives you can take it freely or give it to any child. And it isn't expensive.

Get some syrup pepsin today, and take a little tonight. Don't wait until you're sick to give your system this wonderful help. You can avoid those spells of biliousness or constipation. A spoonful every now and then is better than constant worry about the condition of your bowels, or fear of auto-intoxication as you grow older. Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin protects the system. All druggists keep this preparation.

N.O.R.P.E. WARNS U. S. IS SINKING DEEPER IN "RED"

Raps Lame Duck Congress for Temporizing.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Procrastination by the lame duck session of congress in cutting the cost of government is held to be the great obstruction to business recovery in a bulletin issued last night by the National Organization to Reduce Public Expenditures. The pamphlet sets forth that the total treasury deficit is fast approaching five billion dollars, while the excess of current expenditures over current revenues is putting America still further in the red at the rate of more than 100 million dollars a month.

What is happening at Washington in the welter of talk about economy is described by the N. O. R. P. E. in a few paragraphs about the budget. These show how proposed economies of 830 million dollars have been reduced to 246 millions, by the practice of lopping off dead wood in some items but adding to expenses in other items, robbing Peter to pay Paul and leaving the budget still out of balance.

750 Million Cut Urged.

The N. O. R. P. E. reiterates that an actual reduction of 750 millions in the ordinary operations of the federal government would, in fact, balance the budget without additional taxation, if sinking fund payments are excluded from the calculation.

Both Republican and Democratic parties pledged themselves to "drastic reductions" in their national platforms, and the N. O. R. P. E. says that a large majority of the candidates for congress to whom it sent its questionnaire in the recent campaign declared in favor of a reduction of not less than 750 million dollars.

Taking up the budget recommendations at Washington, the bulletin shows how the budget is inflated after apparently being deflated in the interest of economy.

"There are included in the budget," the N. O. R. P. E. pamphlet says, "reduction which aggregate 830 millions—a substantial amount. If the public could be assured that expenditures for 1934 would be 830 millions less than for 1933, that would be reason for abundant encouragement. But this is what happens!

The "Unavoidable Increases."

"First, there are 'unavoidable increases' in other items amounting to 250 millions. That reduces the prospective saving to 580 millions—still a substantial cut.

"Then we find there are holdover appropriations from preceding years which, when translated into actual expenditures for 1934, will further reduce prospective economies to 478 millions.

"But that is not all. Next we find that the measuring stick against which these savings are computed is, in fact, a sliding scale. When first we saw the total appropriated for 1933 it stood approximately at 4 billion dollars. That was the amount [$4,036,192,479, to be exact] announced when congress took its midyear recess.

"Now, principally by reason of a new and more liberal estimate of postal deficit and of demands on the adjusted certificate fund, it has risen to $4,268,888,400. This means we have 'slipped back' by the difference in these amounts [232 millions] and actual saving dwindles accordingly."

Another Hurdle Ahead.

After these passages showing how proposed economies of 830 million dollars are in fact cut to 246 millions, the pamphlet remarks:

"Finally, congress has yet to approve the budget recommendations. It may do so; again, it may not. Some of the proposed economies have hard sledding ahead. Others, apparently, await defeat. So in the end budget economies may be still further restricted."

The bulletin, which was issued over the names of George W. Rossetter, general chairman, and of the chairmen in the 48 states, declares that if all the economies proposed in the 1934 budget were adopted, the total contemplated expenditures would still be in the neighborhood of 4 billion dollars.

"But 4 billion dollars is where we started from," the bulletin remarks. "It approximates the high level of expenditures [exclusive of nonrecurring and theoretically repayable items] averaged during the years 1930-1932. It is 500 millions higher than the $3,493,584,519 of 1927, when we were 'hewing to the line' of orderly retrenchment, and practically level with the $3,848,463,189 of 1929, the peak year of popular extravagance.

"If this be economy, it is time to try a new brand. Public interest, duty, necessity, join in this mandate to the American congress: 'Act now—courageously, decisively, effectively—to provide real economy, to restore public confidence, to speed the recovery.'"

KILLS IN ARGUMENT

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Arthur Taylor, 47 years old, 3551 South Lincoln street, and August Radtke, 26 years old, 3559 South Lincoln street, were once friends and drinking companions. But when they drank together they fought and this brought on a chronic quarrel. Yesterday two mutual friends arranged a reconciliation. They invited Taylor to the basement of the Radtke home, where a large bottle of liquor passed from hand to hand in celebration of the truce. Soon it was forgotten there had been a reconciliation. Radtke hit Taylor and pulled the buttons off his coat and Taylor drew a pistol and killed Radtke. The killer and the peacemakers, Robert Bray and Charles Croddin, were taken into custody.

FRANK WAGNER PLAYS HOST TO A MONEY EXPERT

Frank Wagner, proprietor of a malt and hops store at 3136 Clybourn avenue, drew $10,000 from a bank several months ago. The bank closed and Wagner, congratulating himself on his foresight, took the money to his home at 3933 Bernard street and hid it in a secret closet behind the kitchen sink.

Last Friday a stranger, introduced by a mutual friend, rented a room from Wagner. He said he was an expert in chemicals and was conducting some experiments in the minting of money. Wagner let him have the room on the understanding that it was to be used as a laboratory.

BOMB DAMAGES FLAT BUILDING ON NORTH SIDE

Families living in the three story apartment building at 6040-42 Kenmore avenue were awakened early this morning by a bomb explosion. The bomb was placed inside the front entrance. The blast shattered the hall windows and damaged the side walls. Damage was estimated at about $200. No one was hurt.

CHRYSLER CALLS 1933 A YEAR OF OPPORTUNITY

Says Courage, Industry, Imagination Will Win.

Walter P. Chrysler, automobile manufacturer, in an address last night at a dinner for 2,500 DeSoto, Plymouth, Dodge and Chrysler dealers and salesmen, described 1933 as a year of opportunity for those with courage, imagination and industry.

WALTER P. CHRYSLER.

"I'm no prophet," he said, "maybe we have already come to the end of hard times and don't realize it. However, regardless of when the recovery arrives, those who will make the most of good times are those who are making the most of their opportunities during this depression.

"The country will come out of this depression. It will be pulled out of the depression by such leaders of private industry as are found in the automobile business. It's up to each of you dealers to keep your men profitably employed.

Praises Industry's Engineers.

"The engineers of the automotive industry have done and are doing a good job. They have worked hard and have accomplished much in the last couple of years in improving the motor vehicle. If the sales forces will exert as much imagination and effort, 1933 will witness Chrysler Motors corporation enjoying an even greater percentage of available business.

"There are hundreds of thousands of old automobiles that could be replaced by new cars with a saving of money to the owners through the lower cost of operating the new models. There are hundreds of thousands of motorists who are endangering the lives of their families by letting them ride in worn out cars. It's up to you salesmen to replace these unsafe and uneconomical vehicles."

Executives Among Guests.

Sitting at the table with Mr. Chrysler were: Col. R. R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE; Byron C. Foy, president of DeSoto; B. E. Hutchinson, president of Plymouth; J. E. Fields, president of Chrysler Sales corporation; John D. Ames, publisher of the Chicago Journal of Commerce; H. A. Scandrett, president of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad; Col. W. B. Causey, assistant U. S. commissioner at A Century of Progress; and Maj. L. R. Lohr, general manager of A Century of Progress. The dinner was held in the Naval armory at the foot of Randolph street.

The meeting was one of the largest that will take place during the National Automobile show, which is being held at the Coliseum this week. There was a general atmosphere of optimism at the dinner because the crowds attending the show are reported as even larger than during the boom years.

Hold "Oldest Car" Contest.

In an "oldest car" contest yesterday afternoon, the first prize was awarded to Glade Ralihan of Kendallville, Ind., for his 1895 two-cylinder Duryea. Earl Bronler of Rockford, Ill., was second with an 1897 Duryea, while third honors went to Joe E. Krick of Blue Island, whose 1899 Oldsmobile was still able to progress on its own power.

AUTOMOBILE SHOW NOTES

L. K. Cooper, Chevrolet regional manager, who has been in the automobile business here for thirty-one years, yesterday declared that the current motor show was attracting more public interest than any of its predecessors.

At Packard's precision show in the Edgewater Beach hotel yesterday, an instrument weighed the ink on the signature of Alvin Ex of the Ainslie hotel at one ten-millionth of a pound. Press agents said this was the shortest name in Chicago. The signature of Leon Stanley Szczepankiewicz, 2632 East 83d street, was weighed at twenty-two five-millionths. Instruments of such fine precision, on display at the hotel, are used for accuracy in automobile manufacturing.

J. C. Chick, general sales manager for Cadillac, yesterday announced the appointments of an eastern and a western assistant general sales manager. Head of the western division, with offices in Detroit, will be Don E. Ahrens, who was in Evanston in 1925. The eastern division head will be Ray L. Newton.

Oldsmobile claims to be the only manufacturer exhibiting in the current motor show that had space in the 1901 exhibition, which also was held in the Coliseum.

W. H. Beal, president of Auburn, will address a dealer meeting in the Stevens hotel this noon. N. E. McDarby, vice president in charge of sales, will preside.

Earl Butler, Hudson-Essex distributor, yesterday reported sales for the show exceeding last year's record by 14 per cent.

E. J. Poxson, Reo general sales manager, told his dealers yesterday that there are still 8,000,000 cars on the road with high pressure tires and 4,000,000 with two wheel brakes.

R. H. Grant, vice president of General Motors, told Buick-Olds-Pontiac salesmen at a luncheon in the Palmer House yesterday that "without making a definite prediction, there appears to be a possibility that 150,000 or 200,000 more new cars will be sold in 1933 than there were last year."

TEN ARRESTED IN FIRST FIGHT AT BRIGGS PLANT

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 30.—(AP)—The first minor disturbances in the week old strike of Briggs Manufacturing company employés occurred today as the 6,000 men who walked out last week ignored the deadline set for their return. Ten persons, three of them women, were under arrest and two men were treated in hospitals. This followed clashes between pickets and persons who, police said, attempted to enter the employment gates of the company's plants.

A Ford spokesman said tonight the company would wait a few days before taking whatever steps may be necessary to resume production.

The Briggs company declined to state the number of men who returned. Pickets attacked two men who, they declared, attempted to enter the gates to seek employment.

The strikers demand recognition of shop committees set up for settlement of grievances, and declared a strike is being organized in the plants of the Murray Corporation of America, also makers of auto bodies.

Clarence W. Avery, president of the Murray corporation, said that plant was shut down "about 80 per cent" because of an interlocking contract with the Briggs company. He said about 200 toolmakers had walked out.

Hit that COLD a Knock-Out Blow!

Don't Merely Tap It!

Many cold remedies merely pat a cold. They don't "put it out for keeps." That's why colds keep coming back and why they often develop into something serious. Many a case of Influenza has started with a "slight" cold.

A cold calls for a COLD remedy and nothing less. Preparations good for half a dozen things besides colds can't be equally effective for colds. Many of these preparations actually make a cold more difficult of relief because they are constipating and also make the system acid.

An Internal Infection Calls for Internal Treatment

A cold calls for internal treatment because a cold is an internal infection. Local or outside applications only allay a few of the symptoms and do not reach the real seat of the trouble.

At the first sign of a cold you can do nothing wiser than take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine soon puts an end to a cold because it does the four things necessary. First of all, it opens the bowels. Second, it kills the cold germs and fever in the system. Third, it relieves the headache and grippy feeling. Fourth, it tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack.

No Penalty!

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine may be safely taken by young and old. It contains nothing harmful and may be taken with impunity whether you are going to stay indoors or go out. For more than forty years Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine has been the standard cold and grippe tablet of the world, the formula keeping pace with Modern Medicine. Your doctor couldn't write a better prescription if he wanted to.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine now comes in two sizes—30c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and look for the initials L B Q stamped on every tablet. Reliable dealers will not try to sell you a substitute.

NOTE: During Epidemics a tablet or two of Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine will do much to fortify your system against infection.

W. PARK BOARD SEATED; VOWS TO PARE EXPENSES

Call for Audits to Show Financial Status.

Speeches made at the installation of six new members of the west park board yesterday all emphasized that the Democrats have taken over a heavy liability instead of an asset. The new commissioners, however, announced themselves as willing to face their task with courage and determination to rehabilitate the park system financially. They pledged themselves to economy.

The first order of business was the election of a new president. Harry Joseph, a lumber dealer, was chosen. Then on motion of Commissioner James O'Keefe a resolution was adopted in which it was stated:

"The condition of the finances of the west Chicago park commission is a matter of great concern to the public, and it is very desirable that a full, complete and accurate audit of the books and records be made for the purpose of disclosing the true condition of the finances of the board.

Call for Audit Figures.

"The president is directed to obtain at once all past or recent audits which may have been made and to obtain all reports as to the condition of the several properties under the jurisdiction of the board and to submit it to this board for its consideration."

Ald. John Clark of the 30th ward, which comprises a large part of the park district, was selected to act as master of ceremonies. He called upon Mayor Cermak first and the mayor responded with a talk on the lack of finances in the west park system, unemployment relief, and taxation. He said the people of the park district could place confidence in the new board.

Other speakers were County Recorder Clayton F. Smith, Patrick A. Nash, chairman of the Democratic county central committee; Judges Thomas J. Lynch, Harry M. Fisher, and Francis Borrelli, and Ald. Jacob M. Arvey. The new commissioners, President Joseph, James M. O'Keefe, Samuel Kostelny, A. J. Flynn, Thomas Gordon, and James C. Petrillo, were then introduced to the five hundred persons who crowded into the board room.

Ex-President Attends.

W. R. James, the retiring president of the board, was present. President Joseph said he had asked James for the audit recently made at the instance of the citizen's committee. Mr. James told him he did not have a copy, President Joseph asserted. George W. Rossetter, head of the Chicago Association of Commerce, whose company made the audit which was said to have revealed the park system as "hopelessly insolvent," said he had given Mr. James a copy of it. Members of the old board, Republicans appointed by former Gov. Emmerson, said James had not shown them the audit.

Late yesterday Fred W. Sargent, chairman of the citizen's committee, said he would see that President Joseph was given a copy of the audit, which had been kept from the public for the past three months.

Sergt. Michael Trant of the detective bureau, was appointed captain of West Park police, replacing William Schramm, whose resignation was accepted. Trant, besides his work in the loop for more than twenty years, is best known as a pal and bodyguard of Jack Dempsey, the former world's champion heavyweight fighter.

POISON VICTIM

RUTH BERMAN.

A search of twelve hours for Miss Ruth Berman, 24 years old, 1836 South Hamlin avenue, who disappeared from her place of employment in the Mallers building, ended in the county morgue last night.

Miss Berman died of poisoning. She was found in a room of the Hoover hotel, 3358 Jackson boulevard, where she had registered as Miss Rose Gordon. About 10 p. m. she telephoned for help to the hotel clerk, and William Douglas, a bellboy, responded. He found her semi-conscious and notified police. She was taken to the county hospital, where she died. In her room police found evidence of several burned letters.

Miss Berman was a cashier for Holsman & Co., jewelers in the Mallers building. She reported for work at 8 a. m. as usual, but about an hour and a half later disappeared. When she failed to return police were called and searched the building. Her aunt, Mrs. Rose Korogodsky, with whom Miss Berman lived, said the girl had been in good health and spirits.

Hunt Pupils with Grudge for School Vandalism

Vandals broke into the Columbus school at 2120 Augusta boulevard early yesterday and wrecked the office of the principal, William T. Born, causing property damage estimated at $500. Desks were overturned and records and ledgers scattered and torn. Ink and glue were smeared on the walls and ceiling. Because only the principal's office was damaged, school inspectors suspect pupils with a grudge were the vandals.

WHAT CELEBRITY IS TO GO FROM STATUARY HALL?

Each State Likely to Say: "Spare My Statue."

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Many a hero has feet of clay. But when he has legs of marble, look out. The floor on which he takes his stand for history is likely to cave in.

And that is why the supervising engineer of the capitol shivers and shudders every time he walks through Statuary hall [connecting the senate and house wing on the second floor of the capitol, and sees 65 massive marble or bulky bronze celebrities jammed together in a double row circle.

"My gosh," he probably muses to himself, "some day this floor's going to give way, and I hope I'm not here when it happens," quickening pace.

He phrased his fear more formally in his recent report to the joint senate and house committee on the library, in which he said:

"I do not regard the floor as being in an actually dangerous condition, but it does not have the degree of safety that is demanded by modern rules and practices. For this reason it should be relieved of part of its loading."

Two for Each State.

The committee, headed by Senator Fess [Rep., O.], nodded understandingly. The committee members, knowing that each of the forty-eight states is permitted two statues of deceased native celebrities and realizing that only 65 statues have yet been placed there, would well believe that if sixty-five illustrious citizens caused the floor to sag, ninety-six famous heroes would probably cause it to tumble completely. Some celebrity must get out, but which one?

The choice presents much the same dilemma as did the writing of the tax bill last year. Then each state said grandly, "Sure, we're for taxes, but spare my industry." Now each state agrees, "Clear out a lot of those statues, but save my two citizens."

New Hampshire roots for her Daniel Webster and John Stark; Virginia says it would be a sacrilege to kick out either George Washington or Robert E. Lee; Massachusetts argues that it wouldn't be seemly to throw Samuel Adams or John Winthrop on the ash pile.

And so it goes.

Weather Is a Factor.

Representative Robert Luce [Rep., Mass.] thought he saw the way out when he suggested that all the statues be placed outside in a grand boulevard. Then somebody pointed out that many of the gentlemen are builded of foreign bronzes or marbles that wouldn't stand the Washington weather. So that idea was out.

Representative Ruth Baker Pratt [Rep., N. Y.] said she thought it would be fair to permit each state to have one celebrity in the hall—that would make only forty-eight pairs of marble legs to bear down on the floor—and to scatter the other forty-eight heroes around about the town.

Representative Kent Keller [Dem., Ill.] is optimistic about the way statesmen believe in art for art's sake. "We'll present a bill to congress calling for the removal from Statuary hall of some of these statues, and they'll agree to it. They want the place to look artistic, and it certainly doesn't now."

It certainly doesn't, Mr. Keller. Many a Washingtonian dubs it "chamber of horrors."

"If we permit each state to have one native celebrity in the hall proper," said Representative Keller, "I am sure the states will be fair and try to coöperate. The other statues could be placed appropriately and artistically in other centers of interest about Washington."

No Standardization.

Not only the crowding but the variety of workmanship and particularly the variety of dimensions of the statues disturbs Mr. Keller's artistic eye.

"There is no standardization about the statues," he protests. "Take that one of Bob La Follette [the senior]; why, he was a small man and the sculptor has made him a giant compared to the statues around him. Then there's George Washington. He was a fairly large man, and he looks like a pygmy compared to the figures near him."

As for Illinois, Mr. Keller believes that whatever plan is adopted, Illinois will be allowed to have her statue of Frances Willard in the main statuary hall. It is the only woman in the group. Illinois' other celebrity in stone is James Shields.

Of course, if the committee wished, it could send some of the statues down to the first floor where now resides a statue of three famous women: Lucretia Mott, Susan B. Anthony, and Elizabeth Cady Stanton.

Famous as these women are, and eager as many tourists are to see them, fidelity to the truth obliges me to tell you that the sculptoring of their heads, all rising out of a block of marble, has caused them to be referred to as "the three ladies in a bathtub."

Don't Let Those Little Bald Spots Become Big Ones

See Thomas' at Once

Almost before you know it, those little bald spots on the (1) frontal, (2) crown or (3) temple may become large bare areas—unless you do something NOW to stop your abnormal hairfall at these points, and promote natural hair growth. The Thomas' scalp treatment presents a dependable method of keeping those little bald spots from becoming big ones. Thomas' treatment not only stops falling hair, but it promotes a healthy scalp condition, conducive to the growth of hair.

Twenty or thirty years ago it was almost impossible to prevent baldness. Today, the modern, scientific Thomas' treatment has replaced old-fashioned, haphazard methods with modern, scientific precision. This reliable, proved treatment actually goes to the basic source of your own specific scalp trouble—and by overcoming the cause, results in restoring the scalp to a normal, healthy condition. In this manner Thomas' scalp treatment acts as Nature's assistant and makes it possible for hair to grow naturally where it has been hindered by some abnormal scalp condition. Dandruff infection is relieved and hairfall stops.

The Thomas' are reliable scalp specialists. They will tell you frankly if your trouble does not come within their scope of treatment—and they accept for treatment only those for whom they conscientiously feel they can produce the anticipated results. This code of ethics has resulted in their growth to a chain of more than 45 offices from coast to coast, in fifteen years.

No charge is made for a complete Thomas' scalp examination at any time. Come into the nearest office today and learn the truth about your hair and scalp.

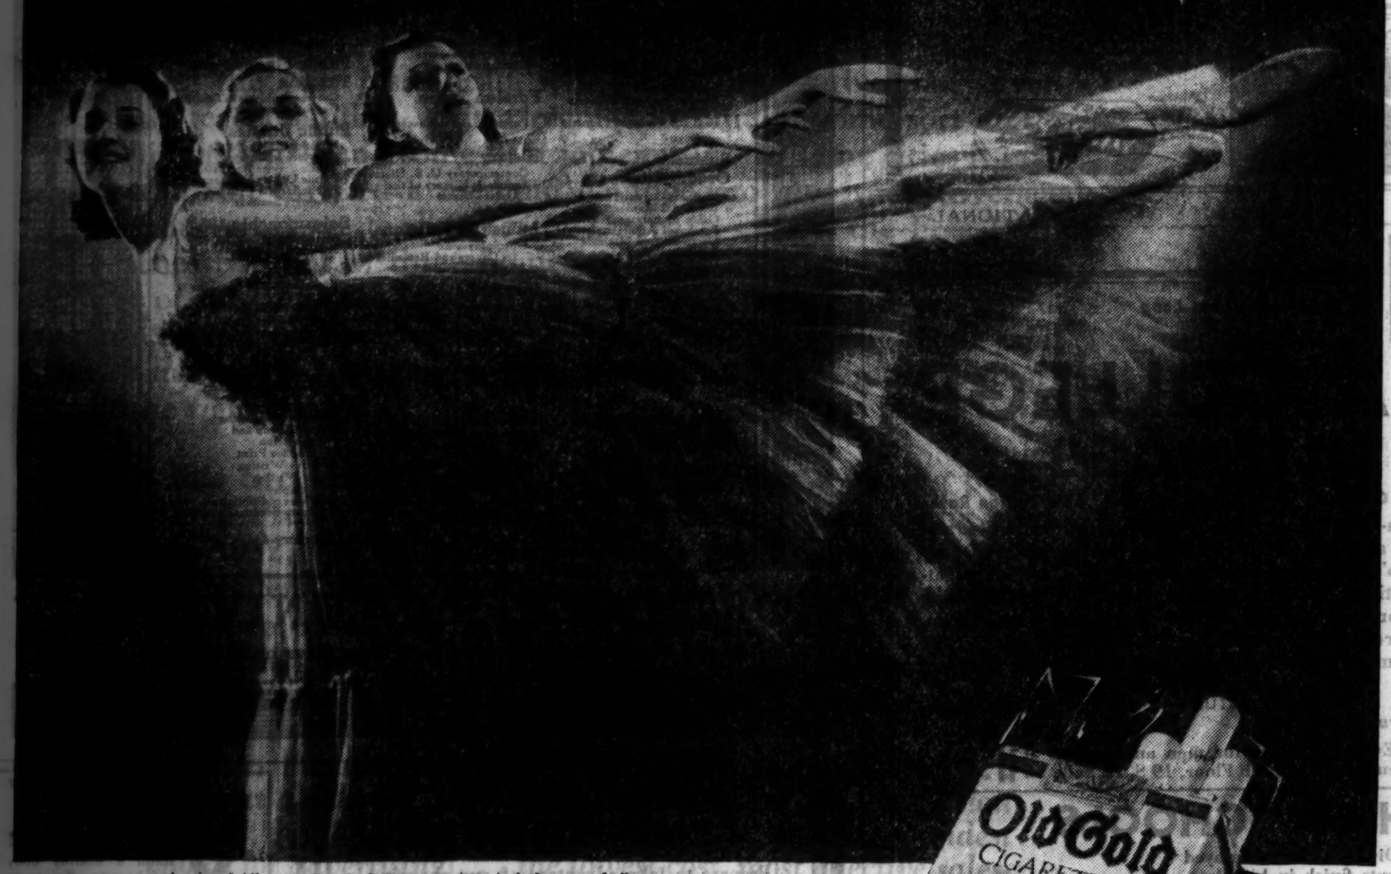

Call at Thomas' office for a free scalp examination or write to The Thomas General Offices, 844 Rush Street, Chicago, for booklet, "How to Retain or Regain Your Hair."

ABSOLUTE SMOOTHNESS! That's the secret of the rhythm and grace of an Albertina Rasch ballet.

Smoothness is vital in a cigarette, too. It's the reason for OLD GOLD'S famous throat-ease, the inspiration of "not a cough in a carload," the basis of its winning taste.

The reason is simple. OLD GOLD is free of artificial flavorings. It is made of queen-leaves, the silkiest of all Turkish and domestic tobaccos. Nature-flavored; Nature-pure.

BUSINESS GROUP BARS ABLIN ON COURTNEY ORDER

Filling Station Operators Meet Prosecutor.

Officers and directors of the Chicago Service Station Operators' association yesterday promised State's Attorney Courtney that Dave [Cockeyed Mulligan] Ablin, the racketeer, would not be tolerated as leader or member of their organization. The action was taken after the state's attorney had declared war on all business associations dominated by racketeers.

The four officers and 32 directors of the association were summoned to the office of the state's attorney by subpoena. The meeting was called in answer to rumors that Ablin planned to seize control of the association and exact tribute from the filling station owners. After the 36 officials of the service station operators' association had gathered in one room the state's attorney entered.

Questioned by Prosecutor.

"Now," he said, "how did Ablin get in your association?"

"We had planned to affiliate with the Chicago Public Garage Owners' association to save expenses," Secretary A. Mickelson explained. "We found Ablin employed by that organization as a detail man."

"I'll say he's a detail man," the state's attorney interrupted. "This man, who has no qualifications for any job, is selected for a position an honest man should have."

Mickelson protested that he knew nothing about the reputation of Ablin. "And besides," he told Mr. Courtney, "Ablin has done good for the garage owners by educational work."

"Yes," the state's attorney told him, "Ablin's a great educator. What do you suppose caused all the bombings?"

"O, I thought maybe a personal grudge," Mickelson replied.

A Warning to Association.

"Did it ever occur to you that they might have been used for intimidation by hoodlums?" the state's attorney inquired. "Either you men can drop Ablin and coöperate with me—or you can have Ablin. You can't have both. I will not stand for any association or organization which racketeers control. I am not going to have organizations built up to support Ablin or any other racketeer. I am tired of having business men criticizing the officials and at the same time supporting such men as Ablin."

"Is Ablin an official of the garage owners' association?" President Elmer H. Dens of the filling station organization asked Mr. Courtney.

"I don't know," the state's attorney replied; "that's for you to find out before you affiliate yourself with an organization."

The officers and directors of the service station owners then gathered in a separate meeting of their own. Attorney M. L. Fine came out of the huddle bearing a statement.

"In view of the attitude of the state's attorney," he said, "we have decided not to join the garage owners' association."

Attorney Fine explained that the service station organization is made up of substantial citizens in sympathy with the state's attorney's war against crime. They did not know, the attorney said, that Ablin was a racketeer.

Mother Sentenced for Drowning Three Children

Gets 1 to 14 Years

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Charleston, Ill., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Mrs. Inez Steed Carrell, 29, a widow from Chicago, who drowned her three small children in a bathtub on Oct. 21, pleaded guilty to manslaughter today. Circuit Judge Murray Clark sentenced her to one to fourteen years in the Illinois reformatory for women.

She had been indicted on three charges of murder but the state consented to allow her to plead to only one indictment. State's Attorney J. I. Dilsaver said the additional indictments would not be quashed but that they would not be pressed now.

The three children, June, 11; Robert, 7, and Mary Ellen, 5, were found dead in a hotel room in Mattoon. After drowning them the mother had carefully laid them out on a bed, combed their hair, and covered them with a sheet. She then drank poison in an unsuccessful effort to commit suicide.

Her discouragements over her battle to maintain herself and the children caused her to kill them and seek death. She said her husband, Elwood Carrell, who died five years ago, left her $3,500.

Then came the depression. She lost her job and the rest of her little fortune was wiped out in the crash of utility stocks.

In ordering her sentence, Judge Clarke spoke sympathetically.

"I have no idea," said the judge, "that any sort of human punishment will add to your grief. You have the utmost sympathy of the court and I believe of the public. If your conduct is such that you are entitled to it, you will be subject to parole in one year."

Robber Is Held to Grand Jury; Identified by Woman

CRIMINAL COURT.

Demos Wilson and Lester Johnson, malicious mischief, sentenced to 1 year each in the Bridewell by Judge Michael Feinberg.

William Nega, 23 years old, 2042 West Huron street, seized with eight other men and two women early Saturday in a raid on a bungalow at 2531 North Meade avenue, was held to the grand jury on a charge of robbery yesterday by Municipal Judge Harold P. O'Connell. Mrs. Catherine Misecka identified him as one of three men who robbed her of $42 on Nov. 14 in her delicatessen at 2200 North Kildare avenue. The other prisoners taken in the raid were freed. Among them was George R. Baker, 1452 North Kedzie avenue, who is reported slated for the presidency of the coal teamsters' union, which was dominated by Red Barker until he was killed by machine gunners.

HEAD OF LATIN SCHOOL QUITS IN ROW WITH BOARD

Northrop Lays Blame on Depression.

George N. Northrop, headmaster for the last six years of the Chicago Latin School for Boys, 1531 North Dearborn parkway, yesterday announced his resignation and confirmed recent rumors that insurmountable differences have arisen between himself and the board of trustees of the institution.

At the same time one of the trustees, Edward L. Ryerson Jr., said: "It is true that Mr. Northrop's contract with the school, expiring this June, has not been renewed."

Attorney W. W. Dixon, vice president and spokesman for the board in the absence of the president, Lawrence Viles, who is in Europe, said: "We prefer to have the formal announcement come from Mr. Viles. It is a delicate situation."

Headmaster Gives His Side.

Mr. Northrop explained his side of the difference with the board as arising largely from the depression. He also said the trustees had misunderstood an agreement which he said was made at the time he came to Chicago from the Brearley school in New York.

"I came to the Latin school with the distinct understanding that my function was purely to maintain and raise the scholastic standard of the school," he said. "I did not come as a business manager. Then came the depression. The number of pupils decreased with a consequent decrease of income. My salary of $12,000 a year was cut to $10,000 and the other teachers took a 10 per cent cut.

"Arrangements for a retirement annuity for the teachers were dropped, causing me considerable embarrassment, as I had obtained the services of several excellent teachers largely by assuring them that the annuity provision had been made.

"Refuses to Take Blame."

"I feel that I have done what I promised to do for the school. I refuse to take the blame for financial reverses caused by the depression.

Mr. Northrop said that the trustees had appointed James O. Wood as his successor, Mr. Wood is at present a member of the Latin school faculty.

Other members of the board of trustees of the school, none of whom would comment on the differences with Mr. Northrop, are John Winterbotham, Lester Armour, Edward A. Cudahy Jr., Philip L. Reed and Charles Daniel Frey.

SUIT IS STARTED TO FORECLOSE ON TEMPLE SHOLOM

A foreclosure suit against the Temple Sholom, 3480 Lake Shore drive, was started in the United States District court yesterday. The suit was filed by the law firm of Ashcraft & Ashcraft on behalf of the Western and Southern Life Insurance company of Cincinnati.

The bill of complaint charges that the defendant has defaulted in interest and principal payments of $20,000 on a $700,000 mortgage held by the insurance company. The petition asks that the court determine whether payments can be made and, if it is found they cannot, that the property be sold under a foreclosure decree.

ARRAIGN 300 FOR FAILURE TO GET STORE LICENSES

More than 300 tradesmen, including 75 beer flat and speakeasy owners, were arraigned before Municipal Judge Robert J. Dunne yesterday for failure to get city licenses.

Warrants were issued promptly for the arrest of all those who failed to answer the call of their names. The courtroom was so crowded that many of the defendants had to wait in the corridor outside and a bailiff was stationed there to relay the clerk's calling of names.

Many of the legitimate tradesmen protested their inability to pay the license fees. Most of them were granted short continuances. Judge Dunne said he would suggest an amendment to the law whereby license fees could be paid in installments. Several of the speakeasy proprietors also protested that the beer business was so bad that they were unable to pay the license demanded for the dispensing of soft drinks.

HORSE SUPPLY IS UNDER DEMAND IN ERA OF SURPLUS

Prices Firm While Other Farm Products Drop.

BY PAUL POTTER.

There may be excess reserve stocks of farm grains, livestock products, fruits and vegetables, lumber and other materials produced on American farms. But the supplies of horses and mules not only are the lowest in two decades, but they are less than are needed to meet current and future demands on the farm.

These facts were disclosed yesterday in a report issued by the Horse Association of America, showing that, in terms of quantities of other farm products required to pay for a horse, horse prices are now the highest since the world war. The demand has been sufficient to induce western ranchmen to round up the wild horses in the Rocky mountain states and deliver them in carload lots to midwest or southern markets, as well as to ship them into Canada.

Bes. for Milk Deliveries.

The horse market at the Chicago stockyards continues to show a steady demand for work horses and mules from farmers, although few calls come from the city dray or express companies which once were heavy users. However, there is still a demand for horses by dairy companies, which report they have been unable to supplant the horse for delivery service in congested areas where he is as valuable as an "extra man" in milk deliveries.

The number of horses on farms declined about 3 per cent during 1932, according to Wayne Dinsmore, secretary of the Horse association. He estimates that government reports to be issued soon will show a horse population on farms of 12,299,000, or scarcely more than two horses for every farm in the country. There are only about 5 million mules on farms, he estimates.

These figures indicate that horse and mule population on farms has been reduced some 42 per cent in 14 years. Between Dec. 15, 1929, and Dec. 15, 1932, according to government figures, farm prices of horses declined 27 per cent while the prices of all farm products declined 61 per cent. During the last year, when the average farm price for a farm horse remained at $56, farm prices generally dropped nearly one-fourth.

Horse Worth Ton of Pork.

"In 1918 it took 54 bushels of corn to buy a farm 'chunk' or workhorse," states Dinsmore. "Today, although horse prices have come down $25 a head, it requires 312 bushels of corn. In the same comparison, it took 118 bushels of oats or 613 pounds of fat hogs in 1918 to buy a horse [illegible] here today it takes 441 bushels of oats or 2,380 pounds of fat hogs."

Increase in trading in horses and mules in Iowa was reported yesterday by Harry Linn, at Des Moines. Linn, field man for the Iowa Horse and Mule Breeders' association, said the demand from eastern buyers had exceeded the supplies in recent sales, resulting in buyers traveling into the country for direct purchasing.

C. M. Rear of Saskatoon, Canada, who has been in Iowa this month buying Percheron stallions for his Canadian market, declared that "the Canadian market in the future must look to the states to fill their orders, rather than to Europe as in the past."

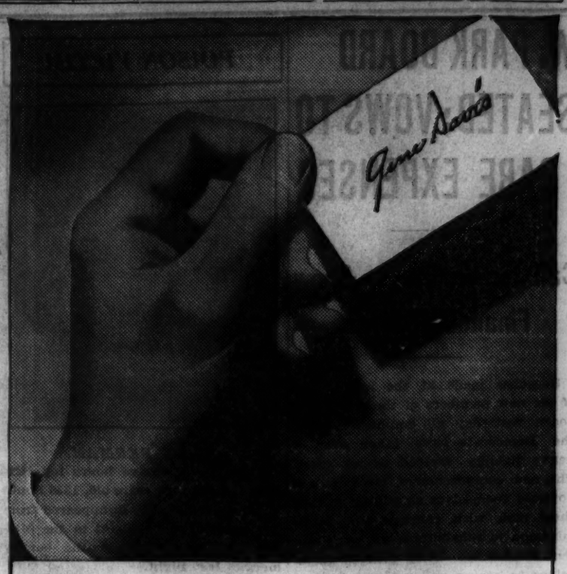

AUTO THEFTS.

Charles Fitch, sentenced to 30 days for auto theft. Motion for probation Feb. 11. Archie Allen, Jerry Svoboda, and Joseph Stanci held to the grand jury for auto larceny.

BOLTS HIS LUNCH

—but his digestion is "clicking"

What the man with a "cast-iron stomach" really has is six-hour digestion. If you suffer from a slow stomach, taking soda won't help matters. Do this:

Get some diapepsin at the drug store. Each tablet saves the stomach half an hour's work. If your digestion is an hour slow, two tablets after eating will correct it. No distress. Not even any gas or sourness. Take this precaution after every heavy or hurried meal until your stomach seems able to do its work without help.

Pape's Diapepsin has ended all food fear for many men and women who once had to pamper their stomachs.

9 OUT OF 10 AUTOMOBILES IN DETROIT ARE SOLD IN THE DISTRICTS WHERE THE FREE PRESS REACHES

DURING 1932, Wayne County absorbed 32,084 new automobiles with a total cash valuation of $26,700,000. But .... in certain sections of the City of Detroit, there were months when not one single automobile sale was made .... where buying power is reduced to an almost irreducible minimum, and yet .... there is newspaper circulation of a type in these neighborhoods, for which advertisers pay.

In these particular districts, the per capita dollar volume of automobile sales was only $5.19 for the year. In the better-buying districts of the city .... those in which Free Press circulation is heaviest .... the per capita dollar volume ran as high as $57.66, or ELEVEN TIMES AS MUCH. There is the distinction with a difference that marks out markets and points out the road for all advertisers intent upon seeking out the buyer, without wasting money on those who cannot purchase.

During the year just ahead, it is almost imperative that advertising reach families with a regular income of some sort and a willingness to spend some of it judiciously. In some cities it may be difficult to find a medium equipped to give such coverage without great waste, but not in Detroit. Here, the Free Press reaches two out of three homes in those districts in which nine out of ten automobile sales are made .... where the per capita purchasing power is highest .... where 80% of all retail sales are made .... where you may point advertising more tellingly at the right people.

Plus this circulation focused upon Detroit's true buying power, The Free Press offers reader-interest of a most imposing sort. During 1932, 445,213 voluntary letters were received from its women-readers alone .... a record of reader-response surpassed by only two other newspapers in America. Reader interest in the Free Press is something alive .... vital .... something you can take hold of with advertising and make a profit from.

Consider the advertising assets of all Detroit newspapers ... "look at all three," in the light of today. Your conclusion will be that the Free Press is the safest, sanest, soundest choice for advertising ... the lowest-cost, most effective sales-making medium you can put to work in the Fourth Market.

NEW LOW WANT AD RATES!

The Chicago Tribune Announces Sweeping Reductions in Want Ad Rates Effective Tomorrow

GOOD NEWS . . . exciting news . . . the best that homeowners, landlords, real estate operators, automobile dealers, trade schools, housewives —all who need and want to use want ads—could ask.

The new Daily and Sunday Tribune want ad rates . . . adjusted squarely to the times . . . effective tomorrow . . . place results in Chicago's most powerful advertising medium, its most productive want ad section, on a new lower-cost basis.

You can now run your want ad in the Tribune more often and tell more. And the more you tell, the quicker you sell. Test and experience have proved this fact beyond the shadow of a doubt. Want ads that are too brief . . . that lack convincing detail . . . that do not assure the reader that what you have to offer will satisfy him—cannot have the success of an ad that sets out fully, clearly and interestingly the details of your offer. The more complete the information you give, the better the reader can picture your offer, the more inviting it will seem, the more he will want to investigate it.

Thus the new low Tribune want ad rates bring you additional, timely help! Now you can advertise more vigorously, more often . . . with even greater results. They enable all—employers, job-hunters, real estate agents, warehouses, personal loan companies, pet shops—to use larger space . . . to run ads more often . . . in order to tell in full their qualifications or the selling points of their offerings in the medium that gets results.

Every year for more than twenty years the Tribune has carried more want advertising than any other Chicago newspaper. A leadership earned by service . . . the result of satisfying customers . . . an expression of the common conviction—that the only place in which advertising really gets results is in the Tribune.

Take advantage of the new low Tribune want ad rates. Place your story before the hundreds of thousands of Tribune families . . . far more in Chicago and suburbs alone than read any other Chicago paper . . . the able-to-buy people who respond to advertising when it appears in the Tribune.

Put the selling power of the Tribune behind your proposition right away. Tell your story appealingly . . . more forcefully . . . more successfully. Order your first insertion to run in tomorrow's Tribune.

SAMMIS, MILLS WIN PRAISE FOR HANDLING REDS

Lincoln Park Police Chief May Retain Post.

Maj. James U. Sammis, chief of Lincoln park police, and Lieut. Make Mills and his industrial squad of the city police, shared honors yesterday in a resolution adopted by Advertising Men's post of the American Legion for the manner by which they controlled Saturday's communist demonstration directed against the Japanese consulate.

Their action was termed "effective" and as "preventing a serious riot," in the language of the resolution which won unanimous approval. Maj. Sammis had trained his men for ten days and supplied them with steel helmets and other equipment, in readiness for any kind of disturbance, no matter how severe.

Police Prevent Disorder.

With the park police stationed north of the Michigan avenue bridge and Lieut. Mills and men, also specially trained, south of the bridge, the demonstration was controlled without serious disorder. A number of the communists were arrested.

This public recognition of the officers' preventive action yesterday led to reports that Maj. Sammis—who ranks as captain of the park police but is generally referred to by his military title—would be retained by the new board of Lincoln park commissioners, recently appointed by Gov. Horner and confirmed by the state senate.

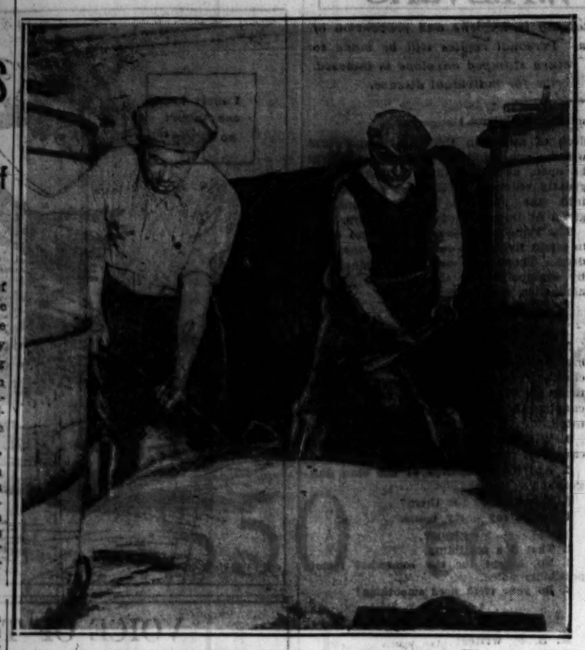

Maj. Sammis took his present post two years ago by appointment of the Republican board headed by Warren H. Wright. Recognition of his military service led to his appointment and he has been credited with placing the force on a semi-military basis with a resulting increase in discipline and efficiency. The department operates under the written order system, which Maj. Sammis has found practical.

Fights in Regular Army.

His military record extends back to the Pershing punitive expedition into Mexico in 1916, in which Maj. Sammis served as a "buck private, rear rank," in the 2d Iowa infantry. Returning in March, 1917, to his home in Sioux City, he went almost immediately to the first officer's training camp, Fort Snelling, Minn., and emerged a second lieutenant. He went overseas with the 88th division, and when that Iowa national army division was broken up for replacements, Lieut. Sammis was transferred to the Third division, a regular army outfit which saw much combat service.

At the close of the war Sammis was discharged as a first lieutenant. He entered the Illinois National Guard as a captain in 1926, and was promoted eventually to command of the special troops of the 33rd division as a major. He still holds that post.

KILLED BY BOMB ON CAR STARTER; WIFE ARRESTED

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 30.—(AP)—A bomb placed under the hood of his automobile brought death today to Joseph Minor, middle aged food merchant. The bomb exploded as he stepped on the starter of his machine.

Shortly before his death in a hospital Minor made a statement, police said, in which he accused his wife and brother-in-law, Frank De Goris, 37, of placing the bomb. Both were arrested and held without charge for questioning. Police said Minor told them he had had several recent quarrels with his wife over money matters.

The explosion occurred as Minor was getting ready to go to work. As he stepped on the starter a sheet of flame arose from the front of the automobile. Parts were thrown 50 feet in the air and Minor was found in the wreckage. He died three hours later.

De Goris was acquitted of a murder charge in 1926 after the shooting of another brother-in-law, Anthony Piccilo.

Total of 28 Prison Years for Robbing Man of Cent

Denver, Col., Jan. 30.—(AP)—Three Denver Negroes—Bob Philips, Henry Lee, and Joe Conway—were sentenced today to prison sentences totaling 28 years for robbing W. S. Bohanon of one cent. They were charged with robbery with a gun. Bohanon got his penny back.

Police Help U. S.

Federal dry agents headed by Elliot Ness raided a one story brick building at 2057 West 22d place last night, and found what they described as one of the largest stills in the city. Two men and a boy were arrested. Marquette police aided in the raid.

In the place also were eight vats of mash, each of 3,000 gallons capacity. Much of the apparatus, including the still, was newly installed and appeared to have been in use only a few hours when the raiders appeared.

Those arrested were Peter Sarussi, 18 years old, 2424 South Oakley avenue; Joseph Caccavalo, 38, of 545 North Central Park avenue, and Lawrence Thredici, 55, of 2105 Coulter street.

SEVEN ABSENT AT PARTY ESCAPE DEATH IN BLAST

An explosion and fire wrecked a two story brick apartment building at 846 Miller street with damage of $5,000 early yesterday. Seven tenants escaped death because they had remained at a party until early morning.

The explosion, apparently caused by gas, shattered the sidewalls and showered the neighborhood with debris. Joseph Carsello and his son-in-law, Anthony Codudi, and their families occupied the building.

250,000 BRITISH WORKERS PLAN DEMONSTRATION

Fight Economy Measures in Help for Idle.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 30.—More than 250,000 members of British trade unions will converge in Hyde Park next Sunday as a protest against the government's economy measures in connection with helping the idle.

Special trains are chartered to bring members from all parts of England. Processions will march from various points in London to Hyde Park, accompanied by bands and carrying banners. A large force of police will accompany the demonstrators.

A Trade Union Congress official said today: "We are staging the demonstration merely as a form of protest before the opening of parliament in order to impress the government with the necessity of doing something immediately. We have banned communists, independent labor party members, and members of the unemployed workers' movement. I cannot say what will happen if they insist on joining our procession. A decision will have to be taken at that time.

"Ours is a peaceful protest against the government's policy, and no petition will be presented. This is quite unnecessary, as the procession will be headed by many labor members of parliament and, being such, they could present our case in the house in the proper manner, which they probably will do in the form of bringing the demonstration to the notice of the government when parliament opens. We do not anticipate trouble."

Nevertheless, police authorities, mindful of the recent riot in Hyde Park, when a mob marched against the palace of the king, will take no chances. Special constables will be on duty, controlling traffic and performing other duties to relieve the regular police, who will be massed at Hyde Park in case of emergency.

Mrs. Lionel Atwill Rallies from Emergency Operation

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 30.—(AP)—Mrs. Lionel Atwill, wife of the motion picture actor, was reported tonight to be in good condtion at the hospital where she underwent an emergency operation yesterday. Her surgeon declined to divulge the nature of her ailment. Mrs. Atwill is the daughter of Edward T. Stokesbury and is the former wife of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

SOAKING THE MOTOR USER.

The formation of another organization to fight destructive taxation is a welcome announcement. The Illinois Highway Users' conference should energize the automotive industry and all motor users to enter the fight against government expenditure.

In the effort to get more revenue for spending and thus avoid the necessity of retrenchment, legislative bodies everywhere have turned upon the gas taxes and have piled other taxes upon the car user until the point of strangulation is being neared. The president of the Auburn Automobile company, Mr. Beal, calls attention to an increase of sixty million dollars in automobile taxes in the last year. In 1931 owners of motor cars, he reports, paid $1,025,735,112 for the privilege of using their cars. In 1932 it cost them $1,085,000,000, although the total revenue from taxation from all sources had gone down. In 1931 they paid 10 per cent of all tax revenue in the United States. In 1932 the percentage must have been still higher.

This situation ought to be faced by the automotive industry and all contributing industries, and especially by the millions of car users throughout the United States. They should organize to make their demand for public retrenchment effectual. The tax spenders are showing little disposition to give relief. They will go on piling up the tax burden unless it means for them political disaster. If they go on it will mean disaster for the nation. The revival of the motor industry is one of the chief hopes of reëmployment. Its paralysis by excessive taxation would be a national calamity.

It can be prevented by determined organized action. The National Organization to Reduce Public Expenditures is already at work in many of the states. Twelve states of the upper Mississippi valley through its representatives in this body have just sent a message to congress to cut out pork and economize. The demand should be supported throughout the country, and state and local spending agencies should also hear from the people. In this fight for public and private solvency the automotive industry and the motor users should be in the front line.

NO EXCUSE FOR MORE VOLSTEAD ABUSES.

Chicago will do well to take preliminary steps toward clearing up as many of the liquor rackets as possible before modifications of the Volstead act and repeal of the eighteenth amendment throw communities back on their own responsibility for their conditions. When a people assert their innate right to the conduct of their own affairs in such things as the use of intoxicating beverages they accept accountability for conditions. They should and they must.

There's another matter. This region, now in company with the greater part of the United States, has repudiated the theory of national prohibition time after time. The point was included in the reasons which made the Republican state of Illinois Democratic in the last election. The people are therefore entitled to receive from a Democratic federal administration some recognition of their wants, of their decisions, and their rights.

Such recognition will exclude from their territory the major nuisances, offenses, and crimes of federal prohibition enforcement. It will exclude the federal gunman and stool pigeon, the entrapment man and the depravity of using the female purchasing agent. So far as a majority of the people of the United States can express their will and obtain government according to it the Volstead act is dead. Its abuses should be stopped immediately.

THE MARCHING GERMAN REPUBLIC.

The United States is the world's oldest existing republic and Germany the greatest of its new ones, but the two may look at each other and the United States at least must wonder how the other exists. The answer probably is in development and discipline, for certainly to Americans the military organization of conflicting political parties diametrically opposed in principle could mean only a quick explosion, dismemberment, and either anarchy or rearrangement into smaller units.

But we no doubt overlook the fact that we became a republic by driving out virtually all the people violently opposed to our new ideas and that our party system grew from a simple division of opinion later. It is not often that Americans are unable to satisfy their political differences by adhering to one or the other of two great parties. One wins, one loses, and if thereafter there are marching men the march is to celebrate an accepted victory and not to express a bitter protest.

We could not conceive of stability or permanence in the terms of reichsbanner divisions, Hitlerite corps, communistic armies, and other regimented, uniformed, and goose-stepping partisans who apparently wanted nothing so much as each other's blood. One day's parade of such competent, disciplined, numerous, and zealous partisans would fill us with the most profound conviction that our days in a federated union were numbered. The German may have his doubts, but obviously he does not despair. He looks at these armies as natural expressions of the regimenting, gymnastic habits which have formed a part of German life. The American forms of coöperation have not been directed so much by the drilled masses. What in America would mean unquestioned if not immediate war may be kept within the bounds of administration, although there is occasional fighting in the new republic of central Europe.

EUROPE RE-ENTERS AMERICA.

Secretary Stimson, proceeding with his reformation of American foreign policy, last week began to dispose of the Monroe Doctrine He invited to a conference on the controversy between Peru and Colombia Paul Claudel, the ambassador of France; Sir Ronald Lindsay, the ambassador of Great Britain; Katsuji Debuchi, the ambassador of Japan.

The controversy between Peru and Colombia is a purely American affair. It would be fantastic to argue that it threatens in any degree the peace of France, Great Britain, Japan, or, in Mr. Stimson's favorite phrase, the peace of the world. The intervention, even a diplomatic appearance, of European governments in the affair would, in pre-Stimson days, have been considered a breach of American policy and would have brought a stern rebuke from the government at Washington. But Mr. Stimson not only does not protest; he invited European coöperation.

The Kellogg-Briand treaty, in Mr. Stimson's interpretation, is the sanction of this invitation. France, Great Britain, and Japan are signatories of that treaty. Mr. Stimson, as we have pointed out hitherto, imposes upon us an obligation of consultation with any or all signatories whenever peace is threatened or disturbed anywhere in the world. By this process of reasoning European nations are not only authorized to enter any controversy on this continent but the United States government is authorized to invite their consultation and coöperation.

No such interpretation of the Kellogg pact has yet been authorized by the senate or the people of the United States. Had it been intimated in the senate when it was passing upon the Kellogg pact the treaty would have been promptly refused.

The President elect is reported to have approved Mr. Stimson's notions of our foreign policy. Does this approval include the abrogation of the Monroe Doctrine? The fact that Mr. Stimson's action was invited by the Colombian government is not relevant to the policy upheld by the United States heretofore, which is a policy of the United States opposing the interference of European governments in the affairs of the American continent.

If that policy is now to be abandoned in favor of a policy of coöperation with Europe in the adjustment of American controversies the transformation should not be accomplished by a secretary of state, nor by the President, but by and with the consent of the senate. And it should not be accomplished by either or both without a full consideration of its implications and consequences, nor without full public discussion.

The Stimson doctrines and proceedings represent the most extraordinary assumption of authority in the history of our government. If approved by constitutional authority they constitute a revolutionary departure from American tradition and policy. If the senate has not surrendered its duties and responsibilities with regard to our foreign affairs it will not permit this departure to be accomplished without its due consideration and deliberate consent. If the American people are not so preoccupied with domestic problems as to be heedless of the nation's commitments and policies in its foreign relations, they will not permit any such departure to be made without their consideration and consent.

EXPANSION OF AIR TRANSPORT.

Postmaster General Brown is to be congratulated and thanked for his enterprise in increasing the facilities for air travel between Chicago and New York. Among changes and expansions in the airways, three lines between the two principal cities will be provided where now there is but one. We are confident that the increase will be promptly justified by public patronage. The growth of air travel is primarily dependent upon the extension of facilities, so far as the connection of important airports is concerned. Chicago and New York are the principal points in the national system, and the expansion of their facilities is the backbone of an intelligent national policy of air transport. The heaviest air mail, passenger, and express traffic is between these two points and the greatest growth is to be expected on this axis.

MARRIED QUARRELS.

[Providence Evening Bulletin.]

Recently over the radio we heard a voice upholding the right of man and wife to quarrel. And the voice spoke with such conviction that we assumed it to be a married one.

The sweet reasonableness of the argument impressed us. We have no patience with couples who go forward hand in hand to a sunny old age. Such serenity argues a mutual indifference, or the complete subjugation of one to the other, or a misunderstanding so vast that it is peaceful.

But nothing in married life so sharpens the wits brings out weakness in the armor, reveals the mettle of the opponent, and tests the solidity of marriage as an institution as a good quarrel, not loud, but vigorous.

But the issues must be clearly joined. There must be no unfair assumptions, no arguments from hearsay. The memoranda and the checkbook must be there at hand. And the subject must be a worthy one.

We suggest that married couples who have never quarreled up to this moment begin on something simple and constructive, such as the right of a wife to spend more money than her husband thinks she should, and work up to something more perfect, such as his right to do the same thing.

In this way that grand institution, the hearth fire, around which our American conception of society has been built, and which now is so jeopardized by centrifugal forces such as the rise of the motor and the fall of the piano, will be replenished and will blaze with unprecedented heat.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. By F. A.

WE SET IT RIGHT DOWN as zero in optimism. The sunny faced fat man in front of us on the bus yesterday said to the sour visaged man with him: "Yessir, it's a wonderful age. A Dr. Compton down in Boston says that atomic energy is about to be harnessed and utilized. Gosh, think how many atoms there must be in the world. And Compton says the most far reaching and exciting development in the whole history of science will be seen by the next generation." The sour faced man looked still sourer. "Hell," he said, "if things keep on the way they're goin' there hain't a goin' ter be no next generation." "Go Easy," shouted the conductor somewhat sharply. "Go Easy street." And as the bus stopped at Goethe street the sunny faced fat man got off. It was easy to see that a minute more in company with the sour faced man and he would have strangled him with his own hands and tossed him over the side of the bus.

INVENTORY.

I ask for very little in this world,
Approaching a long interval of dark,
To see a spring or two return again . . .
With cardinals that come to sit awhile
In dark red limbs of white-dressed cherry trees.
All these drab years, these heaven-hungry years—
I've waited long to hear a nightingale,
But no sound came.

I've yearned to see a lark
Building its nest low on the fertile ground:
Still . . . one may come. I've loved a garden, too,
But own no soil; and I'm content, for in
My china bowl grows a geranium.

I ask for very little in this world,
Where evening brings tranquil forgetfulness . . .
Approaching a long interval of dark.

"PLAN TO KEEP SALE OF Liquor in Clean Hands."—Headline. And make 'em comb their hair, too, and shine their shoes. And for heaven's sake make 'em quit chewing tobacco when they bring up the gin. While we're about it, let's do it right.

PEOPLE NEVER KNOW when they're well off. The Lip Reading club, composed of members who are hard of hearing, has sent a petition to the motion picture producers urging them to permit no mustached or whiskered stars in the cinema dramas because then people hard of hearing can't see their lips move and consequently don't know what they're saying. Gosh, if we were deaf and depended on lip reading we would pray the Hollywood producers to have no stars except Senator Jim Ham Lewis, the Smith Brothers, Justice Charles Evans Hughes, and all the Bearded Ladies from every circus in the country. Then we'd go to the talkies and settle down with a contented sigh and have a perfectly lovely time.

LOOKING AT A PHOTOGRAPH of Herr Hitler one would say offhand he looked like a man who would roll a peanut five miles with his nose to pay an election bet. And here he is, chancellor of Germany. He probably got his place by merit, but as we look at his picture we can't help wondering if he got the chancellorship on an election bet.

HERR HITLER has risen to great power in Germany, but he could never have done it in these United States. Over here a man "must look the part." And no matter about his brains or his integrity or zeal, if he doesn't "look the part" only a miracle will save him from being dumped out with the rest of the garbage. We Americans take slogans a bit too seriously.

"FAMOUS VIRGIL BRAND COLLECTION of Coins Worth $5,000,000."—Headline. Which will make many people look over their coin collections. We looked over ours and found it consisted of three half dollar pieces, 1885, 1905 and 1920; four dimes, 1897, 1899, 1903, 1909; one plugged dime [the date is immaterial], one Canadian dime [ditto], and three quarters, 1906, 1917 and 1925. It would seem, in spite of the great value of the Brand coins, that our coin collection is worth far less than five million dollars.

BEAUTIFUL STEEL ENGRAVED invitations have been formally issued for the inauguration of Mr. Roosevelt. Which seems a good deal like sending out invitations to see a sunrise or to attend a private showing of the Rocky mountains or the Atlantic ocean.

AN INSPIRED EDITORIAL in a New York paper was running to a couple of sticks of good white paper on the inestimable importance of trivial games during what we will until March 4 continue to call the depression. It seems that all of you millions and millions of people who are diverting yourselves so sweetly and childishly with cut out puzzles nowadays are actually keeping a fiber board plant running day and night and are giving employment to about sixty men and women! Great! Now if you cut out puzzle fans will devote an equal amount of time to 199,999 other games, you can see for yourself. Prosperity will come whooping out from around that corner, the 12,000,000 or so jobless will get fine jobs making the games and everybody will be so busy making or playing them that he'll forget about technocracy and make us a happy man once more. You wouldn't believe how tired we are of technocracy.

SILENCES.

There are so many kinds of silences
And no two are alike; some darkly grow
From fear; some blossom softly out of love;

ADELAIDE LOVE.

CARTER GLASS is very reluctant about that secretary of the treasury job. And you can't blame him. If every one of us isn't able to buy a new car, a new radio, a new electric refrigerator and all taxes reduced three days or so after March 4—oh, how we will roast that new secretary of the treasury.

ERYSIPELAS.

ERYSIPELAS is an illustration of a disease which is changing its status, and every change is making for human security. Within a half century it was regarded as in the same class with cholera, yellow fever, and smallpox. It was a contagious disease and epidemics of it swept across communities. About the first halfway scientific epidemiologic study made in Chicago was one of an epidemic of erysipelas made by Dr. Edmund Andrews.

Even long after it was regarded as a community epidemic disease it was held to be responsible for house epidemics and particularly hospital epidemics. More than one surgical hospital has been condemned because it was regarded as a breeding place for erysipelas, and obstetric service has been abandoned in more than one hospital ward for the same reason.

Fifty years ago there was common talk about burning down certain hospitals because they were regarded as erysipelas breeders. Now erysipelas is not a cause of either community or house epidemics, though it is still regarded as contagious, and certain restrictions against intimate exposures are placed by law on those who have the disease.

A step forward has been established in the cure of the disease. It is now treated very successfully with erysipelas antitoxin. Drs. D. Symmers and K. M. Lewis report the result of using it for treatment in Bellevue hospital for the last five years. Something more than six hundred cases of this disorder came into that hospital yearly. In five years they have treated 3,300 cases with the antitoxin. They compared the results with the results of treatment during the previous five year period and with cases treated otherwise during the same period. The total experience, therefore, covers about 10,000 cases and every one will agree that here is ample experience from which to draw conclusions. In fact, when these physicians reported to the same effect about three years ago they were told they had spoken too quickly and to go back and gain some more experience. Having met the requirements they are back to tell teacher of it.

In cases otherwise treated ten cases die out of each one hundred. When antitoxin is used this proportion is reduced to seven. The length of the illness is cut to less than half when antitoxin is used. Given a man with head swollen, eyes closed, and temperature of 104, we expect in one day after the use of the dose of antitoxin that the temperature will be one hundred, that the eyes will be open, and that the swelling will be greatly reduced. It is given by injection into the muscles. Six injections are given at intervals of twelve hours.

The remedy appears to have no effect in about five cases out of every one hundred. Those who are most endangered by erysipelas are the old, the chronic alcoholics, and infants.

MIGHT SMOOTH TEETH.

M. C. B. writes: On the inside of both my cheeks are large pimples, one on each cheek. These rest just even with my teeth so that quite often I bite them, causing them to be quite sore and irritated.

1. Will this continual biting them cause cancer of the mouth in time?
2. Are these raisings of the skin dangerous?
3. What to do for them?

I am in my early teens.

REPLY.

1. That is a possibility.
2. No, except for the somewhat remote possibility noted.
3. Do your teeth need smoothing?

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE.

K. S. P. writes:

1. Is a blood pressure of 175 too high for a woman 61 years old? She weighs 145 pounds.
2. For the last few years I have been conscious of my heart beat, especially when lying down. Would X-ray determine a heart condition?
3. Is a blood count any help?

REPLY.

1. It is.
2. No.
3. No.

VARIETY OF CYST.

H. T. writes:

1. Is bursa another name for cyst?
2. I have a painful bursa on the top of my wrist. When it reaches a certain stage I can break it by pressing down firmly. This is painful. Is there any way of getting rid of this for good, as it comes back?
3. Would playing golf or basketball be too strenuous for my wrist?

REPLY.

1. A bursa is one variety of cyst.
2. The fluid can be drawn and a solution of iodine or other irritant injected. Or it can be dissected out.
3. No, but it tends to perpetuate the bursa.

NO TIME LIMIT.

Chicago, Jan. 25.—[Friend of the People.]—1. A native of the Irish Free State entered the United States from Canada in 1921 for a visit, paying a deposit to cover head tax, for which a receipt was received. Is she liable to deportation? 2. Is there any time limit to an alien taking out papers after entering this country? L. S.

1. Failing to secure a refund of the deposit to cover head tax probably resulted in the immigration authorities changing their records to show entry for permanent residence and the alien may apply for citizenship.
2. No. FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT, District Director, U. S. Department of Labor.

RECEIVERSHIP.

Chicago, Jan. 25.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Can a receiver be appointed for a property before foreclosure is started? 2. Can he be appointed after the property is sold by the court? 3. Can the receiver collect the rent before foreclosure? J. P.

1. Yes, in the sense that receivers are sometimes appointed in other proceedings than foreclosure proceedings. No, in the sense that a receivership, as the term is commonly used, is always incidental to court proceedings.
2. Most appointments are made after a foreclosure sale has resulted in a deficiency.
3. See preceding answers. If you will state the facts on which your question arises, we will be in a better position to advise you.

Would signing personal notes for the amount due alter the circumstances? 3. In the event it is impossible for landlord to hold property, what procedure should be used to recover same? E. M. H.

1. Not without court proceedings.
2. No.
3. The landlord is entitled to hold goods in excess of exemptions by instituting distress proceedings or by taking judgment and following it up with a levy. In either case it will probably be advisable to employ an attorney.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 31, 1917.

NEW YORK.—To the amazement of every one concerned, the congressional committee investigating the "peace note leak" uncovered a telegram put out by a brokerage house on the day before the note was publicly announced, predicting with startling accuracy the exact nature of the note ten hours before it was made public. The brokerage house which issued this forecast was E. F. Hutton & Co. The head of the firm, under close questioning, admitted that his Washington correspondent is F. A. Connolly & Co. A partner in this firm is R. W. Bolling, brother-in-law to President Wilson. Mr. Bolling testified at the Washington hearings that he had nothing to do with a "leak" of any kind. Consequently today's developments were entirely unexpected.

PASADENA, Cal.—Allan M. Clement, Chicago broker, left the golf links long enough to admit he sent the famous "leak" telegram disclosed at the New York hearing by the congressional committee. "Yes," Clement said, "I sent the message which E. F. Hutton testified to having received on Dec. 20 last. The basis for it was mere rumor. La Salle street was full of reports that the President was about to send a peace note, and I simply repeated this rumor and asked in the telegram for more direct information. Note that I sought information—I did not give it. I do not know where the rumors originated and certainly cannot give any information of value to the committee. The whole investigation is a lot of bunk, anyway."

NORFOLK, Va.—Wireless reports of considerable wreckage having been sighted in latitude 39.58 north and longitude 70.03 west are being sent out by British warships on this side of the Atlantic in search of the German raider operating on the South American coast. The entire North Atlantic squadron of the British navy has been ordered into waters adjacent to New York, it was authoritatively stated.

WAR SUMMARY.—The Berlin review of the battle at Verdun on Jan. 28 says the enemy's attacks were repulsed. Paris reports attempts of the Germans to advance at Verdun and between Soissons and Reims were frustrated. The British war office reports successful raids on enemy trenches in the Somme region. Berlin reports engagements on the River Aa on the eastern front resulted in favor of the Germans. Four more neutral craft were sunk by submarines, a London report says. Nine of one crew are believed to have been lost.

NEW YORK.—Henry Field of Chicago, son of Marshall Field Jr., and Miss Nancy Keen Perkins of Greenwood, Va., a niece of Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson and Mrs. William Waldorf Astor, today obtained a marriage license. They will be married at Mrs. Gibson's home, 127 East 73d street, by Bishop Patrick V. Hayes on Feb. 7. Miss Perkins is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Moncure Perkins.

EL PASO, Tex.—Nine hundred and twenty-nine Mexicans were given baths at the United States immigration station today, the third day of the enforcement of quarantine regulations as a preventive of typhus fever. No rioting occurred during the day and the danger of a repetition of the "bath riots" is now believed to have passed.

CHICAGO.—War on coal companies charged with violating every agreement and contract made with property owners and rental agents; elimination of saloons in residence districts; advance of flat and store rents by 10 to 15 per cent on May 1, and uncompromising hostility against leasing of property for immoral purposes are some of the announced objects of a new organization of rental agents made up from all parts of Chicago, which held its preliminary meeting at the rooms of the Chicago Real Estate board.

CHICAGO.—Ten carloads of eggs were shipped from Chicago to New York. In the next few days fifteen more carloads are scheduled to start east. And the principal reason is that in New York wholesalers are paying 2½ cents more a dozen than Chicago dealers are bidding. That this condition may be the means of creating a shortage which may reach the aspects of a famine in Chicago was the statement of South Water street merchants. The supply of eggs in Chicago cold storage warehouses is almost exhausted.

CHICAGO.—William Fielding, 92 years old, of 1118 North Western avenue, reputed to be the oldest Odd Fellow in the state, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Laura Laidlaw. He came to Chicago in 1849. He was a member of the Odd Fellow order for fifty-two years.

PRAISE FOR POLICE.

Chicago, Jan. 24.—During today's communist demonstration at Canal district, unemployment relief service, two police captains handled a trying situation with unusual ability and understanding. Calmly and diplomatically Supervising Captains Prendergast and Kennedy directed their subordinates and spoke with leaders of the assembled mass, and it was largely through their personal efforts that a riot was averted.

Employés of Canal District station who were privileged to witness the brilliant display of common sense shown by Captains Prendergast and Kennedy herein voice our gratitude and approbation for their efforts in preventing a possible melée which, if started, would undoubtedly have resulted in injury to many people and destruction of property.

PAYMENT IN BATTLESHIPS.

Wilmette, Ill., Jan. 27.—Cancellationists say that Britain, for example, could pay her indebtedness only in gold or goods; that the gold does not exist and we don't want the goods.

Let Britain pay us in war vessels, while we continue our normal construction. The cost of the ships can be paid in British bonds, for which there is a ready market. When delivered, we would cancel that part of the debt represented by the value of the ship measured by American construction costs. Since we would be crediting in gold, while Britain paid its labor in sterling, Britain would make a neat profit on the transaction.

The British government debt would not be increased by thus paying us, for the debt would merely be owing to British shipbuilders rather than to us. British labor would profit by the jobs and British merchants by the purchasing that would follow.

By continuing our own regular construction our labor would not be displaced. We merely would possess such a navy in the end that probably no country would dare start an unholy war of which we disapproved. D. S. BARTON.

THE SIGHTS OF CHICAGO.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—The other day I had occasion to step into the office of the clerk of the Municipal court, Joseph Gill, and I was positively and pleasantly surprised at the neatness of the general office and the courteous manner in which the clerks handled the people calling there. All the clerks had on tan office jackets and for a minute I thought I had stepped out of the city hall into a regular business office. As a citizen who loves his Chicago and is forever looking for the betterment of same, I wish to personally congratulate Mr. Gill on this great improvement. I am not a howling reformer, but this surprise was so pleasant that I believe the citizens of Chicago should know about it and step down and see the offices of the clerk of the Municipal court.

THE PILGRIMS' PRIDE.

Chicago, Jan. 24.—From my childhood on I have been a lover of patriotic songs. When in school if we made one mistake we were stopped and corrected in our songs.

Now wherever I go they usually have one verse of "America," but when they come to "land of the pilgrims' pride" they substitute the word "thy" for "the."

Has that line been changed? If so, can some one tell me when and why?

SELL AMERICAN.

Chicago, Jan. 26. — The head of the Chicago Rapid Transit Lines and affiliated systems is reported to be in whole hearted sympathy with the "buy American" plan and has ordered station posters and car cards to be displayed in support of the campaign.

In view of the fact that a certain part of the advertising revenue derived from the leases of poster locations on platforms and card space in coaches reverts back to the city, I protest against the use of funds in which the public has an interest for the furtherance of an economically unsound propaganda and one which will cause a decrease in the earning power of advertising space offered for sale by the Chicago surface, elevated, and bus feeder systems.

"Buy American" is bad advertising, bad psychology, and bad economics. "Buy a bale of cotton," sponsored by the same interests now behind the "buy American" movement, was a failure. Carried to an absurdly logical extreme, why not "buy New York," "buy Chicago," "buy Oscaloosa"?

Instead of making bad friends by a selfish and shortsighted policy bound to defeat its own ends, I propose a campaign in substitution and I offer a slogan sufficient in itself:

"Sell American."

WOMEN AS GARDENERS.

Chicago, Jan. 25.—In the want ad section one often comes across an ad for a gardener in the male help column, but I have not come across one in the female section.

There must be as many expert women gardeners as men, yet their services are not called for in the same capacity or as often as the men's.

I do not profess to be an expert gardener seeking such a position, since my experience amounts to about five years of just home gardening, but I'll acknowledge it has won me over so completely that since fate denies my owning about forty acres of land, a home, etc., and decrees I must earn a living, I would not object to a vocation of gardening [horticulture, etc.] if an opportunity presented itself soon.

MRS. J. J. NARISS.

ENGINEERING ETHICS.

Chicago, Jan. 24.—With Col. R. I. Randolph's contention for metered water service in Chicago, or anywhere else for that matter, I am in full accord. It is the only fair and honest way to distribute water. With his plea that engineers have the courage to expose graft I am also in full accord.

If not too impertinent, however, could we ask Col. Randolph to explain why this engineer courage that he asks of us was never displayed by himself or associates during the greatest graft régime of which the engineering profession has knowledge—that of the sanitary district, which employed his firm as consultants?

It is nowhere contended that Col. Randolph participated in that orgy of treasury looting, but if ever an engineer had opportunity to make protest we know of no better one in engineering project history.

ANOTHER ENGINEER.

FORWARD TO THE LAND.

Montague, Mich., Jan. 23.—Every so often we read of schemes, such as the one written by Philip Kingsley in your paper last week, for sending the unemployed of the cities back to the land so that they may be self-supporting. In spite of the difficulties the experienced farmer has in these times the sponsors for these schemes seem to think a city man, inexperienced in farm work, without capital or tools, can settle on a five or ten acre tract and become self-supporting on a piece of land this size. The real farmer who owns it now probably found it unprofitable to operate, so why expect wonders from the city man?

WALL FLOWER CONSOLATIONS

[Punch (Copyright).]

Nondancing Man: "If men only knew what they looked like dancing they'd be sorry for themselves."

"We Reduced our Price from $50 to $30 . . . so Now we advertise to EVERYBODY"

It doesn't seem logical . . . but some advertisers of good merchandise are operating on the theory that because there has been some reduction in their prices they can now advertise to everybody. Unmindful of what the depression has done to buying habits, forgetful of the fact that incomes as well as prices have come down, they are advertising to people who never could buy their merchandise and can't buy it now . . . even though the prices have been reduced.

There are some advertisers . . . advertisers of every-day necessities as well as advertisers of luxuries . . . who are putting too much emphasis on the quantity of a newspaper's circulation and not enough on the quality, forgetting that a very large circulation may be of little value if it is circulation among people who don't want, can't use or can't afford the merchandise advertised.

Just because the prices have dropped, it doesn't mean that everybody can buy the advertiser's merchandise. There are still, as there have always been, a lot of people who can't afford automobiles or refrigerators or oil burners. There are still a lot of people who, having bought the lowest-priced necessities before, are buying the lowest-priced necessities now.

The man who couldn't buy the $595 automobile in 1929 can't buy it today at $505. The best market for that automobile at its present low price is among the people who were buying that car or more expensive cars in 1929.

The family that couldn't buy an oil burner at $825 in 1929 isn't likely to buy it today at $750. The same is true of the $250 refrigerators that now sell for $175 or less. And the same is true, also, of the $50 suits that now sell for $30 . . . the $8 shoes that now sell for $5.50 . . . and so forth.

If at the former prices the advertiser's best market was among the substantial, intelligent people, his best market today is still among those people, in spite of the lower prices. The people who couldn't afford to pay his former prices aren't likely to pay his present prices.

Now more than ever before the advertiser of good merchandise must put his message before the people who can afford good merchandise . . . through the newspapers that are read by those people. Wasteful advertising, advertising to people who can't buy, is less excusable today than at any other time.

In New York the circulation of The Sun is concentrated among the people who were and still are good customers for advertised products. Recognizing this, the department stores for years before the depression and ever since the depression have used more advertising space in The Sun than in any other New York newspaper, seven-day morning or six-day evening.

This newspaper is predominantly a home newspaper . . . home-going, home-staying and home-read. Because of that, it reaches the women as well as the men, the young people as well as the grown-ups. And 96 per cent of its circulation is concentrated in New York City and the suburbs, where it will do the advertiser the most good.

To Mothers

whose children won't eat

NATURE knows best. Never coax a child to eat! Remove the cause of a youngster's poor appetite. When appetite fails, tongue is coated white, eyes are a bilious yellow, don't give small children a constipating cathartic that drains the system. California syrup of figs is all the "medicine" they require.

The Child's Appetite Will Always Respond

Specialists will tell you that a sluggish appetite almost always means the child has a sluggish colon. Correct this condition called stasis, and see how quickly a listless, drooping boy or girl begins to eat—and gain! The only "medicine" such children seem to need is pure, unadulterated fig syrup.

Children who get syrup of figs, now and then, soon have the appetite and energy of young animals! They keep well and avoid colds and sluggish spells.

Nature never made a finer laxative for children; and they all love the wholesome, fruity flavor of the real California syrup of figs. It's purely vegetable, but every druggist has it all bottled, with directions. Begin with it at once. The very next day, your child will be eating better and feeling better. Keep on with the syrup of figs a few days and see amazing improvement in appetite, color, weight, and spirits.

A single IF

The promises made by the bottlers of California Syrup of Figs are true, and it will do the same for you, IF it's genuine CALIFORNIA. Don't accept substitutes.

COUNTY BOARD ASKS NEW BIDS ON CHARITY COAL

Specifications Favor Central Illinois Fields.

The Cook county board voted yesterday to advertise for bids on charity coal contracts for the period ending June 31 next. The specifications were drafted by six experts appointed by the board and the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, and were rewritten later by officers of the relief commission.

In voting against the use of those specifications Commissioner Grace Fleming declared the relief commission was "dictating to the county board." President Emmet Whealan replied that she could call it what she wanted to and ordered the roll call to proceed. Previously Supervisor of Public Service Frank H. Chambers had offered to resign when he was criticized by two commissioners for slighting small dealers in buying coal on the open market.

Dealers Admit Cheating.

Charity coal contracts held by the relief commission were canceled when the seven contracting firms admitted delivering coal of a cheaper quality than that for which they were paid. The commission's specifications then were discarded by the county board, which asked for bids on its own specifications. Those bids revealed collusion and price fixing and were thrown out.

The new bids are returnable one week from today. The size and contest specifications are expected by coal dealers to limit the competition largely to the Central Illinois fields. The contracts are to be awarded on a dry B. T. U. [heat unit] basis. The freight rate differential between the central and southern Illinois fields is not considered.

Charge Favoritism.

Commissioners Fleming and Frank J. Kasper charged that Mr. Chambers had shown favoritism to a large coal company in awarding bids for coal on the open market. Mrs. Fleming said only one local dealer in Evanston was asked to bid on the fuel, and Commissioner Kasper declared the small dealers in Berwyn, Cicero and Oak Park were deprived of their contracts after they offered to meet the lowest bid.

A motion offered by Mrs. Fleming to instruct Mr. Chambers to give as much business as he could to small coal dealers passed by a vote of 6 to 5. "Those interested may give the names of the dealers they are interested in to Mr. Chambers," President Whealan said. "If they can meet the low price, I'll take care of them," Chambers added.

Commissioners Marie Plumb, Amelia Sears and Dan Ryan declared that Mr. Chambers had followed his instructions from the board to the letter.

FORMER POLICE OFFICER GETS 5 YEARS FOR THEFT

Elmer C. White, former police lieutenant in Chicago Heights, and once a detective for the C. and E. I. railroad, was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary yesterday by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward for stealing cigarets from interstate shipments. White, who lives at 2825 Commercial avenue, Chicago Heights, pleaded guilty.

Assistant United States Attorney Benjamin Landis told the court that White and four others stole cigarets valued at $20,000 from freight cars. Half the loot was handled by White, the prosecutor said.

John D. Baldwin, Frank Moore and Samuel Lucas, three of the gang, are in Joliet penitentiary for a robbery in Kankakee. The fifth member, Lawrence Baldwin, brother of John, is a fugitive. Prosecutor Landis said that the trio in Joliet prison would be brought to Chicago and arraigned on the federal charge.

ESCAPES POLICE

WILLIAM RHEM.

William Rhem, 38 years old, 20 West Maple street, grabbed a policeman's gun last evening and made a break for freedom from the Sheffield avenue police station, where he had been identified a short time before as the bandit who held up seven loop candy shops. He was pursued by a group of policemen who recaptured him a short distance from the station after firing half a dozen shots at him.

Rhem was identified by the robbery victims during the afternoon. He was taken back to his cell, and after supper Cornelius McGillicuddy, lockup keeper, went to lead him out to the station squadroom to face other robbery victims. Rhem leaped at McGillicuddy when the latter unlocked his cell door.

The two men struggled, and as William Donnelly, patrol wagon driver, hurried forward to help the lockup keeper Rhem broke loose, seized Donnelly's revolver from its holster, and ran out the side door. Donnelly grabbed at the gun when Rhem took it, opening the action and spilling the cartridges on the floor, so that the weapon was useless to the fugitive.

The two policemen accompanied by eight of their fellows, ran after Rhem, firing on him as he fled. They cornered him in the rear of 921 Diversey boulevard, where he surrendered.

ALD. J. P. LEAHY (27TH) RETIRES AS A CANDIDATE

Ald. Jeremiah P. Leahy [27th] was one of twelve candidates for seats in the city council who filed withdrawals yesterday with the board of election commissioners. His withdrawal brings to a total of six the number of sitting aldermen who will not seek reelection. He was reported to have dropped out of the race because the support of the regular Democratic organization in the ward has been given to another candidate, Harry L. Sain.

A total of 215 objections to the candidacies of aldermanic aspirants were filed with the election board before 5 p. m. yesterday, the deadline. The objections will be sorted today and hearings are expected to be started by the board tomorrow.

Because a registration of voters before the aldermanic election has been disposed with by act of the legislature, several hundred men and women appeared at the board's offices during the day to have their names placed on the polling books so that they will be eligible to vote on Feb. 28. In many cases those who appeared had moved since the general registration last fall. Others had become of age since the November election.

WOOD STREET BUILDING BURNS.

Damage estimated at about $10,000 was caused yesterday afternoon by a fire which destroyed the interior of a four story brick building at 414 North Wood street. The structure was formerly occupied by the Armco Wood Products company, but in recent weeks had been unoccupied.

HUNGRY PUPILS' FUND NEEDED IN MORE SCHOOLS

Every One Helps Make It Go as Far as Possible.

Fourteen contributors added $59.76 to the Hungry School Children's fund yesterday, raising the total to $20,114.

Those are the figures. But there is a lot more to this charity than facts and figures. There is the element of personal service that is being given by teachers and principals in helping to feed the hungriest among their pupils. Members of parent-teacher associations work tirelessly waiting on tables and also give small benefits to add a little to the lunch fund.

Such things, readers, mean that the children are given personal attention in this job of feeding the undernourished. The money you contribute is not given as cold charity, but is administered through persons who understand the needs of the pupils.

Miss Frances L. Swain, head of the household arts department of the board of education, distributes the fund with the help of an advisory citizens' committee. There are many more schools desperately in need of this lunch fund. Can you help?

Yesterday's gifts to the fund are acknowledged as follows:

$5—Martha R. Connelly.
$3—The Eastern Star Club of Illinois.
$2.50—M. A. S.

$1.26—E. Sch.
$1—Joan P. Ledwell, J. A. Peterson, C. Ingraham, In Honor of Mr. S. M. Silverman's Birthday from Edith M. Silverman.

Total	$ 59.76
Previously acknowledged	20,054.24
GRAND total	$20,114.00

E. J. Wentzlaff Promises Restitution; Trial Delayed

A charge of embezzlement against Emil J. Wentzlaff, former receiver for the Boulevard State Savings bank, 3621 Irving Park boulevard, was continued yesterday to March 1 by Judge Donald S. McKinlay. The delay was granted on the promise of the defendant to make restitution. Wentzlaff, who is 56 years old and lives at 3817 North Lawndale avenue, is alleged to have appropriated $9,029 of the bank funds before he was removed as receiver by the state auditor.

BANDIT KILLED AS HE TRIES TO ROB POLICEMAN

Policeman Albion Jones of the Des Plaines street station, on his way home from work last night, shot and fatally wounded one of two robbers who tried to hold him up in front of 1330 West Randolph street. The man, unidentified, died as he was being taken to the Bridewell hospital.

ALBION JONES.

Jones, who lives at 214 North Crawford avenue, had stopped his automobile in Randolph street to make a minor mechanical adjustment. The robbers, one of whom carried a pistol, stepped on the running boards on opposite sides of the car and ordered him to get out.

As the policeman, who was in civilian dress, obeyed, he drew his own pistol. He fired twice, both of his bullets striking the man with the pistol in his abdomen. The second man fled as his companion fell.

"'MOIST THROAT' STOPPED MY COUGHING SPELLS!"

"I'm certainly glad I learned about 'moist throat'!" writes Miss A. S., of New York City.

Your throat and bronchial tubes are lined with millions of pores like tiny "bottles" continually supplying moisture to the delicate tissues . . . until you "catch cold."

Then these pores clog. Phlegm collects. Dangerous germs find a breeding place. Tickling, irritation and coughing set in.

To cure your cough you must increase the flow of your throat's natural moisture, loosening the phlegm so it can be expelled. Many cough "remedies" contain numbing drugs which merely "deaden" the nerves . . . but don't get at the root of the trouble!

PERTUSSIN, a scientific remedy, is the extract of a famous herb which opens the tiny glands, stimulates the flow of throat moisture and brings quick relief naturally.

If your throat's raw or dry, take a few spoons of PERTUSSIN now. It's safe, even for children. At drug stores, 60¢.

Mannish Trend Marks Showing of New Styles

A. of C. Holds Preview of Fashion Show.

BY VIRGINIA GARDINER.

Women are going mannish in their dress this year, it was revealed yesterday at a rehearsal of the semi-annual style show of the Association of Commerce, held in the Hotel Sherman. The show, which will be a feature of a convention of the interstate merchants' council, will be held in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Sherman the nights of Feb. 6, 7, and 8.

Borrowing the tailored effects of the Gibson girl styles of 1903, the new trend as forecast by fashions worn by models will nevertheless differ from that of the Gibson girl.

Whereas the Gibson girl's figure was one of curves, the silhouette for 1933 would be nearer the straight-up-and-down than the fashionable figure has been since ante-war days, according to Miss Theresa Wallach, Association of Commerce fashion expert.

Tailored, mannish suits, stiff sailors worn straight on the head, tuck-in blouses resembling the old Gibson girl shirt waist somewhat, and real stocks will be worn. Some of the new neckwear even duplicates the uncomfortable whalebone stays which hold up a high white pique collar, starched, or a net or organdy neckpiece with stock attached.

The ascot tie also will be featured, as well as organdy and Val lace collars.

Where the Gibson girl styles did not neglect a certain seductiveness despite their severity, laying stress on the wasp waist and a perfect 36 bosom, the 1933 girl will be more military and more masculine, Miss Wallach indicated.

But although the coyness with which the Gibson girl went masculine will be lacking in the straight wrap-around or pleated skirts, the military cape, long and tailored, the plain, severe little hats of 1933, romance and the feminine nevertheless will have their place. Frilly blouses may be worn with the most tailored suits of hard finish materials and some of the stiff little hats will be flower trimmed, while new spring colors cast inhibitions to the wind and indulge in sensational combinations, Miss Wallach said.

Navy blue, the season's best, will be combined with shrimp pink, for instance; pavement gray, which is dark, with bright yellow. A military three piece suit shown featured a three-quarters length cape, lined with flame colored crêpe, a silk tucked-in blouse of pin stripes, and a close fitting jacket. In suit materials, pin stripe twills, corded materials, oxford gray in a close weave, and other monotones will prevail.

Coat, vest, and trousers such as worn by Marlene Dietrich recently in Hollywood were inspiration for a green golf outfit of soft wool, its jacket a modified Norfolk, its vest white, worn by a dark haired model.

A hip length cape suit of orange peel wool with a blouse and cape lining of Scotch plaid taffeta, revived double ruching, and an ascot tie for its most decorative details.

J. A. Carpenter and Mrs. Borden Married in East

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—The Rev. Samuel A. Eliot, son of the late President Eliot of Harvard, was the officiating clergyman at the simple wedding ceremony at noon today uniting Mrs. Ellen Waller Borden of Chicago and John Alden Carpenter, the composer, also of Chicago, at Elmwood, the old James Russell Lowell place in Cambridge, now the home of Prof. and Mrs. A. Kingsley Porter.

The bride wore a traveling suit of gray and both she and the bridegroom dispensed with attendants. Her two daughters, Mrs. Adlai E. Stevenson and Mrs. Robert S. Pirie, both of Chicago, were among the guests. A breakfast followed the ceremony, and Mr. Carpenter and his bride left for New York to sail Wednesday on the Europa for a honeymoon abroad. On their return they will go on to Chicago.

Mrs. Porter, who is an aunt of Mrs. Carpenter, returned with Dr. Porter, who is professor of fine arts at Harvard, only a week ago from Ireland, where they had been staying at Glenveagh castle, their summer place in County Donegal.

Mrs. Carpenter, the sister of James Breckenridge Waller, was divorced from John Borden in 1924. Mr. Carpenter's former wife, Mrs. Rue Winterbothom Carpenter, died in December, 1931.

A taxicab dash for a marriage license preceded the ceremony by two hours this morning. Carpenter had applied for the license, but had neglected to obtain it. He had a few anxious moments until Miss Nellie Buckley filled out the required paper in Cambridge city hall, enabling him to return to the Porter home in time for the ceremony.

The famous house was described by Lowell, shortly before his death, in writing to an English friend. Following is the description:

"'Tis a pleasant old house, just about twice as old as I am, four miles from Boston. . . . It is a square house with four rooms on a floor, like some houses of the Georgian era I have seen in English provincial towns, only they are of brick and this is of wood. But it is solid with its heavy oaken beams. . . .

"Inside there is much wainscot, painted white in the fashion of the time it was built. It is very sunny. . . . There is a pretty staircase with the quaint old twisted banisters. My library occupies two rooms, opening into each other by arches at the sides of the ample chimneys. The trees I look out on are the earliest things I remember."

MINUTE MYSTERY—CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIPLEY.

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his case-book covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

DOUBLE DEATH.

As two shots rang through the drawing room, eight guests laid down their bridge hands, pushed back their chairs and rushed to the library.

A shriek pierced the air and Mrs. Morton fainted at the sight of her daughter Alyne, stretched on the floor, blood from a temple wound staining her white gown. Kneeling beside the girl, Dr. Orman raised her head and clasped it to his breast while sobs shook his body.

Lying across a window sill, its arms and head dangling outside, was the body of a man whom Alyne and the doctor had found rifling the wall safe.

"Alyne screamed as we entered the library," explained Dr. Orman to Professor Fordney the following day. "Before I had time to realize what was happening the robber knocked me down, shot Alyne and tried to escape through the window. Still a bit dazed, I rolled over on my side, pulled my gun and fired."

"And certainly hit the mark," exclaimed Fordney. "The bullet entered his back a few inches above and lodged in the heart. Were you over seas, doctor?"

"Yes. Alyne and I became engaged just before I left."

"I learned her reason for going to the library last night was to return your ring which was in the safe."

"That is correct."

"Are you in the habit of carrying a revolver?"

"Yes. I have a permit. My calls take me into all sorts of neighborhoods, you know."

"Well, you'll be administering to the inmates of Sing Sing shortly," calmly stated the professor.

WHY WAS HE SUSPICIOUS OF THE DOCTOR?

Good morning!

Regard this picture as you would a kind and likable person who sincerely strives to entertain but isn't, really, very funny. Laugh amiably—it won't be too much of a strain—at its narrative, which, like the stories told by our supposititious person, starts out in reasonably amusing fashion but peters out pointlessly toward the end. Do all this—because there happens to be nothing else TO do.

"They Just Had to Get Married" resembles "Central Park" in that it carries your thoughts back to movies of other days. Mack Sennett had the same sort of stories to work with. Perhaps his output seemed funnier than the piece under discussion because, way back then, our taste was not developed to its present state of finickiness.

The ones who "had to get married" are a butler and a maid to whom is bequeathed the entire estate of their late eccentric master. For ten years the two have been contemplating such a step, but shyness has prevented their taking it. Now, from the grave, comes their master's voice giving orders, while a dead hand showers them with plenty wherewith.

They wed, and, admitted to the world of those they have before met only to serve, find trouble and perplexity a-plenty.

A mighty fine cast has been practically wasted in this essay to wring laughs from the great American public. Great credit is due all members thereof that the piece is not a complete washout. Every dram of worth has been utilized. Those drams are to be found in the first part of the production.

The stage headliners are Mildred "Babe" Didrikson, the Olympic games wonder, and Fifi D'Orsay, who also appears in the picture. Audiences seem to care for both quite a bit.

See you tomorrow.

Caryl Bloomingston Hostess at French Conversation Tea

Group of Debutantes Abandons Hunt for Fancy Name to Concentrate on Language Study.

BY JUDITH CASS.

YESTERDAY afternoon Miss Caryl Bloomingston was hostess to the Monday French Conversation Tea-ers at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Bloomingston of 1209 Astor street, and now that the girls who meet every Monday to improve their French have given up the idea of selecting a snappy name for their organization, they are getting along faster with their conversation.

At each of the first few meetings a good half hour of the two hours was consumed by the debutantes in racking their brains for a title, but now they just call their meetings French teas. Miss Edna Doering is credited with instigating the idea of these delightful parties and it met with such instant popularity that twenty girls believe they were the first to accept the idea.

Last November Miss Doering gave a luncheon to introduce her friends to Mme. Coulanges, who directs the conversation, and since then one member after the other has had the Monday tea. Some of the French Tea-ers are the Misses Peggy and Virginia Wiley, Lydia Swift, Marion Gordon, Nancy Traylor, Betty Brawley, Julia Kramer, Laura Thorne, Barbara Eldridge, and Elizabeth Baum. Honore White and Martha Lee also belonged before they returned to their respective colleges, Vassar and Smith.

Apropos of the debutantes, did you know that the D. U. D. S. [Dated Up Deb society—with each other!], which was formed last October before the girls were fullfledged debs and before they knew many of the town's young men, has, in three short months and the happy turn of events, become the Tuesday Afternoon Bridge club.

However, memories of the first title still linger in the minds of the twelve girls, who, by the way, are among the most popular of the season's buds, and they threaten dire disaster on any one who reveals their names. Whoever is curious, however, might try telephoning a few of the popular debs and finding out where they are this afternoon!

Casino Will Hold Circus

If you're a member of the exclusive Casino club or one of the few outsiders who are to be invited to the club's party for the benefit of the Emergency Relief fund you'll receive in your mail tomorrow or Thursday a gay handbill announcing that a grand circus is to be held at the club on Feb. 18.

But unless some of the "powers that be" who met to complete plans for the affair do not observe the mandate they laid down that there shall be practically no advance publicity about who is to take part in the acts and the sideshows, no one will know very much about who is to entertain that night.

That it will be a gay party goes without saying, and if the members of the committee in charge, which is headed by Mrs. Ambrose C. Cramer, could extend the size of the club for that night they could sell many more than the 500 tickets they have to set as their limit.

Mrs. Arthur Meeker is to preside at the tea this afternoon at which members of the English Speaking union

BY EDWARD MOORE.

The Chicago Friends of Music came close to that happy state of finding their dinner at the Drake hotel too much of a success last night. During the afternoon something like 800 acceptances were received, thereby raising the total to about 1,500, a matter which caused some last moment haste to make provision for the throng.

Once under way the meeting became one of the events which promised well for the success of the new Temple of Music to be erected on the lake front. Before it was over announcement was made that Justin H. McCarthy, in behalf of the Elks, of whom he is exalted ruler, had taken 100 books of twenty subscriptions each, or a total of $2,000 additional for the fund. It was also told by Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy that both the Friends of Opera and the Lake View Musical society had gone over the top on their quotas, the amount, however, not being stated.

An elaborate musical program became one of the enjoyable parts of the evening. Thirty members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, having previously volunteered their services, were directed by Frederick Stock, their conductor; Eric DeLamarter, assistant conductor, and Jerzy Bojanowski of Warsaw, Poland. Janet Fairbank sang Cherubino's aria from Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro," and was encored. Rudolph Ganz played a Chopin group on the piano, and was likewise encored.

Later Mr. Ganz combined forces with Mr. Stock, Avern Scolnik, Hebert Conover, and George Lytton to play two movements from Schubert's "Forellen" Quintet, this, incidentally, being Mr. Stock's first public appearance as a viola player since his appointment as conductor of the orchestra in 1905. Mischa Mischakoff, concert master, and Daniel Saidenberg, first cellist of the orchestra, played the Glazounow Duo, and the concert ended with Tschaikowsky's "Waltz of

FOLLY ISLAND

By Wallace Irwin

SYNOPSIS.

Bart Burgess is marooned in a catboat on Peconic bay, fifty miles from his Long Island home in Wyattville. His companion, Ingalls Frederick Warren, spoiled child of a new-made fortune, knows as "Nosey Ingy," rows to town for a carpenter. A girl in a canoe invites Bart over to her family's island, but her small brother says their mother would have a fit. Bart senses a family secret. Ingy sends help and taxies home. Bart learns that the Bayleys have lived on the island fifteen years, but don't mix. The father travels. He invites the girl, Alice, to visit him in Wyattville. Less than a week later Trevor Burgess, Bart's father, dies suddenly from a heart attack. Bart is left with the care of his invalid mother. The family lawyer gives Bart a letter left for him by his father, in which he confesses to being a bigamist. The Bayleys of Folly island are his second family. They know him as Matthew Bayley. He asks Bart, for his mother's sake, to guard the secret and leaves a fortune to provide for the Bayleys. Bart calls on Mrs. Bayley, posing as a lawyer, and finds her a lovely woman, not the harridan he expected. He returns two weeks later with the legacy. Bart is happy to learn from her mother that Alice isn't Matthew Bayley's daughter. But to keep her from visiting his home and seeing his father's pictures is now a problem.

INSTALLMENT XIV.

A SPIRIT'S COMMAND.

"Would you like Alice to travel?" asked Bart, against his better judgment.

"No." Hastily for Mrs. Bayley. "There's plenty of time for that. In one way she's very mature. In another she's still quite a child. I think she should stay with me, at least for a while longer. And it would be a great mistake to throw her with a lot of silly young people. It would spoil her." Almost intolerantly she said this.

"Does she want that?" Bart knew, but he was curious to study Mrs. Bayley's point of view.

"She wants to go to Wyattville, of all places."

"Of all places," echoed Bart's hollow voice. "She said something like that when I talked to her." And how she would blossom at Wyattville he was thinking. And how he must work to get the idea out of her mind.

"I have no doubt that it's a very beautiful place. But not for Alice. She's a poet, Mr. Burgess. She can build up the thing that's desirable to her and make a dream out of it."

"Wyattville's no dream," said Bart. "It's a machine—built to make people without any imagination think they're having a good time."

"I was wondering." Mrs. Bayley sat thoughtfully considering her idea. "Last year Matthew made me a birthday present." There was the trace of a break in her voice, telling of this. "He saved some money and bought a tract of land up on the hill. A beautiful site I'd always loved looking west over the inlet. He said we might build a house there some day. We can afford it now. If we had a nice house——"

"But he was the most loyal man that ever lived."

"That's fine!" Bart tried to speak calmly. "I don't know of any place where I'd rather have a house than on this island. A house here would make Wyattville look like a plugged nickel. If you began to build, Alice would fall so in love with it——" Then he plunged in recklessly. "Would you mind my bringing over some plans?"

"You're awfully kind," said Mrs. Bayley, giving him her sensitive work-worn hand to show that the interview was over.

He went thoughtfully down to the shore and found Hen Love's Baby just landing with two small boys who had been fishing, perhaps. They both had a Burgess look. His half brothers. "Hello, Mr. Burgess," cried the younger one, "did you get off that sandbar all right?

"I sure did, Ben." He spoke heartily. But would he ever get off the sandbar?

The older boy, tall and undemonstrative, was going up the shore. He was a pimply adolescent, but the swing of his shoulders was like Trevor Burgess'. In a unhappy moment Bart thought: they're of my very blood. Yet why aren't they so near to me as Alice was, from the first?

The day after his visit to Folly island, Bart Burgess stole into the tall windowed, fussy drawing room of his mother's house. He had come furtively to bring a spirit back out of the vast unknown. At the east end of the room against the gold and rose wall paper embossed to resemble leather hung a life sized portrait of Trevor Burgess. He stood there smiling in a coat of hunter's pink. His riding crop swung carelessly against the tan of a varnished boot; the artist had managed a Joshua Reynolds background of flying clouds and sleekly handsome oaks, but the figure in the foreground had the high coloring and sapphire eyes peculiar to Raeburn's style.

"Well, sir, I've done what you asked," said Bart Burgess.

"Finish it," commanded the picture, which had no heart, being only paint and canvas.

"You have betrayed us all," said Bart, critical and cold.

"You will grow older," said the jolly hunter, facing him with an irresponsible, detached amusement.

"When I've gone so far, adoring you, modeling my life on yours," said Bart Burgess, "why should you have forced me to do this vile thing?"

"See it through," said the heartless image. And you'll know more before you're done."

"I've learned to hate you," stormed the son. "Hypocrite and liar. You lived and died to ruin everything you touched."

Then Bart Burgess turned sharply. His mother, frail as a cloud, her fragile body in a plain black dress, her face as dull as the black hat she wore, was standing at his elbow.

"I love to look at him," said her quavering voice. "It helps me so, Bart."

His big arm went around her waist. She was such a wisp. With one hand he could have carried her back to her room.

Then her voice cut into him thinly like something heard in a dream—distinct and unanswerable:

"He was so much more patient than other men. There was a time—a time when I knew that I couldn't be anything to him. I was sick and quarrelsome. I must have been a great trial to him, Bart."

She was still as the smiling picture on the wall. Her son's strong arm was tight about her waist, and she spoke again with an almost fanatical conviction:

"But he was the most loyal man that ever lived. Some men might have—no. I think he cared for me too much to let anything make a difference."

Mother was smiling now, and in her rapt smile Bart saw an answer to those wandering years when his father had sought release in his own way.

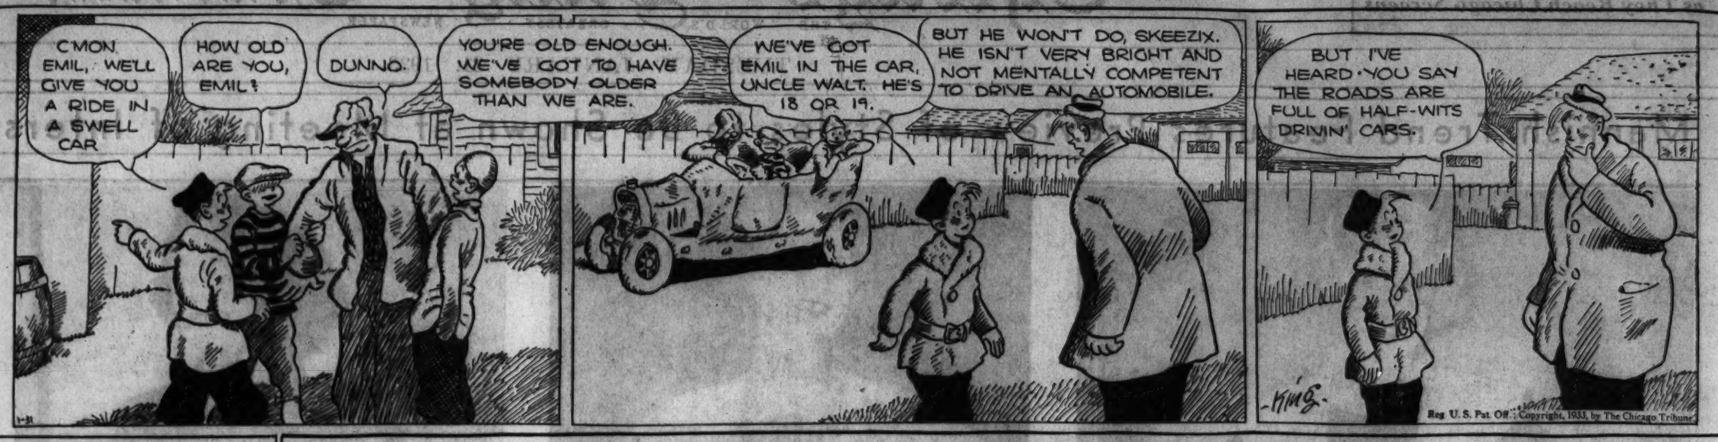

But she was here for a tryst with the dead, as solemn and ceremonious as that of any pagan woman, repairing with sacrificial meats to the grove of Apollo. Cummings, the chauffeur, lingered in the hall with huge clusters of coral pink Canterbury bells, encased in oiled paper. It was Saturday when mother, methodical as her race had always been, took her son to a mortuary rite in the family graveyard.

Ordinarily this would have been a ceremonial gesture to Bart. Now it was an ordeal, an uncanny test of nerves.

German Potato Dumplings Are Menu Novelty

BY MARY MEADE.

Miss Meade will be glad to answer questions pertaining to cookery and the kitchen. For personal reply, send stamped, addressed envelope.

The German potato dumplings given today are to be served with sauerbraten.

GERMAN POTATO DUMPLINGS.
- 2 cups hot mashed potatoes
- 1 egg, well beaten
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon marjoram
- ½ cup flour [approximately]
- 2-3 cup fried croutons

Blend the egg with the hot mashed potatoes and add the salt and marjoram. Now sift in the flour slowly, adding only enough to give the dumplings proper consistency for molding. They must be stanch enough so that they won't fall to pieces in the water, and yet sufficiently soft to insure the proper fluffiness when cooked.

Form the dough into balls one to two inches in diameter, rolling a few of the toasted croutons into each. Sift a little flour over the balls and lower one at a time into boiling salted water. Cover and let cook for ten to fifteen minutes. Lift out with slotted spoon, drain a moment, and serve around the platter of sauerbraten, the recipe for which appeared in yesterday's TRIBUNE.

A letter came to the desk recently requesting a recipe for cooked salad dressing using egg yolks. Miss J. P. was especially anxious about the possibility of the dressing curdling. There seems, however, to be little more danger of this with egg yolks than when the whole egg is used. Here is a good standard recipe:

BOILED SALAD DRESSING.
- 4 level tablespoons flour
- 2 teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon paprika
- 1½ teaspoons mustard
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- 4 egg yolks or 2 eggs, well beaten
- ½ cup vinegar
- 1½ cups milk
- 3 tablespoons butter

Blend the seasoning, flour, and sugar in the top of a double boiler. Add the eggs and stir till smooth. Add the milk, then the vinegar, carefully, mixing constantly. Cook over hot water until thick, stirring to avoid lumps. Add the butter and let chill before using. To serve, thin with cream.

A request for banana jam comes from Mrs. K. G. F. The pineapple in this gives it a zip in flavor which is most pleasant.

PINEAPPLE BANANA JAM.
- 1 No. 2 can crushed pineapple
- 1¾ cups sugar
- 1 cup liquid pectin
- 5 medium sized ripe bananas

Peel the bananas and mash till fine and creamy. Add the pineapple. There should be one quart of fruit. Now add the sugar and bring to a full boil over a hot fire. Let boil one minute, stirring to avoid sticking. Take off the stove and stir in the pectin. Skim and pour at once into clean, hot glasses. Seal with hot, melted paraffin.

A delectable apple dessert with a modern tang is:

APPLE AMBER.
- 3 cups sliced apples
- ⅓ cup sugar
- 2 tablespoons butter
- ¼ cup cinnamon drops
- 1 dozen marshmallows

Place the raw apple slices in a buttered casserole and sprinkle over them the sugar and cinnamon drops. Dot with the butter and bake in a moderate oven [325 degrees F.] until the slices are tender. Split the marshmallows in two and lay over the top of the apples. Return to the oven to brown quickly.

THIS HARD-WATER SOAP MAKES WASHING EASY

Women everywhere are talking about this amazing hard-water soap that makes plenty of thick, active suds without water softeners or other washing aids of any kind. Suds that last and last, even in the hardest water.

With Rinso, neither boiling nor scrubbing is necessary. The dirt is soaked out of clothes. It just floats out by itself and clothes come 4 or 5 shades whiter.

This new "scrubless" way to do the family washing not only saves the hands but the clothes as well. Women say that wearing apparel and household linens washed by the soaking method in Rinso suds last 2 or 3 times longer.

Rinso is so economical; cup for cup it gives you twice as much suds as lightweight, puffed-up soaps. They're wonderful suds for washing dishes and all cleaning. No wonder Rinso is the biggest-selling package soap in America.

Try Rinso Free

If you never have tried Rinso, send a clipping of this offer with your name and address to Lever Brothers Co., Dept. C49, Cambridge, Mass. A full-sized package will be sent you without cost.

Mental Tests Should Be Given Only by Experts

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Have I told this story before, I wonder? A mother entered her 10 year old boy in a well known large private school. He was examined by the school psychologist on a day when he had a bad headache, the second or third day in school.

The next day the principal informed the mother that her son had an I. Q. of 98. "He's nearly mentally normal," said he.

"Do you draw that conclusion from one test and that made when he was dizzy with the pain of a headache?" asked the mother.

The psychologist, who was present, remarked, "O, yes, and it's been proved that a headache doesn't affect the performance."

A week passed and the mother stopped by the school at closing time and met the school psychologist in the hall. Catching sight of the mother, she hurried towards her with beaming face.

"O, Mrs. Robbins," she called out. "I must tell you. I tested John again today and I'm sure you'll be delighted to know that he has an I. Q. of 1.20!"

The mother looked at her calmly "But, you see," she said, "I knew he was a 'bright child' all the time."

And this is a true story.

Now, perhaps you're wondering what may be the point of my repeating such a tale. To ridicule the idea of intelligence tests? No, though the story is really funny. My reason for telling it is to show that intelligence tests should be given only by a highly trained person. Also, that we should never rely upon one test alone, nor on a group test which may have been given by a person not qualified to give the test and to score it.

The intelligence test has great value, but it is not the last word on a child's ability, by any means,

Age Disparity Needn't Cause Marriage Woes

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I am 26. The girl [or woman] is nearing 31. I really care for her. BUT at times I wonder if I'd be happy with her as my wife. Due to the fact that a woman ages much faster than a man I'd still be a young man at 35, and she'd be near her fortieth birthday. Yet, something draws me very close to her. My friends tell me constantly I should get some one younger. —B. H."

Where there's a great doubt about the advisability of marrying a woman older, the chances are that happiness would not ensue. That is, where the man entertains the doubt. The happy outcome of the marriage depends upon his reaction to the age problem more than the woman's. If it remains a live issue, a nagging one with him the woman would be aware of it and her position would be rendered unhappy. Too, she would appear older, no matter how well she concealed her age, if the man's mental reaction worked along these lines.

On the other hand, there are countless numbers of happy marriages in which the woman is the senior in age. In these instances, however, the man does not keep the subject of age uppermost in mind. He does not make comparisons with younger women. He does not think of himself as an age inferior. It's his wife, the woman he loves—and it's nobody's business but his and hers that there is an age disparity.

We wonder just how true, if true at all, is your statement, B. H., that women age much faster than men. Especially in the light of today's progress among women in the art of keeping young! We have a private prejudice that women are pretty smart at this job today. Smarter than a great many men of middle age, whose bay windows and thick back-of-the-neck rolls and denuded scalps put them out of the running.

True, it is conceded the ideal arrangements where the couple is of contemporary age or the woman possibly a year or two younger. But that ideal, mebbe, was part of the plan applicable to an era in which man was the sole protector.

and their guests will hear about those interesting dioramas which are being made for A Century of Progress.

Edward J. Ashenden of the World's Fair will explain their making and uses and will have with him a model of one of the dioramas to be exhibited at the fair. The tea is to be at the Tavern from 4 to 5:30 o'clock and among those who will pour are Mrs. Herbert E. Bradley, Mrs. John A. Holabird, Mrs. Everett Millard, Mrs. C. R. Whitworth, Miss Helen Gilbert, Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, and the Misses Harriet and Beatrice Borland.

Service Club to Elect Officers

At the annual Service club luncheon next Monday Mrs. John I. Shaw, a vice president, will preside in the absence of the president, Mrs. Stanley Zaring, who is in Florida. A large attendance is expected and the new officers will be elected. The luncheon will be held at the Casino club at 12:30.

"Cousin Eve," who writes for THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE, is to repeat her interesting talk on "The New Hot Spots of Europe" on Thursday afternoon, Feb. 9, at the Casino club to help swell the charity fund of the pupils of Miss Harris' school. Tea will be served after the lecture. "Cousin Eve" gave the talk before the members of the Contemporary club at the Fortnightly recently and it was enthusiastically received.

It was a gala audience yesterday at the luncheon meeting of the American Friends of China at the Palmer house, Col. George T. Langhorne presided and Sir Frederick Whyte, political adviser to the Chinese government, spoke on changing conditions in China. He called upon his listeners to look at the situation in the far east with open eyes, to consider that Japan may not be the stabilizing influence many persons think she is, to consider, too, that China may not be making a mistake in her attitude toward this empire.

Sir Frederick went on to explain that China is in a stage of tutelage so far as democratic government is concerned. He said the problem of communism in the Yangtze valley is one of great concern.

Mrs. Silas Strawn and Mrs. Charles Wesley Dempster, both in black, sat directly in front of the speakers' table. Edward Warren Everett, who has spent many months in the far east recently, listened intently, as did Mrs. John D. Black.

Others observed in the audience were Miss Paula Wilms, again in a white "chapeau," Mrs. Langhorn, Mrs. Robert B. Gregory, Robert Hall McCormick, the British consul, Louis Bernays and Mrs. Bernays, Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland, and Dr. Quincy Wright.

Miss Gloria Chandler, who has been carrying on as chairman of the Junior League's Children's theater throughout this winter season since the resignation of Miss Helen Tieken, and Miss Tieken are the official delegates from the Chicago Junior League to the children's conference in Cleveland which opens today. Miss Dorothy Schmidt is attending the conference as a national delegate, and Miss Helen Bell is going as a nonofficial delegate. The four left last evening. Miss Bell will go on to New York after the conference.

Miss Margaret Quan, daughter of the Thomas A. Quans of 38 East Elm street, isn't at all upset that she's going to miss A Century of Progress this summer, for instead she will be spending long, lazy days on the French and Italian Rivieras and in the interior of Germany.

Last week her aunt, Mrs. John E. Holland of New York, who hasn't missed a European trip in the last ten years, wired and invited her to be ready to sail the middle of April. The trip will continue through the end of November.

"It's purely for fun this time," Miss Quan explains. Two years ago she spent many months abroad with her aunt traveling through all the countries from Ireland to Austria and studying under tutors meantime. While in Rome next summer Miss Quan expects to do some sketching at the polo grounds.

Mrs. Crossett Arrives Today.

Mrs. Edward C. Crossett is arriving at home this morning from Pasadena, where she has been since right after Christmas visiting her mother. Mrs. Crossett will be here in time to see Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O. Eaton of Cleveland, who have been paying a short visit to Mrs. Eaton's son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. French, for the Eatons do not leave until tonight. Mrs. French is the former Ruth Crossett and she and her husband live with the Crossetts at 1200 Lake Shore drive.

Mrs. Leonard Finley of Winnetka will give a tea tomorrow for the women assisting with the Infant Welfare drive in the southeast section of Winnetka. Mrs. Finley and Mrs. Ralph Jaeger are co-chairmen of the campaign for funds.

The Chicago Drama league has issued invitations for another play reading tomorrow morning at the Cordon club, 410 South Michigan avenue. Miss Juliet Barker will review George S. Kaufman's and Edna Ferber's "Dinner at Eight." Mrs. Harold E. Shipley will be hostess for the meeting and the luncheon to follow.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Capt. and Mrs. R. Amcotts Wilson will arrive from England at the end of the week and will be at the Hotel Pierre before going to Palm Beach, Fla., for the remainder of the season.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Edward Manville of the Hotel Pierre will sail next Saturday to visit their son-in-law and daughter, Count and Countess Folke Bernadotte, in Stockholm, Sweden.

Mr. and Mrs. John T. Pratt of 7 East 61st street, entertained guests at indoor tennis and tea at their country home on old Tappan road in Glen Cove.

Mrs. Reginald De Koven of 1025 Park avenue entertained at the Victor Herbert festival at Carnegie hall.

Mrs. Frank N. Doubleday will give a dinner party followed by bridge tomorrow at the Barclay.

the Flowers," with Mr. Stock again at the baton.

Chauncey McCormick was the chairman, the Rev. Edward Cruger, musical director of Holy Name cathedral, pronounced the invocation, and Dr. Jacob Singer the grace after the meal. The speakers table held representatives of the Friends of Music, the Chicago Symphony orchestra, the Association of Commerce, Rotary, Kiwanis, the Lions, the Executives' club, the Round Table, and several other business organizations.

LEADERS PRESENT

Some of those at the speakers' table included Harold F. McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Stock, Mrs. Vaughan C. Spalding, Mrs. Arthur Meeker, handsome in a gown of red velvet; Mrs. Howard W. Fenton, Mrs. Ralph H. Poole, Mrs. Arthur B. Slade, Mrs. Americus F. Callahan, Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Dawes, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Hamill, Dr. Jacob Singer, Judge Justin McCarthy, Charles F. Peterson, Mrs. Francis J. Johnson, George W. Rossetter, Father Edward Hoover, Frank W. Lynch, representing the Round Table International; George F. Killinger of the Lions club, Frank E. Weakly of the Executives club, and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank—all of these leaders in the campaign of the Friends of Music.

As an incentive to civic groups an honor roll of organizations having enrolled 50 per cent of their membership in the Friends of Music will be engraved in the walls of the temple. Clubs that have already qualified as announced by Mrs. Cudahy are the Chicago Mendelssohn club, the Melodists, the Zonta Club of Chicago, the South Side Zonta club, the Friends of Opera, the Business Men's orchestra, the Musicians' Club of Women, the Fortnightly Business and Professional Woman's club, the Bohemian Woman's Civic club, the Altrusa club, and the Welsh Woman's Club of Chicago.

Individual leaders to date in the sale of memberships are Mr. and Mrs. George Lytton, Mrs. Glen Dillard Gunn, Mrs. Louis E. Yaeger, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Ganz, and Miss Grace Selberling.

A Job a Day

Every little improvement we give our home right now helps us—and the other fellow, too.

These are days when a little extra heat in the bathroom doesn't come amiss. Install a corner shelf away from the tub, perhaps in the opposite corner. Such a little shelf is an excellent place for the electric spot heater to snuggle into. You can run it as much as you like then even if there are youngsters washing and bathing in the bathroom. And speaking of safety devices another one for the bath is to install a hand rail on the wall beside the tub.

Printed Posies Grow on Gingham Stems in Quilts

OLD ENGLISH FLOWER GARDEN

BY NANCY CABOT.

Prim little printed posies growing on a sturdy green gingham stem quaintly recall to mind old fashioned flowers. And the "Old English Flower Garden," the quilt block illustrated, offers a splendid opportunity to adventure with color without endangering the ultimate effect. Vary the material for the blossoms and the flower pot, too, if you like. The blocks may be set together with strips of color and joined with small blocks of prints.

For a pattern of the "Old English Flower Garden" design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune; or call at Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street.

Dr. Clements Again Heads Church Union

At the annual meeting of the Chicago Church federation yesterday in the Hotel La Salle, the Rev. Dr. Robert Clements of the Presbyterian Theological seminary, was reelected president. The meeting was held in connection with the observance of the 25th anniversary of the founding of the federation.

Walter R. Mee, executive secretary, who yesterday was reelected, presented a review of the quarter century of the federation's work. The Chicago federation has been long acknowledged the pioneer agency of interchurch coöperation in the greater cities of the country.

The treasurer's report showed that while income had been greatly reduced during the year, work was so administered that no debts were incurred. The total of $28,485 was spent. The indebtedness incurred in 1931 was retired during 1932 despite the reduced income. The federation maintains Protestant chaplains in each of the greater public institutions of the city and county.

Other officers were named as follows: George W. Dixon, the Rev. John G. Schwab, and Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch, vice presidents; C. S. Laidman, recording secretary, and Roy Marquardt, treasurer.

New Lingerie Is Chance to Be Feminine

Underlayers Important This Season.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

If you are serious about reclaiming or recapturing the old feminine allure the best place to begin is a lingerie department. You'll enter with a rather hopeless mood swirling around your shopping spirit and sort of float out of the place hours later with a rosy glow and lots of ideas about the proper way to clothe yourself.

And underlayers are important, far more important than they have been in years . . . you can't achieve your inherent bit of glamour unless you wear the new utterly feminine lingerie.

There's no excuse for not being feminine this year of lingerie grace . . . what with unbelievably reasonable price tags, yards of exquisite handwork, practically any and all kinds of lace and ruffles and suave smooth fitted seams and styles, lingerie is lingerie again.

Some of these lace trimmed fripperies that will call for your best superlatives are the ensembled nightgowns . . . a tea rose pink nightgown with a sun-tan colored flounce of lace, a lace yoke, no sleeves and a shoulder cape of matching lace tied with a sky blue satin bow. Another lace cape tops a sea-foam green satin nightgown and the satin ribbon that ties the cape in place is of blush pink.

From the island of Porto Rico comes embroidered lingerie that almost defies description . . . fragile embroideries, delicate designs of drawn work, absurdly small French knots, tiny edges of Val lace [all sewed by hand] have been cunningly fashioned into combinations, panties, slips and nightgowns of ethereal beauty and, since they arrive duty free, the price tags make you blink.

The newest ensemble to get excited about is the duel of French panties and a matching costume slip . . . both fashioned with bias, skin hugging seams and both decorated with matching lace or embroidery. Paragraphs and still more paragraphs could be written about panties, especially the very new and smooth models that fit you as snugly as your own skin.

The evening panties, made of rubber lastex, should attain popularity . . . you can find them made of satin and rubber mixed, in flesh and white . . . the new tricky affairs that you wear instead of a corselette. Other models show triangles of mesh rubber to wear over the hips and the rest of the material used is either silk crepe, silk mesh, or glove silk.

You can buy clever new silk panties with scalloped and bound edges . . . others made almost entirely of lace combined with a few scraps of flesh colored satin and still others with embroidered designs. About the smoothest models you can buy are those of soft wash satin cut with bias seams so that they fit under the tightest gown without even a shadow of a wrinkle.

Proper Diet Is Right Way to Smooth Skin

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

A shiny nose and pores that are noticeably coarse cause considerable worryin' in feminine circles. These twin ailments ought to be caught young and wrestled with. Doesn't require such hard wrestling, either!

Look into that skin and you'll see the sebaceous glands are providing too much oil. The obvious question to ask is how to minimize this oil supply.

Before you go inquiring about astringents, how about looking into your diet? It's a good idea when anything out of the way happens to the face to look into the diet. There you'll find the answer to many skin ailments. With this oil excess this is particularly true.

Fatty foods have to be kept down to a minimum. Not eliminated entirely, understand, but partaken of with discretion. Starches and sweets are two other things you have to "pipe down" on. Liquors are out, too. Where you can change a luncheon menu into a fruit or vegetable salad spree, we recommend it. Two salads a day—and at your dinner meal two green vegetables. Eat a lot of celery and apples and oranges with the pulp left in, for roughage work.

And whatever else you do, see that you are hastily put out of the class of constipation sufferers.

Then, when the insides are well tended, work out your local program. You can just be a demon for punishment with soap and water if you have oily skin. BUT [and here's the real corrective trick] don't forget your cold rinse after every face washing. Wash twice a day with soap and warm water—and rinse in cold.

Wrap cracked ice in a washcloth and rub this over the oily nose and watch how this closes the pores. The cold water not only acts as a fine astringent, but stimulates the oil glands to better circulation. A couple of drops of benzoin added to the rinsing water is good. Anyway, you have an astringent on hand, no doubt, and you can run it over the nose frequently during the day.

Negro Troupe Gives Revue in Cabaret Style

'Dixie on Parade' Presented at Garrick.

"DIXIE ON PARADE."

THE PLAYERS.

Bud Harris	Maud Russell
Harold Reed	Vivian Brown
Paul Harris	Bert Howell
Cook and Brown	Jennie Dancer
Brown Brothers	Jenkins and Jenkins

Ed Carry's orchestra.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

A song and dance amusement called "Dixie on Parade," given by a troupe of Negro singers, dancers, and musicians, is now on view at the Garrick theater. It is a simple-hearted affair in the cabaret manner, and its participants may be well known in the cafés, but to the chronic playgoer they come as strangers, eagerly exhibiting their zeal to sing louder and dance more furiously than any other colored performers in the land.

The Negro's racial gift for song is not strikingly apparent on this program; in fact, the principal vocalists seem bent upon shouting rather than singing. The best results are achieved by a young man named Harold Reed in the current chant celebrating certain ironic aspects of the depression called "Brother, Can You Spare a Dime?" Jennie Dancer's contribution of another over exploited song hit, "Underneath the Harlem Moon," is as stentorian as the vigorous war cries uttered by Sophie Tucker in her vocally untutored youth.

The dancing, however, runs true to the Negro tradition; it is fast, wild and exceedingly complicated in rhythmic pattern. The best steppers are pale brown youths with a strange look of comic indifference on their faces—Cook and Brown, who are mere adolescents, and the three Brown brothers, who work themselves into a frenzy of syncopated acrobatics. Another team named Jenkins and Jenkins, also gifted in this line, offer as the latest invention of Hamitic choreography a number called "Harlem Hop."

Bud Harris, featured comedian of the cast, is mildly diverting in a casual piano act, with a male partner whose identity is concealed by the program. The best item on the bill, however, is a long descriptive number in song, dance, and pantomime that serves as the first act finale. It bears the title of "Minnie the Moocher's Wedding Day," and it bears a vague resemblance to the style of George M. Cohan when he wrote revues.

SCIENCE SAYS:

"I'll clean your toilet for you"

SCIENCE helps women who hate to scrub toilets. A little Sani-Flush does all the work. And porcelain will glisten as never before. Odors go. Stains vanish.

Just sprinkle a little Sani-Flush in the bowl. (Follow directions on the can.) Flush the toilet and that's the end. It's clean. Safe. Purified. Even the hidden trap no brush can reach becomes sanitary. And Sani-Flush can't harm plumbing.

WALGREEN DRUG STORES

We heard this one when very, very young. The one about the man going to the zoo for the first time. When he sees the giraffe, he can't believe his eyes. "You can't fool me," he says. "There ain't no such animal. Even if there was, how the heck could they feed him?"

With Apologies to Thurber

THERE AIN'T NO SUCH ANIMAL

(Please excuse us for using this old story—But it helps to make a point)

IF YOU WANT to steal the spot-light in this car-driving nation . . . bring out an automobile . . . that's really NEW!

You'll start more rumors than a party-line telephone . . . You'll have the industry shouting, "Stop! You're rocking the boat!" You'll have hard-pressed competing salesmen saying, "It just isn't possible! There ain't no such animal!"

We know. Because Plymouth has done just that!

We admit there's a lot about Plymouth that's startling . . . and hard to believe.

Back in 1930, for instance, who would have thought that a new car could make such an aggressive challenge for First Place in the low-priced field . . . in the space of two short years?

Who would have thought . . . with two old-established cars in the field . . . that this new-comer would be the only car to increase its sales in 1932?

Or who would have dreamed . . . even ninety days ago . . . that today you could buy, for $495 f.o.b. . . .

☞ A SIX with Patented Floating Power engine mountings . . . which have proved that they end all vibration!

☞ A SIX that is stronger in every part . . . yet easier on gas, oil and tires . . . because 300 pounds of useless dead weight have been taken out by scientific and energetic engineering!

☞ A SIX that has a modern steel body . . . safe as a modern steel railroad car.

☞ A SIX with self-equalizing hydraulic brakes—like those on hard-driven modern taxicabs, and drums that reduce relining jobs 50% to 75%!

☞ A SIX which, alone in its price-class, has heat-resisting valve inserts that save the car owner from $10 to $30 a year on valve grinding!

Yes . . . who would ever have thought it possible?

Yet here it is . . . the new Plymouth Six . . . with all these features and more. Features that save you money . . . that mean safety for your family . . . that give you big-car performance . . . big-car comfort at the remarkable price of $545 f.o.b. factory for the 4-door Sedan.

So when an ax-grinding salesman murmurs: "They've shortened the wheel base" . . . you can answer: "It's just as roomy as your car, Mister!"

If he hints: "It's lighter . . . by 300 pounds" . . . you can truthfully say, "That's the kind of engineering that cuts my gas, oil and tire bills."

If he suggests: "We've got engine mountings as good as Floating Power" . . . you might just say, "No, thanks; I prefer the original which has been thoroughly tested. I want Patented Floating Power with Rigid-X Frame . . . not an experimental imitation."

And when he falls back on: "There ain't no such animal" . . . we'll be glad to have you tell him "I'll just look at all three low-priced cars . . . I'll take a ride in them . . . and let the best car win my business!"

LAYTON ELIMINATES BILLIARD CHAMPION, 50-33

RADIX FACES BIG JOB IN GOLF, BUT HE KNOWS HOW!

Started Organizing Things Early.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Once upon a time a bunch of north side kids made themselves up a baseball team and chose for their yard a lot in the neighborhood of Addison street and Sheridan road. In time they became a very good ball club, as sandlot ball clubs run, and not the least talented member of the team was the third baseman, a sturdy youth who answered to the name of Dutch Radix. Without neglecting his chores at third base, Dutch, with an energy and foresight beyond his years, decided that there was a parcel of spare lumber going to waste in the vicinity, not to mention the team's rapidly mounting public, which was viewing his team's exercises gratis.

Dutch forthwith corraled all of the stray planks and two by fours in the neighborhood and set to building a grand stand and bleachers. Admissions were charged and the treasury of the young ball club began to flourish, all due to the ingenuity of Dutch Radix.

Heads District Golf Association.

Today that enterprising third baseman is Harry E. Radix, president of the Chicago District Golf association, which faces in 1933 the most crowded golf schedule ever undertaken by one organization in the history of the game.

Radix, one of the most tireless officials ever to work for the C. D. G. A., yesterday made it plain that he is well aware of the problems confronting Chicago golfers in playing host to a schedule that includes two national tournaments and possibly a third; an international women's series between the United States and Canada, the western amateur, all of the women's western tournaments, the Big Ten meet, and the state amateur and professional championships. Then there are all of the C. D. G. A.'s own events, a season's work in themselves.

Urges Club Coöperation.

"The two most important jobs for Chicago District Golf during 1933," Radix said, "are to develop a proper coöperation among all organizations in the district and to be proper hosts to thousands of golfers who will be among us as Century of Progress guests.

"We are bound to see that these out of town golfers are cared for in a way that will reflect credit on us and the game. In order to do this, we must get together in a spirit of coöperation among clubs and between clubs and public courses.

"It is estimated that 2,000,000 people will be in Chicago for conventions during the Century of Progress. Probably 200,000 of that number will want to play golf while they are here.

220 Courses Available.

"This is not a job only for those clubs who are members of the C. D. G. A. It is a task for all clubs, all daily fee and public courses, one that can be worked out only through coöperation. The clubs cannot shoulder the entire burden, although they can solve a big part of the problem by extending courtesies to club members from other cities.

"There are about 220 courses within 40 miles of the loop, including public parks, forest preserve, daily fee, and club layouts. They afford a fine variety of golf. By working together we can give our guests the kind of golf they want. This coöperation should include a decision by the clubs not to compete with the fee courses in prices, and an effort is being made now by officials of the C. D. G. A. and the fee courses to fix a reasonable basis.

Officials to Meet.

"This spirit is already showing itself. Bob Umberger, president of Sunset Ridge, has invited a number of north side club officials to meet and exchange information and experiences. Walter Leininger, president of Westward Ho and chairman of the association's club relations committee, is also arranging for a conclave of north, south, and west side club officials."

Yesterday Radix also announced the makeup of the tournament committee, which will arrange all events in the district this year. Allan Hale of Medinah, treasurer of the association, will be chairman, with Peter Rapp of Medinah, Fred Lattner of Ridgemoor, and Harold Burnham, vice president of the C. D. G. A., as members.

GORILLA JONES WINS TITLE ON K. O. IN SEVENTH

Cleveland, O., Jan. 30.—(AP)—Gorilla Jones, Akron, O., fighter, knocked out Sammy Slaughter of Terre Haute Ind., in the seventh round of a 12 round bout tonight, thereby gaining the American middleweight championship as recognized by the National Boxing association. Jones weighed 152 and Slaughter 156½.

Ben Jeby, 159½, of New York, was awarded a technical knockout over Paul Pironne, 162, of Cleveland, shortly after the bell rang for the opening of the sixth round of their 12 round fight. Jeby is recognized by the New York boxing commission as world middleweight champion, but the title was not at stake. Pirrone was floored nine times in the first five rounds.

KENTUCKY DERBY.

REDUCTION in added money for the Preakness stakes from $50,000 to $25,000 lends added prestige, if any were needed, to the 59th annual Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs May 6. Action of the Pimlico directors was taken after Col. Matt Winn already had announced Derby money would be $50,000, as usual.

It is easy enough to sit back and laud some one else—Col. Winn, in this case—for maintaining customary standards even if such maintenance means financial loss for the some one else you are lauding. In the present instance, however, The Wake thinks the $50,000 added money is a good investment. Whether the receipts of Derby day equal its expenses we do not attempt to forecast, but we think they will be at least $25,000 greater than if the stake had been cut to $25,000 added.

The Kentucky Derby has been built up from a position where it was decidedly preliminary to and secondary to the American Derby of old Washington Park days to the most colorful 3 year old event in the country. It is not necessary to argue whether it supplies on the early date of its running as thorough a test as the later American Derby, Belmont Stakes or Arlington Classic. The fact remains that it is the first great test for colts and fillies of that age.

Formerly only the Preakness challenged that supremacy, and that challenge was only in a monetary sense. Pimlico's event never matched in color or attendance the blue grass classic. Seldom were its fields as representative. While $25,000 purses are not to be ignored in these times, there is no question that an owner who feels he must choose between two stakes so close together would rather have Kentucky Derby victory and the larger purse than Preakness prestige. Double winners of these two races have been rare.

When pari-mutuel betting was legalized in Illinois, fear was expressed that the Kentucky Derby might revert to its subordinate place of 30 years ago. Such is not the case so far. Attendance and volume of betting have decreased for the last several years, but not out of proportion to such decreases at other places, including Chicago. Lack of money rather than lack of inclination on the part of patrons has seemed the cause.

Nominations for this stake close tomorrow. They will be published in about two weeks. Then training gossip, forecasts, and feedbox dope until May 6!

The Derby of Life.

I know a man [and a woman, too] with the race as good as won,
Who during the race got all the breaks though not deserving one,
Whose mount in the lead of the flying bunch has ever held the rail,
But not because of a skillful ride or the goad of spur or flail,
Who never helped their running steed with one constructive thought,
Nor knew the joy that emanates from a race well planned and fought,
But are riding the course from start to wire, sitting the pigskin flat—
I'd rather be last, in the blinding dust, than to win a race like that.

I'd rather be last with the knowledge mine that I'd ridden the contest square,
That my mount [which is I] shows punishing welts and along the route somewhere
That I'd made an effort to gain the lead by the use of brain and hand—
Then I won't have lost though I trail the field when I pass the judge's stand.
Hoosier Joe.

GOLDEN GLOVES LURE 75 BOYS OF GERMAN CLUB

New Organization Eyes Team Trophy.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[ENTRY BLANKS ON PAGE 23.]

Seventy-five boys of the German-American Boxing club will enter the Chicago Golden Gloves sectional tournaments, officials of that organization announced yesterday. The entry will be divided between the Open and Novice divisions.

The German-American club is an outgrowth of the enthusiasm aroused last summer when the champions of the fatherland met Chicago's Golden Gloves team at Soldiers' field in the second international tournament sponsored by THE TRIBUNE. In 1931 a combined New York-Chicago team of eight intercity titleholders [six of the boys were from Chicago's team] defeated France, 5 bouts to 3. Last summer the eight bouts were divided with Germany.

Rapid Strides in Boxing.

The young German-American element of Chicago's population is immensely fond of sports and excels in many. However, boxing in Germany, and this of course had its effect on those boys in Chicago who have come to this country in the last few years, did not get its start until after the world war when participation in all sports boomed. That Germany has made strides in promotion of amateur boxing was indicated not only by the international bouts at Soldiers' field but by the ability of the team when it later competed in the Olympic games at Los Angeles.

The formation of the German-American Boxing club was due primarily to these events. Among its 85 members, and the club's roster is still increasing, are many boys who started as free lance boxers.

Many Eye Loyola Bouts.

Many of the boys will participate in the north side section eliminations, which will open at Loyola university gymnasium Feb. 20. Others will enter the sections in which they live. In this way the German-American club may qualify a sufficient number of boxers to win the championship trophy cup which will be presented to the Chicago team scoring the most points in the finals at the Stadium on March 8.

The out-of-town team which scores the most points in the finals also will receive a championship team trophy. Points will be awarded in the finals March 8 on the following basis: Championship, 5 points; runner-up to champion in each weight, 3 points; each semi-finalist, 1 point. This provides a total of 10 points in each weight, or 80 points.

32 Novices to Qualify.

Present plans now call for eight Novice champions from four sections to qualify for the semi-finals and finals of that division at the Chicago Stadium in conjunction with the Tournament of Champions Feb. 27, 28, and March 1. Chicago also will qualify the boys in each weight in the four sections of the Open division. It is estimated that 256 amateur boxers [including all out-of-town centers and the C. Y. O.] will be eligible for the Tournament of Champions. The 32 Novice qualifiers will raise the number competing on those three nights to 288.

Two rings will be used on Feb. 27 and 28. It also may be necessary to use two rings on March 1.

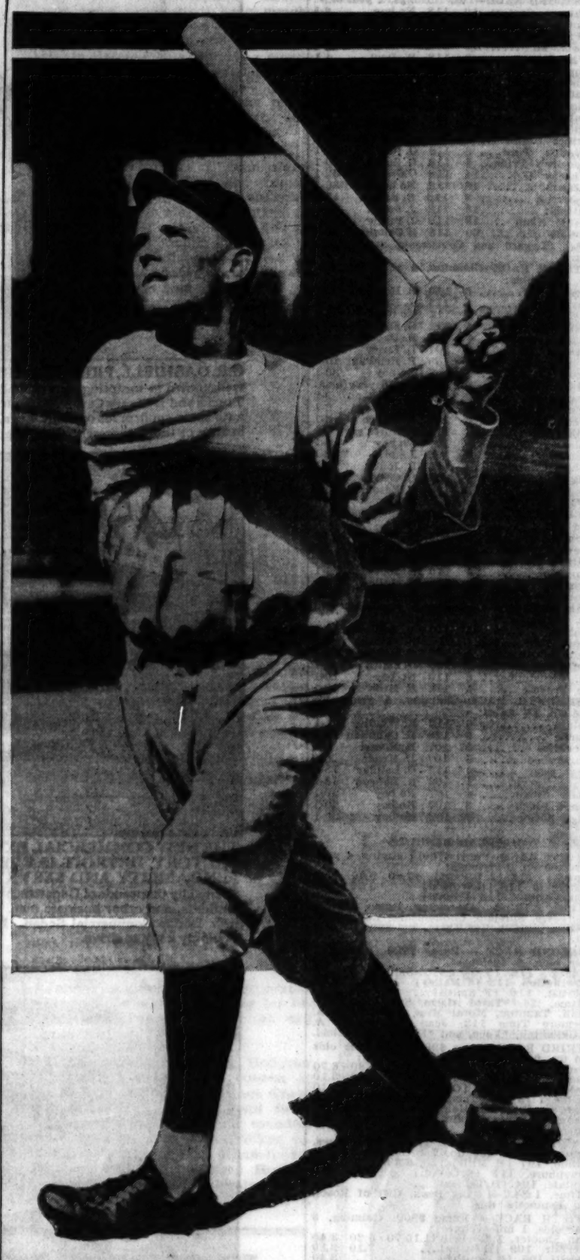

Entries for the west side sectional meet, which will be held at Guyon's Paradise, Crawford and West End avenues, close next Monday. The tournament will be held Feb. 13 and 14. Then Golden Gloves action will start in Chicago's new section, the far south, at the State theater, 110th and State streets, Roseland. The far south tournament will be held Feb. 16 and 17 and entries will close Feb. 9.

May Extend South Meet.

The north section eliminations at Loyola university are scheduled for Feb. 20 and 21. Entries close a week from Monday. The last of the qualifying meets, as usual, will be held at White City on Feb. 23 and 24. Entries close on Feb. 16. If it is necessary, the south section meet at White City will be held on three nights, starting on Feb. 22.

No entries will be accepted after the above dates. No contestant may compete in more than one weight class, although he may move up to the next heavier division if he cannot make the class in which he entered. All pairings will be determined by lot.

Dempsey and Mayor Confer on Baer Fight

Jack Dempsey, promoter of the Max Schmeling-Max Baer bout which is scheduled to be held in June, arrived yesterday to confer with Century of Progress officials relative to making Chicago the site for the contest. He was accompanied by Joe Jacobs, manager of Schmeling.

Upon their arrival Dempsey and Jacobs were met by Charles C. Fitzmorris, president of the Globe Coal company, and Walter Wright, superintendent of parks and recreation. Fitzmorris is representing George Getz, chairman of the Fair's sports committee.

Later Mayor Cermak joined the group in a conference at the Morrison hotel bungalow. The meeting lasted several hours and when it ended the mayor told reporters that he will appear before the legislature during its present session and urge passage of a law providing for 15 round nontitle heavyweight bouts. At present only 15 round heavyweight title matches are allowed in Illinois. Schmeling is adamant in his demands for 15 rounds against Baer.

Getz conferred with Dempsey and Jacobs in New York several weeks ago. After the conference it was reported that Chicago was favored as the site for the match. According to Dempsey and Jacobs yesterday, chances of Chicago obtaining the bout "appear to be very favorable."

Dempsey and Schmeling's manager expect to remain here for about a week. Then Dempsey plans to leave for California where he will meet Baer. Baer is to start a boxing exhibition tour at Portland, Ore., on March 1 and ending in Chicago in April. Bear will be accompanied by Dempsey on the tour in the capacity of referee.

Schmeling will return to this country from Germany in March. Several weeks later he also will go on an exhibition tour, starting in New York and ending in Chicago. Following the Baer tour Dempsey will join Schmeling and referee his exhibition bouts.

Cecil Storey, fullback prospect who failed to attain eligibility last fall, withdrew from the University of Chicago yesterday and revealed that he will enter the University of Southern California immediately. He planned to leave for Long Beach, Cal., his home, last night.

Though he expects to become a candidate for the Trojan football squad Storey said yesterday that he hopes "after one or two years" to return to Chicago in order to win a degree at the Midway. "Chicago's scholastic standards probably aren't any higher than those of other first class universities," he said, "but it's often hard for some one from another section of the country to get used to different ways of going about things."

TODAY'S SCHEDULE.
1:30 p. m.—Denton vs. Jackson.
3 p. m.—Cochran vs. Kieckhefer.
8:15 p. m.—Bozeman vs. Layton.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The world's three cushion billiard champion, Augie Kieckhefer of Chicago, was tumbled off his throne last night when he went down in a crushing defeat at the hands of Johnny Layton of Sedalia, Mo. The score was 50 to 33, and Layton rolled the winning shot in the 47th inning.

In the afternoon matches Frank Scoville of Buffalo, N. Y., defeated Clarence Jackson of Detroit, Mich., 50 to 46, in 65 innings, while Tiff Denton of Kansas City bested Allen Hall of Chicago, 50 to 40, in 42 innings.

Kieckhefer's crown has been tottering from the time the championship play opened more than two weeks ago. He played far below his title form in the early battles he waged in defense of the championship. His usually steady hands trembled at times and his shots went awry on many occasions by the narrowest of margins.

Only Three Left.

The courage for which he has always been noted kept up, however, and on his gameness alone he was able to win four of his first six games. So he remained a championship possibility until he went down before the brilliant shot making of Layton.

When the champion fell by the wayside only three were left in the fight for the title which winds up on Friday night. They are Welker Cochran and Jay Bozeman, both Californians, from the San Francisco bay district, and the red haired Layton, who has played the best billiards of the tournament, although he trails the two wizards from the far west by half a game.

Layton tackles the youthful Bozeman tonight while Cochran's foe this afternoon will be the dethroned Kieckhefer.

Layton Takes 16-0 Lead.

Kieckhefer was never able to make it interesting for Layton and at the end of the ninth inning the champion was buried beneath a 16 to 0 score.

In the tenth inning Kieckhefer began clicking. He started a run of five with one of the shots which won championships for him in other years. It was the most brilliant billiard of the match and one of the finest shots of the tournament.

The red ball was near the center of the head rail while Layton's ball was near the left side rail and two and a half diamonds from the head rail. Kieckhefer's cue ball was near the center of the table. He played off the right side of the red ball to the head rail, down the table to the foot rail, back to the head rail near the left corner, and then back down the table to the white ball.

Fans Cheer Augie.

The spectacular shot brought the spectators, most of them Kieckhefer rooters, to their feet cheering. The referee had to halt the play for several minutes before the crowd again assumed a silent, dignified billiard poise, although a heavy cloud of cigar and cigarette smoke hung over the players and over the tiny amphitheatre.

Kieckhefer was now back in action. He made five billiards before missing and again the crowd became noisy and the referee had to shout, "Everybody quiet, please."

The champion got two more in the eleventh, another in the twelfth, and four more in the fourteenth. The score now was narrowed down to 19 to 12. It looked as if the titleholder were off on an old time rampage and was to come from behind and pull another game out of the fire. Layton then made a fresh start, and by the thirtieth inning was out in front, 38 to 26.

Johnny Takes Defensive.

Layton went into the 37th inning leading, 41 to 29. He went on the defensive then. It was impossible for Kieckhefer to make any progress. He faced the next thing to an impossible shot every time he stepped up to the table. His rooters lost heart and they were cheering for Layton when he ran three to go out in the first half of the 47th.

Augie rushed over to Layton and shook the hand of the Missourian who for years has been one of his most stubborn rivals. "I hope you win the title, John, and keep it around here some place in the middle west," he whispered to his conqueror.

CATHOP BEATS SEMAPHORE IN DRIVING FINISH

Miami, Fla., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—The R. M. Eastman estate's Cathop won the Panama City purse, feature at Hialeah today, in a drive, leading all the way. He escaped defeat by the Greentree stable's Semaphore, which challenged in the stretch, by a head. Jubilate was third, well beaten. The winner paid $6.

Mills, on Cathop, had a lead of three lengths entering the stretch and appeared too confident, giving Semaphore an opportunity to get alongside before he woke up and rode out his mount.

Big Beau broke slowly and made poor headway, but managed to finish fourth. The time was 1:24 3-5 for seven furlongs, fastest race of the day.

The Brookmeade stable's 3 year old colt, Crap Shooter, forcing the pace set by Bun D., took the lead in the stretch and won by a length in the fifth race. D. Bellizzi, who is doing some smart riding for this stable, added to his prestige in this race.

Everfair was second, Mills up, and Iredell third, a half length away. Bun D. tired and finished fourth. Iredell was favorite. The winner paid $10.70 and ran a mile in 1:39 3-5.

Unsettled, a 3 year old bay filly by St. James, from the G. D. Widener stable, won the third race, for maiden fillies and mares, in a canter, paying $55.20.

CROWDS MARVEL AT SENSATIONAL LOW PRICES OF NEW DELIVERY CARS DISPLAYED IN DODGE TRUCK LINE

THE DODGE COMMERCIAL SEDAN AT THE AMAZING LOW PRICE OF ONLY $555.00 F. O. B. FACTORY, DETROIT, INTRODUCES NEW STANDARDS OF STYLE, BEAUTY AND COMFORT

Now Dodge proves that a commercial car can be beautiful as well as serviceable. The new Dodge Commercial Sedan is not only stylish and dependable, it is astonishingly low-priced. The body is designed with racy, flowing lines. Dodge engineers have now added to famous Dodge features of sturdiness, marvelous refinements. Skilled workers of 10 to 15 years experience manufacture this Commercial Sedan . . . a group of expert craftsmen unmatched anywhere! It offers you, for the very first time, a Commercial Car with Floating Power engine mountings to end vibration, make the car ride easier, and prolong its life. Equipped with Hydraulic Brakes, always equalized, stop on a dime. Double-drop, X-truss frame, extra strong and rigid, gives longer car life. Metal work rust-proofed so finish stays bright longer. Form fitting seats for greater comfort. Full pressure lubrication for improved engine performance. Actually dozens of extra-value features. This Commercial Sedan is of especial interest to jewelers, exclusive retail shops, specialty retailers and manufacturers, and all merchants to whom prestige is valuable. The price of $555.00 includes extra seat. Bumpers and spare tire at slight extra cost.

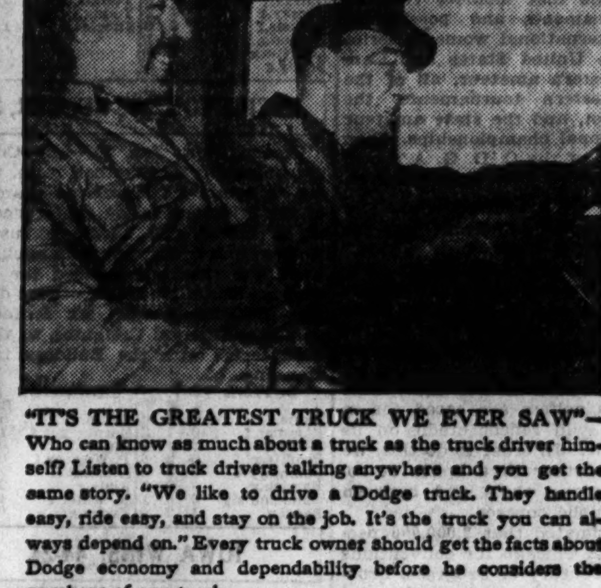

THE NEW COMMERCIAL EXPRESS AT ONLY $450.00 F.O.B. FACTORY, DETROIT, IS EVERY INCH A DODGE FOR DEPENDABILITY AND SERVICE—Here is the kind of Delivery Car wanted by thousands of Department Stores, Contractors, Garages, Hotels, Builders, and other business men. Mounted on the same chassis as the new Dodge Commercial Sedan. It is handsome and flexible and surprisingly easy to drive.

NEW DODGE COMMERCIAL PANEL—Here is a delivery car with many desirable features such as Floating Power engine mountings, Hydraulic Brakes, Valve Inserts, unusually large loading space, wide rear doors, etc.

INVENTION SAVES GAS, INCREASES POWER, CUTS OPERATING EXPENSE — Here is a feature typical of the tremendous extra values built into every Dodge Truck and Delivery Car. This invention is called an "inserted valve seat." It is made of fine chromium alloy. Instead of pounding down on the engine block, Dodge exhaust valves "seat" in this special valve seat. This valve seat is heat resisting, won't pit like ordinary engine block metal. Valve grinding is deferred almost indefinitely . . . for 40, 50, 60 thousand miles and even more. This discovery also saves an appreciable amount of gas and oil as well as improving compression and thus increasing power.

"IT'S THE GREATEST TRUCK WE EVER SAW"—Who can know as much about a truck as the truck driver himself? Listen to truck drivers talking anywhere and you get the same story. "We like to drive a Dodge truck. They handle easy, ride easy, and stay on the job. It's the truck you can always depend on." Every truck owner should get the facts about Dodge economy and dependability before he considers the purchase of any truck.

See your Dodge dealer for details.

OWNER REPORTS 11 YEARS OF HARD SERVICE AT LOW COST PER MILE—Reports from the Beloit Box Board Co., Beloit, Wisc., show that a Dodge 11 years old, operates at an annual cost of only $24.32. It has traveled over 170,000 miles, hauling brick, lime, gravel and paper products. Dodge dealers will gladly supply facts about Dodge economy. Or write to the manufacturer for catalog and details.

McLAUGHLIN OFF TO LEAD CHEERS FOR BLACKHAWKS

Bruins' Fourth Foe on Road Trip Tonight.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, owner of the Blackhawks, will arrive in Boston today prepared to lead the cheers for his black and white striped boys in tonight's encounter with the Boston Bruins. It was stated before his departure that the major was in no way panicky about the handling of the team by his new manager, Tommy Gorman, but that he wanted to be on hand to form a one man cheering section, the Hawks having shown conclusively that they perform much better when stimulated by applause.

As all good hockey fans know, the Hawks are wading through the most rigorous road trip in National league history, tonight's encounter being the fourth of seven games carded for the two-week journey.

Bruins No Triflers.

The foes of this evening, moreover, are reported in no mood to take any chances with the Hawks, who knocked them out of Stanley cup eligibility last year. The Bruins are only a game out of first place, but are tied with the Detroit Red Wings and the world champion Toronto Maple Leafs for second place in the league standings. The Hawks are in the American division cellar, three games behind the Bruins.

According to advices received by Maj. McLaughlin before his departure the Hawks' defense trio is beginning to show signs of wear and tear, and if this is true Eddie Shore, the Bruins' fluctuating bad boy, will be tempted to play one of his roughest games tonight. Eddie started the season in one of his meanest moods, but cooled off for a spell.

During his two visits to Chicago Eddie was amazingly meek, playing 130 minutes in the contests, one of which was an overtime encounter. Recently, however, Shore has been on another rampage, going so far as to crack several ribs in the torso of Referee Smeaton, for which he was assessed $100 by the league president.

Hawks Are Due Tonight.

Despite the fact that the Hawks were shut out by the Americans, 4 to 0, Sunday night, the Hawks on their record cannot be consistently discouraged. In the first game of their current trip the Hawks suffered a 3 to 0 shutout at the hands of the Maroons, then bounced right back to trim the league leading Rangers, 3 to 1. Then followed the 4 to 0 setback at the hands of the Americans. On the pendulum philosophy, obviously, the Hawks are due tonight.

The Hawks will rest tomorrow, but Thursday night they will meet the Ottawa Senators, victims of a 9 to 2 trimming by the Rangers Saturday night. On Saturday night the Hawks will be at it again. Their foes will be the Maple Leafs, current leaders of the International division. And the very next night the Chicagoans must vie with the Red Wings, who thus far this season have been 100 per cent inhospitable to the Hawks in Detroit.

DAILY FEE GOLF COURSES CONFER ON WORLD'S FAIR

The anticipated coöperation between daily fee golf courses and private clubs for the busy A Century of Progress season began to take form yesterday at the directors' meeting of the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association, held at the Mid-City club. A committee of three was named by Vice President Tom Walsh of Westgate Valley, presiding in the absence of Charles Nash, president of the organization, to confer with officials of the Chicago District Golf association on plans for filling the golfing wants of visitors to the World's Fair.

The committee is composed of Ted Moreau of Mid-City, Julian M. Lambert of Northbrook, and James Loye of Golfmoor. The daily fee golf association, with a membership of 32 courses, nearly double that of last year, expects the Fair to prove the basis for its most successful year. Among those who attended the meeting, aside from Walsh and members of the committee appointed, were Art Ahern of Evergreen, Dave MacIntosh of Oak Hills, Bert Coghill of Cog-Hill, Ed Thiele of Hillside, Joe Roseman of Pickwick, J. Oliver Johnson of Rob Roy, Bud Roth of St. Andrews, and Bill Bain of Woodridge.

MOON MULLINS—SHE DONE HIM WRONG

Burlington, Ia., Picks Team for Golden Gloves

Burlington, Ia., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—Eight boys from six communities in southeastern Iowa and western Illinois will make up the team which the Burlington Gazette will send to Chicago to compete in THE TRIBUNE'S Tournament of Champions next month.

The Gazette's Golden Gloves tourney, the first event of this kind ever held in this vicinity, was a success in spite of conditions hereabouts which have caused regular promoters to go into temporary retirement.

The Burlington trials were held in four sessions, with the attendance at each one larger than its predecessor. The Gazette's eight champions are:

Flyweight—Larson Watts, Fort Madison, Ia.
Bantamweight—Dick Durant, Galesburg, Ill.
Featherweight—Bill Karben, Burlington.
Lightweight—Harry Colbert, Oquawka, Ill.
Welterweight—Chuck Wilhelmy, Burlington
Middleweight—Bob Britton, Fort Madison.
Light heavyweight—Gene Nelson, Batavia, Ia.
Heavyweight—Ivan Green, Matherville, Ill.

Entrants in the tournament numbered more than 60. Frank Thompson of Rock Island, who trained Vernon [Farmer] Miller, light heavyweight champion in THE TRIBUNE'S 1932 tournament, and Johnny Baltzer, flyweight, who was on THE TRIBUNE'S team in the international matches against Germany last season, helped the Gazette put on the tournament, as did Pat Crowel, local promoter.

Harry Colbert, the lightweight champion, a tough farmer boy from Oquawa, across the Mississippi from Burlington, is regarded as the ace of the team. Bill Karben, the featherweight representative, is a Burlington bootblack and a younger brother of Sam Karben, who was on the Davenport Times' team last year. Wilhelmy is a mattress stuffer at a local furniture factory and Britton a job printer at Fort Madison.

Gene Nelson, the light heavyweight winner, is a former Parsons college student and won the Iowa amateur championship last year. Ivan Green keeps in condition for coming heavyweight tussles by pushing cars of coal out of a "gopher hole" mine near Matherville.

The little fellows on the team, Watts, the flyweight and Durant, bantamweight, are idle at present, and thus will have plenty of time for training. Watts especially made a fine impression, winning two bouts by knockouts and outpointing Sammy Stinson, clever Burlington boy in the final.

80 IN GREEN BAY MEET

Green Bay, Wis., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—More than 80 boxers have entered the amateur tournament to be conducted by the Green Bay Press Gazette as a qualifying round for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE Golden Gloves meet. The entry list includes boys from all parts of northern Wisconsin and southern Michigan. The local tournament will be held on Feb. 15, 16, and 23 at the Columbus Community club.

Green Bay last year was represented in the Chicago tournament by Adolph Wister, who defeated Hans Berger of Germany in the international bouts at Soldiers' field.

100 ENTER AT DANVILLE

Danville, Ill., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—More than one hundred amateur boxers have entered the fourth annual Commercial News Golden Gloves tournament which will be held Feb. 6, 7, 20 and 21. Entries close Thursday. Winners will compete in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S tournament of champions Feb. 27 and 28 and March 1. Two champions of the 1932 tournament here, Les Browne, of Watseka, 112 pounds, and Poggie Wilson of Danville, 118 pounds, will try to repeat.

VINES, GLEDHILL WIN DOUBLES IN AUSTRALIA MEET

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 30.—(AP)—The touring United States tennis team today climaxed its Australian invasion by winning the Australian doubles championship, but failed in its quest for the singles title, retained by Jack Crawford.

Keith Gledhill and Ellsworth Vines Jr., American champions, won the doubles title in straight sets from Crawford and E. F. Moon, 6-4, 10-8, 6-2. Gledhill was no match for the brilliant Australian internationalist in the singles final and lost, 2-6, 7-5, 6-3, 6-2. It was Crawford's third straight championship, a record for the event.

Miss Out in Singles Titles.

Thus the American team, although winning three team matches and tieing one, did not win either of the major singles titles for which its members competed. Crawford defeated Vines in the finals of the Victoria tournament. Vines and Gledhill also won the Victoria doubles title, defeating Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn, their team mates, in the finals.

After being in Australia since last November, the American team will sail from Sydney Feb. 2 for New Zealand, where they will play again and then sail Feb. 14 for Honolulu and the Hawaiian championships. They expect to be back in the United States around March 1.

McGrath Is Outstanding.

Next to Crawford the outstanding figure among the Australians was 16-year-old Vivian McGrath. Playing his first year of major tennis, McGrath defeated all four Americans at one time or another and crowned his achievements with a victory over Vines in the quarter finals of the Australian tournament. A slightly built youngster, he has the unorthodox but effective habit of hitting his backhand shots with both hands on the racquet.

Failure to include McGrath on the Australian Davis cup team last year raised a storm of protest. It is predicted that he will be a member of this year's squad, which probably will challenge in the European zone.

HOLD FUNERAL TODAY FOR MRS. MARY LOFTUS

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary J. Loftus, sister of Capt. Charles McGurn of the East Chicago avenue police station, will be held tomorrow morning from the residence of her son, Thomas Jr., 6538 North Talman avenue. Burial will be at Calvary cemetery following solemn requiem high mass at St. Ignatius church, Glenwood and Loyola avenues.

Mrs. Loftus was a daughter of the late Michael McGurn, who was famed in earlier Chicago history as the founder of McGurn's handball courts. Here were developed some of the country's leading pugilists, including Jimmy Barry, former bantamweight champion of the world and the Gilmores.

BOOSTERS MEET STELZERS.

The undefeated Rosenberg-Arvey Boosters basketball team will meet the Stelzer five at the B. B. R. gymnasium, 16th street and Hamlin avenue, Thursday night. Spencer Coals and another girls' quintet will play the curtain raiser.

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

INTERCOLLEGIATE football may have lost its hold on the American public, as many contend, because of the sharp decline in attendance at 1932 games. But you can't convince Navy Bill Ingram, head coach at the University of California.

BILL INGRAM.

Ingram, who came east a few days ago to invite Notre Dame to Berkeley for a game on Dec. 9 next season, thinks football is too integral a part of our academic structure to suffer a permanent decline.

"There is something more to education than a few scratches on a student's brain cells," he said. "The physical and emotional sides of college life are almost equally important. The virtues of football are the basic qualities you look for in a well rounded man. The spirit of football seeps into the student body, even to outside spectators. You can sense it when you are leaving the stadium after a game.

"What we need is an educational point of view concerning college athletics. Too frequently in the past athletics have been treated negatively.

"I see no reason to worry over the future of football. Temporary decline in attendance may seriously affect universities that have overbuilt, but most of the larger schools have followed a sane program.

"California's receipts last fall were only $90,000 under 1931," Ingram states, "and we have met all our obligations without much effort. We have one of the finest athletic plants in the country."

Ingram, who has been in charge of football at California for two years, predicts his team will be second choice to none of the conference rivals by 1934. His school is the largest and one of the fastest growing on the coast. High entrance requirements have turned away athletic material that later appears at neighboring institutions, he said.

Ingram had no complaints because of his teams' failure to whip Southern California in his two year régime. He referred to the Southern California situation like this:

"I hear a lot of comment about alleged proselyting at Los Angeles. Candidly, I don't believe it. I feel that Southern California has an active, enterprising group of supporters who do everything they ethically can do to encourage high school athletes to matriculate there.

"I don't believe in taking a licking regularly and squawking about it. If we didn't feel that Southern California was fair competition we wouldn't have the school on our schedule."

Ingram is visiting at his home in Jeffersonville, Ind. He will call on the Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, president of Notre Dame, and Athletic Director Jess Harper this week in regard to a California-Notre Dame game for next December.

"This is no ordinary assignment for me," Ingram said before leaving for Jeffersonville. "The football fans of the San Francisco district are demanding a game with Notre Dame. They will accept no substitute. I know of no spot in the United States where Notre Dame would receive a more enthusiastic welcome than at Berkeley."

The prospects for a game in 1933 are not particularly bright. Notre Dame, I believe, would like to establish football relations with California, but has no suitable date to offer. California can't play on Dec. 16 because that is the examination period at Berkeley. It wants to bring Notre Dame west on Dec. 9. That is the Saturday after the Irish play the Army in New York, which would necessitate a transcontinental trip.

A similar situation arose once before. Notre Dame was scheduled to meet the Army in New York on the last Saturday of November in 1930 and Southern California at Los Angeles the first Saturday in December. The Army at Father O'Donnell's request agreed to play in Chicago to spare Notre Dame a train ride across the country.

BOTTOMLEY SAYS HE WON'T TAKE REDS' PAY CUT

Nokomis, Ill., Jan. 30.—(AP)—Jim Bottomley, first baseman traded by the St. Louis Cardinals to the Cincinnati Reds, said at his home here today that he had been asked by the Reds to take a $5,000 salary cut, compared with his 1932 pay, and added he would not sign for "that kind of a salary."

"The Cincinnati club has sent me a contract calling for $8,000," Bottomley said. "That's just $5,000 less than I received from the Cardinals last season."

Bottomley is to be married soon, and now is making plans for his honeymoon.

O'BRIEN STOPS KID LEONARD IN 8TH ROUND

Frankie O'Brien, Hartford, Conn., middleweight, stopped Kid Leonard of East Moline, Ill., in the eighth round of a scheduled ten round bout at White City last night. One thousand attended and receipts were $1,050.60.

O'Brien found the range with a left hook to the body in the sixth round, Leonard dropping to the canvas twice for nine counts. Leonard was down again from body punches in the seventh round and after going down for the second time in the eighth Referee Oscar Richman stopped the bout. O'Brien weighed 160½ pounds and Leonard 158½.

Leonard's right hand was broken in the fourth round and in the sixth he sustained two fractured ribs.

Cut Bothers Leonard.

In the first round O'Brien started jabbing with his right and Leonard had difficulty getting close enough to demonstrate his slugging ability. He got inside O'Brien's guard in the second round and landed swings to the head with both hands. A bad cut was opened over Leonard's right eye in the third round and it bothered him throughout.

Leonard appeared out when he went down for the first time in the sixth round, but he recovered just in time to beat the referee's count of ten. From then on it was apparent that Leonard wouldn't finish the match.

Bud Saltis, Minneapolis, Minn., 160 pounder, and Eddie Gill of St. Charles, Ill., fought a six round draw in the semi-final. It was a slugging match throughout. Both fighters were wobbly at times but always kept their feet.

Sisk Beats Burns.

M'FARLAND JOINS BOARD

The commission reinstated Jack Moran, west side middleweight, who was suspended for 60 days a month ago for failure to go through with a contest with Young Terry at the Coliseum last Dec. 16.

Laddie Tonelli and Einar Hedquist will meet in a six round contest at the Midway arena, 6115 Cottage Grove avenue, tonight. Virgil Bemi faces Johnny Terry in another six rounder. Other matches are: Sam Phillips vs. Clarence Ballard, Art Mitchell vs. Johnny Fitzpatrick, Wilfred Hoeshselaar vs. Jerry Kucera. Stanley West and Eddie Jacobs will appear in a wrestling exhibition.

Feathered Mates Deaf to Turkey Gobbler's Croon

BY BOB BECKER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Albany, Ga., Jan. 30.—One of the most interesting but unappreciated outdoor broadcasts we ever have heard in the woods was put on the air yesterday morning among the moss covered hickory and oak trees along the Flint river. A sixteen pound trained turkey gobbler was the featured artist on this unusual show and the way he crooned and gobbled was a caution.

This sleek, good-looking turkey, almost as tame as a house dog, was supposed to put on a program that would bring all the wild gobblers along the river around to hear the show. But not one feathered listener gave this young fellow encouragement.

J. W. Wortman, the Albany sportsman, who owns this remarkable turkey decoy, was with us in the woods. He has several of these tame gobblers which he has been training for a long time. He conceived the idea of taming a bird and then training it to walk around the woods, hurl challenging calls at the wild gobblers and daring them to come up for a fight, thus supplementing the turkey hunter's daylight stalking "yelpin'" as a means of bringing wild gobblers within shooting range.

Our introduction to this turkey decoy emphasized how tame Wortman's birds are. It was pitch dark when we left Radium Springs to start for the bottomlands. Flody Alford, one of the party, told us to ride with Wortman, so we walked around the automobile to get in the front seat. As we slid into the seat in the darkness something bumped us on the side of the head. And did we jump!

Then, as the car lights were flashed on, we saw what we had bumped into. A big turkey was sitting on the back of the front seat. It was the decoy and he rode in an automobile like a human passenger. No crate or sack for him. He perched right next to his boss in the driver's seat. The bird lifted its long neck, turned its head toward us and uttered a few throaty calls as if to say cheerio. Then it eased back into position for the bumpy ride toward the river.

When we reached the end of the road and made ready to plunge through the darkness into the cool, wet woods, Wortman lifted the turkey from the seat, tucked him under his arm and away we went.

STECHER WINS OVER ZAHARIAS ON ARMORY MAT

It took Stecher 36:35 to throw Zaharias. The latter resorted to rough tactics and butted Stecher out of the ring three times.

In the semi-windup, Jim McMillen was booed from the ring after wrestling a draw with Pat O'Shocker of Philadelphia. O'Shocker's face and body was covered with blood due to McMillen's slugging.

In the other bouts Joe Savoldi threw Paul Harper of Texas with a flying tackle in 19:15. John Ritchoff, former Swedish Olympic champion, beat Stanley Lurik with a body slam in 14:30. In the opening match Jack Smith and Joe Cox wrestled twenty minutes to a draw.

DUBLINSKY WINS DECISION OVER COOL IN 10 ROUNDS

One fireman was killed and four others were injured yesterday when the truck of emergency squad No. 5 crashed into a lamp post and overturned at 69th street and Cregier avenue. Fireman Louis Nilsen, 35 years old, 8216 Ellis avenue, had driven the fire squad car over the curb in an effort to avoid a collision with a paint truck driven by Joseph Wallin, 25 years old, 8339 Oglesby avenue. Nilsen was killed in the crash.

The injured are:

FIREMAN WILLIAM W. JOHNSON, 32 years old, 5606 South Richmond avenue. Fractured hip and wrenched back.

FIREMAN HARVEY NEUBERG, 38 years old, 8446 South Green street, and FIREMAN JOHN LEMBERGER, 26 years old, 614 East 88th street; both suffered cuts and bruises. Wallin suffered cuts and bruises about the head.

Squad Noted for Speed.

The fire squad, which had gained the title of the "speed merchants" of the fire department, had left the station at 69th street and Harper avenue in answer to an alarm of a fire in a delicatessen store at 1929 East 71st street.

The fire truck was headed east in 69th street when the paint truck approached on Cregier avenue from the north. The fire truck caromed off a lamp post and side-swiped the paint truck as it overturned. The blaze in the delicatessen store was extinguished with little damage.

January Auto Toll 74.

The death of Nilsen and one other yesterday increased the Cook county automobile toll for 1933 to 74. The other victim:

Ollie Warden, 28 years old, 721 Ayers court. Died in St. Anthony's hospital of a severed spinal cord suffered 15 months ago.

Joseph Murrie, 72 years old, died in Waukegan yesterday of injuries suffered last Tuesday on his farm northwest of Gurnee, in Lake county. He cranked a truck while it was in gear.

Martin Jensen, 61 years old, 611 South Harvey avenue, Oak Park, was probably fatally injured yesterday in a collision at Madison street and Austin boulevard, Oak Park. Jensen was taken to the Oak Park hospital, where he is said to have suffered a broken neck.

NIGHT CLUB BOMB STARTS INQUIRY; THREAT IS BARED

Blast Precedes Hearing of Robbery Case.

State's Attorney Courtney yesterday directed Assistant State's Attorney William Crilly and Chief Investigator Daniel Gilbert to make an investigation of the bombing yesterday morning of the night club operated at 2044 North Clark street by Theodore "Spider" Meyer.

A bomb was exploded on the roof of the place shortly after 6 a. m. That is the time when the night club is usually filled with politicians and the owners, entertainers and other employés of cabarets which close earlier. No one was hurt by the bomb explosion and little damage was done, but the blast aroused residents of fashionable hotels in Lincoln Park West, a block away.

Telephone Warning Revealed.

The police discovered that shortly before the bomb was exploded Meyer was called to the telephone and warned not to assist the prosecution of William Davis, who was arrested after he robbed the night club's bartender of $43 on Jan. 3.

Davis' case was on the call of Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court for yesterday morning. Meyer said he told the anonymous telephone caller that he was not the prosecuting witness, that his bartender, Theodore English, was the one who had been held up and the one who would appear in court.

When Davis' case was called in court the bomb and the telephoned warning to Meyer had not been reported to the state's attorney's office and Judge Prystalski knew nothing about it either. He assigned the case to Judge Michael Feinberg for trial and upon Davis' plea that he wanted time to engage a lawyer a continuance was ordered to Feb. 9.

Later, on learning about the threat to Meyer and the bombing, Prosecutor Crilly reported to Mr. Courtney and was told to get all the facts and take proper action.

James Todd, 75, Retired Building Contractor, Dies

PROF. T. C. HILL, EDUCATOR HERE 49 YEARS, DEAD

Prof. Thomas Crawford Hill, veteran educator who taught in Chicago schools from 1881 to 1930, died Sunday at Holyoke, Colo., where he had made his home for the last eight months. He was 73 years old.

PROFESSOR HILL.

In 1885 Prof. Hill became principal of the old Kensington school in Pullman. When the city of Chicago annexed the territory he was made principal of the Curtis grammar school. To this added the Curtis Junior High school in 1903, and Prof. Hill was kept as principal of both divisions.

When the new Fenger High school at 112th street and Michigan avenue was finished in 1926 he was chosen to take charge of it. This post he held until his retirement under the age limit on Feb. 1, 1930. Shortly before his departure about 1,000 alumni of the school gathered at a dinner in his honor and established a scholarship fund bearing his name, through which certain Fenger graduates have been able to attend college.

Prof. Hill is survived by three sons and two daughters. Funeral services will be held at Bethany church, 111th street and Perry avenue, at 3 p. m. tomorrow.

ROBBER IS SHOT AFTER THRILLING SOUTH SIDE CHASE

A robber was shot and probably fatally wounded within sight of scores of pedestrians yesterday near the busy intersection of Stony Island and South Chicago avenues and 79th street. The shooting followed the kidnaping and wounding of Nicholas Palgen, 8001 Clyde avenue, by the robber and a companion.

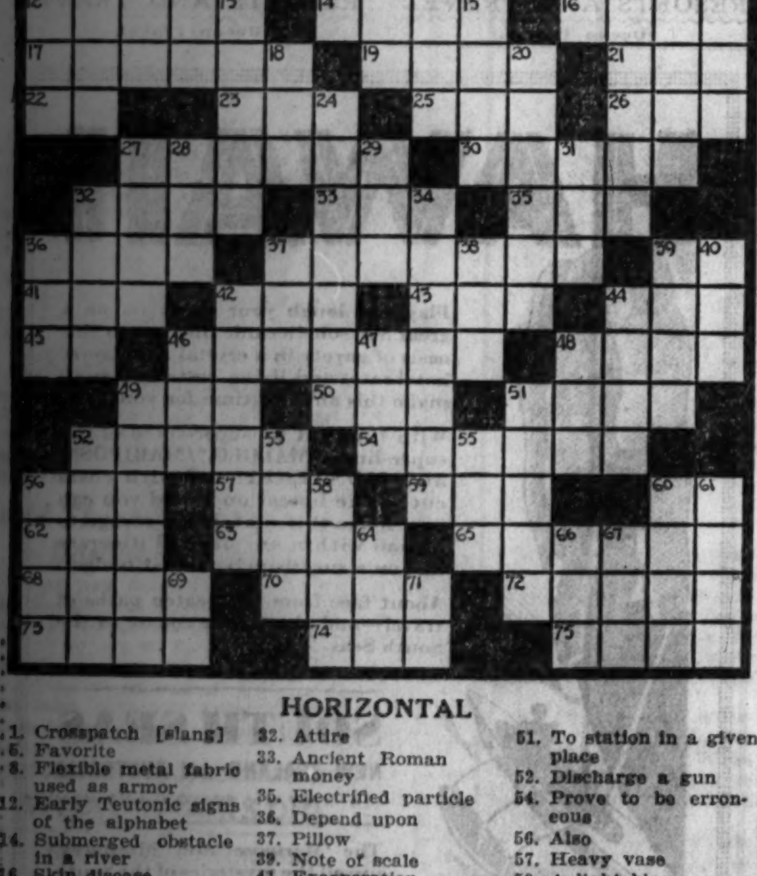

Palgen was held up by the two robbers as he was taking his car out of his garage at the rear of his home. He was forced to get into the back seat, where one robber took $1.10 from him while the other drove. A sudden stop at Bennett avenue and 78th street caused the robber in the back seat to drop his revolver. He and Palgen struggled for the weapon while the driver, excited, crashed into an automobile at Cornell avenue and 79th street.

The impact threw Palgen from the car and one of the robbers shot him in the leg as he lay on the ground. The robbers were then chased by Policeman James O'Connor. A number of pedestrians joined the pursuit. Policeman O'Connor shot one robber in the body as he was climbing a railroad embankment at Anthony and Stony Island avenues. The other bandit escaped. The wounded man was taken to the Jackson Park hospital, where he gave the name of James Smith, 30 years old, 7156 South Winchester avenue. He was later identified, however, as James Wheatley, who was paroled from Joliet prison last October after serving ten years for robbery.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

INVENTOR'S WILL STARTS CONTEST; $200,000 IS STAKE

Attorney Hugo Radau appeared before Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge Taylor, yesterday to oppose the probating of the will of B. A. Crenshaw, an inventor of automobile accessories, who divided his estate into ten million shares under his will. Crenshaw, who lived at 5652 South park way, died on Oct. 13 at the age of 56.

Attorney Radau represented 193 investors who, he said, had given Crenshaw $200,000 to be used in the marketing of a patented direction signal for automobiles. The $200,000, he charged, comprises practically the sole asset of the estate, and to probate the will and distribute the money to the legatees would constitute a fraud against the investors, he urged.

Mr. Caplan admitted the will to probate. He suggested to Attorney Radau that the creditors file a bill in the Circuit court to set aside both Crenshaw's will and the ten million share trust fund which was created under it.

J. Grey Lucas, former attorney for Crenshaw and one of the legatees under the will, told Mr. Caplan that the direction signal, if sold to automobile manufacturers, would be worth "millions of dollars." Crenshaw previously made large profits from his invention of a windshield wiper, but lost that money in the stock market, Attorney Lucas said.

Mercy hospital is the home of the new X-ray cancer clinic established by Dr. Herbert E. Schmitz and associates, and not Michael Reese hospital, as stated in THE TRIBUNE yesterday. A special lead protected building is located on the grounds of Mercy hospital, 26th and Calumet.

At the end of a dispatch, dated Jan. 10, from THE TRIBUNE's Paris correspondent, concerning war debt negotiations, there was appended a note stating that the remainder of the dispatch had been held up by the French censor. This was an error and was due to a misinterpretation of an exchange of cablegrams regarding an other dispatch which the censor had held up. The Paris correspondent was permitted by the censor early the next morning, Jan. 11, to cable to revised and rewritten version of the second dispatch.

YOU CAN'T FOOL WOMEN

Women are born shoppers. They know values. Time after time, they pass up a so-called bargain because they are not to be taken in by the lure of low price alone. But also time after time they save money by knowing a good thing when they find it!... That explains the great popularity of Listerine Tooth Paste among women. They don't have to pay 40 or 50 cents a tube to assure themselves they are getting the best dentifrice money can buy. They judge by results. Since their teeth are unmistakably whiter and brighter because of Listerine Tooth Paste, they are delighted to pay 25 cents—and to save about three dollars a year on tooth paste alone! MILLS AID URGES PUBLIC FORCE BUDGET ACTION

Holds Pressure on Congress Needed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—Calling for the deflation of governmental costs Under Secretary of the Treasury Ballantine told the annual dinner of the American Acceptance council here tonight that insistent and irresistible public pressure will be necessary to make congress balance the budget.

"There must be no postponement or abatement in the development of insistent public opinion for the earliest possible assurance of adequate budget legislation," Ballantine told the gathering. This development must continue although congress has deferred budget balancing until the coming special session, the undersecretary declared.

Thinks Congress Will Waver.

Pointing to the rising tide of feeling for reduced governmental expenditures, Ballantine warned that "in spite of this, the crucial question of the day is whether there will be sufficient resolution in congress to carry into effect such a program."

"Faced with opposition of special groups adversely affected," Ballantine said, "it seems likely that congress will not keep expenditures down unless it is actively supported by irresistible public opinion."

Ballantine said that not until the government stopped borrowing to cover its deficit would the foundation for confidence and constructive effort be established. Beside the benefits which would accrue to business, the treasury itself would be helped in the task of refunding the public debt, he said.

Cites Chance for Refunding.

"The treasury now has outstanding in the open market about 3 billion dollars of certificates of indebtedness and treasury bills maturing within a year," Ballantine explained. "The 4¼ per cent fourth Liberty loan in the amount of about $6,300,000,000 also becomes callable on October next, and offers a real opportunity for reducing interest costs through refunding. The first Liberty loan in the amount of $1,940,000,000 is now callable. Definite plans for large scale debt refunding operations require more certainty for the future of the budget itself."

After pointing out that the incoming administration may have to refinance $11,260,000,000 within a year, Ballantine said that only by bolstering the government's credit could the huge operation be successfully accomplished.

Urging the passage of a general manufacturers' excise tax and the continuation of the gasoline tax, Ballantine lashed out against congressional leaders who have criticized the treasury's budget estimates and used their alleged inaccuracy as an excuse for not balancing the budget.

INSURANCE CHIEF MIGHT PROFIT BUT RAPS INFLATION

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Insurance company executives are chilly toward the various proposals that are being advanced for inflation of the currency.

Asked to explain this attitude, President H. A. Behrens of the Continental Assurance company and its running mate, the Continental Casualty company, remarks:

"By inflation I understand you to mean reducing the gold content of the dollar—cheapening money.

"The adoption by congress of such a program could not injure insurance companies financially. Their obligations to policyholders are payable not in gold but in the United States dollar.

"On the other hand most of the investments held by life insurance companies are payable in gold of standard weight and fineness.

Final Ruling Would Be Up to Supreme Court.

"If congress should decide to cheapen the dollar it would be up to the United States Supreme court to decide whether contracts demanding payment in gold could legally be satisfied by payment in depreciated dollars.

"If the Supreme court should decide that bonds and mortgages calling for payment in gold must be paid in gold then the insurance companies would stand to profit at the expense of their policyholders. Policyholders would have to accept the cheaper dollars in payment of their claims, but the insurance companies could demand payment in gold on a large part of their investments.

"On the other hand, if the Supreme court should decide against enforcement of the 'gold clause' the insurance companies would merely accept in payment on their investments the same kind of dollars that they would pay out to policyholders, and so would be none the worse."

Thus, it would seem that insurance companies have nothing to lose, and, possibly, have something to gain by congressional cheapening of money.

Why Insurance Men Object to Inflation.

Still, insurance company heads are generally opposed to devaluing the dollar.

"Why this opposition?" we asked Mr. Behrens.

He listed several reasons, chief among which was that insurance companies don't need inflation to be able to meet their obligations.

"No insurance company of any sort," he said, "has ever failed by reason of the shrinkage of its investments where the investment portfolio has been built along common sense lines."

Mr. Behrens insists that the depression will give way to recovery only when certain corrective processes that have been under way have been completed.

"Two things must happen," he says. "The cost of government has got to come down as other costs have come down. And, second, there must be greater willingness to work on the part of the individual."

Inflation Urged Chiefly As Help for Farmers.

Inflation has been urged in congress largely by representatives of agrarian states. It has been argued that devaluation of the dollar would reverse the downward spiral of prices. Higher prices for wheat, cotton, hogs, and other products, the reasoning goes, would mean a larger number of dollars income for the farmer, and hence greater ability to pay interest on the mortgage.

Last month at the annual meeting of the association of life insurance presidents, John R. Hardin, president of the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance company, presented figures showing that legal reserve life insurance companies in the United States have only 8.8 per cent of their investments placed in farm mortgages. Of a grand total of 19 billions of investments only 1 billion 666 million is represented by farm mortgages.

For nine years life insurance companies have been reducing the proportion of their farm mortgage investments. In 1924 it touched the high. In that year farm mortgages were 18.7 per cent of all life insurance company investments.

Inflation—if it worked according to predictions—might make it easier for the farmer to pay his insurance company mortgage promptly.

Premium Income Most Important to Company.

But the insurance company is more concerned with premium income from policyholders. Farm mortgages are only 8.8 per cent of total insurance company investments and over a period of years company experts figure they will all be paid anyway, in one way or another.

More important in their eyes is living up to the faith imposed in life insurance by the policyholder. When he took out his policy he agreed to pay good dollars because he expected to get good dollars back.

Depreciation of the United States currency might impair the faith of the policyholder and make him less willing to make a fixed type of investment that would fail to appreciate in good times and would be cheapened by political action in bad times.

That is probably the chief reason for the insurance companies' insistence on the "honest dollar."

64 RAILROADS SHOW BEST NET SINCE AUG. 1929

Profit in December Better than 1931.

Reports on rail earnings for the first time in years are showing to advantage in comparison with reports for 1931. Earnings reports to date indicate that the combined net operating income of all class I roads for December, 1932, will exceed that of 1931, being the first time since August, 1929, that income exceeded that of the preceding year.

Sixty-four lines report that their combined December earnings are 13.7 per cent ahead of those of December, 1931. The income of the 64 roads totaled $28,749,000, as compared with $25,264,000 in December, 1931.

I. C. Income Gains.

Among the roads to report an improvement yesterday was the Illinois Central. Its net operating income for December was $1,235,574—an increase of $295,005 over 1931. This was made in the face of a decline of $1,160,039 in railway operating revenues, which totaled $7,077,503 for December, 1932.

The system showed a deficit of $3,-546,574 for the year ending Dec. 31, 1932. This was a decline in deficit of $35,537 from 1931.

Illinois Central's railway operating revenue for 1932 was $39,305,278, a decline of $27,482,916 from 1931. However, this was largely offset by a decline of $28,293,537 in operating expenses, which totaled $66,504,097 for 1932. Net operating income for 1932 was $12,578,554 for 1932, a gain of $731,136 over 1931.

The Chicago Great Western reported a net loss of $1,365,466 in 1932, against a net income of $901,113 in 1931.

Santa Fe Net Is Up.

The Santa Fe reported a net operating income for December of $1,224,270, as compared with $944,960 in 1931. Net operating income for the 12 months ending Dec. 31, 1932, was $17,659,793, as compared with $31,449,-274 in 1931. Gross totaled $133,133,-538, as compared with $181,181,261 in 1931.

RESERVE BANKS' DEMAND FUNDS UP HALF BILLION

Demand deposits of the principal reserve member banks of the country are nearly half a billion dollars ahead of last year, according to the weekly report of condition issued yesterday.

Demand deposits showed another gain last week of $29,000,000, reaching a current $11,936,000,000. Last year at this time they stood at $11,-453,000,000. Time deposits receded $46,000,000 last week. They now stand at $5,656,000,000, a decrease of $115,000,000 from last year.

Security holdings of the reporting reserve banks expanded $39,000,000 last week. This increase was shown in the face of a decline of $8,000,000 in investments in the United States government bonds. The increase in "other" securities amounted to $47,-000,000.

While security holdings rose the total of loans and investments declined. Loans on securities shrank $40,000,000 and other types of loans dropped $35,000,000.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 30.—The report of the Curtis Publishing company and its distributing subsidiary for 1932 shows a net profit of $5,567,905 after depreciation, federal taxes, and other charges. This was equivalent to $6.19 a share earned on the 900,000 no par value $7 preferred stock.

Current assets at the end of last year were $33,433,464 and current liabilities were shown as $6,926,637. On Dec. 31, 1931, current assets were $34,-715,182 and current liabilities were $6,389,047. Cash on Dec. 31, 1932, was reported at $2,944,490, against $3,083,-293 a year ago.

$250,000 Deal Keeps Soldier's Grave Sacred

BY AL CHASE.

Sentiment, backed by a Supreme court decision of many years ago, will keep the grave of Andreas Zirngibl, who lost an arm fighting against Napoleon, intact, despite the sale yesterday of the seven and a half acres of industrial property in which the body lies, to the Universal Atlas Cement company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation, for $250,000. It was sold by the Material Service corporation with the stipulation that not only must the grave be untouched, but that a passage must be maintained forever from the nearest street to the last home of the old German warrior.

Andreas Zirngibl was a soldier in Blücher's army, and while fighting against Napoleon was badly wounded in the left arm and had to have it amputated. Later he came to Chicago. He was unable to get work with one arm, and decided he'd try fishing. He followed the lake shore south from the city limits until he came to the property sold yesterday.

Built Cabin on River.

At that time there were no huge steel mills on made land and he built a cabin near where his grave is now and which was then close to the mouth of the Calumet river. He lived here for several years as a fisherman and just before his death requested that he be buried on his land. This was done.

His simple grave is inclosed by a white picket fence. The plain tombstone, on which is mounted a white cross, carries these words, in German "Andreas Zirngibl, born 1797, died 1855. Here rest his ashes. Amen."

Location of Property.

The property on which stands the Zirngibl grave has a frontage of about 700 feet on Ewing avenue and nearly the same on the Calumet river. It is bounded on the east by the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern railroad, also a steel corporation subsidiary, which connects this land with the great Buffington cement plant of the Universal Atlas concern.

It is hinted that yesterday's purchase is to enable the cement concern to load cement on river steamers using the lakes to gulf waterway. It adjoins property already owned by the Universal Atlas.

TWO CASUALTY COMPANIES VOTE TO CONSOLIDATE

At the annual meeting yesterday of the Life and Casualty company and the Mutual Casualty company of Chicago, the stockholders and policy holders voted to merge the two concerns which will hereafter transact business in the name of the Life and Casualty company of Chicago with home offices at 750 North Michigan avenue. It is explained that the same interests own the two companies and the merger was made for reasons of economy.

The Life and Casualty company recently contracted to reinsure the 26 millions of business of the Old Colony Life company after its bid had been accepted in the Circuit court and formally approved by the director of trade and commerce of Illinois. Premiums which had been held up are now being paid to Old Colony policyholders.

As a result of the merger the Life and Casualty company of Chicago will have $53,000,000 of insurance in force, $493,750 capital, assets of $7,178,823, and surplus of $1,348,343. M. A. Kern is president of the company.

Reducing Gold in Dollar Urged by Professors

This is the ninth of a series of ten articles reviewing the attitudes toward the solution of the depression held by business leaders, financiers, and economists in the United States today.

BY REUBEN D. CAHN.

A dollar is a piece of metal containing 23.8 grains, or about one-twentieth of an ounce of pure gold, and some baser metals of insignificant value. When wheat sells for a dollar a bushel it is the exact equivalent of 23.8 grains of pure gold.

Since 1929 the purchasing power of 23.8 grains of pure gold has increased tremendously. Four years ago it would buy less than 2 pounds of butter, five pounds of copper, a bushel and a half of corn, or five pounds of cotton. Now it will buy more than four pounds of butter, twenty pounds of copper, four bushels of corn, or sixteen pounds of cotton.

Want Money Value Reduced.

A substantial group of economists hold that this decline in prices is the cause of the depression, and that the cure is to be found in reducing the value of the standard unit of value.

Prof. Warren and Pearson of Cornell university told a scientific meeting recently that they had found from a detailed study that prices are determined by conditions affecting gold. On a gold basis prices doubled between 1915 and 1920, they said, because most of the countries of the world stopped using gold and stopped bidding for it. It became cheaper. It took more of it to buy other goods in the countries which were still using gold.

According to Warren and Pearson

PLEA TO FINISH INSULL DAM IN TEXAS DENIED

$8,500,000 Project Ruled Out.

Another ambitious scheme of Samuel Insull, the eight million dollar dam project which he proposed to build on the banks of the Colorado river in Texas, is likely to remain unfinished as the result of an order handed down yesterday by Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley.

The project is only partially built. Judge Lindley's order denied a motion of Eugene V. R. Thayer, receiver for the Mississippi Valley Utilities Investment company, to enter into an agreement with the Colorado River company for completion of the project. Under the proposed agreement, it was planned to obtain a $5,000,000 loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation to resume work.

ANNUAL ANNOUNCEMENT

Fort Wayne, Indiana

THE record of life insurance in 1932 offers indisputable proof that life insurance is the soundest form of investment mankind has yet devised.

Life insurance companies of the United States paid to policyholders or beneficiaries during the year just closed the gigantic sum of $3,100,000,000 — $925,000,000 as death claims, and $2,175,000,000 to living policyholders in matured endowments, annuities, surrender values, dividends, and disability benefits, and in addition, $1,100,000,000 was loaned to policyholders. The tremendous benefit to living policyholders from investments in life insurance in a year when nearly every other type of investment was either wiped out entirely or depreciated sadly, is especially worthy of consideration.

Despite such enormous yearly disbursements, the total assets of American life insurance companies have increased $3,000,000,000 during the three years of depression—an amount exceeding the total asset worth of the same companies in 1906. Certainly these figures show strength and liquidity—a marvelous guarantee of the future safety of life insurance.

The surplus of The Lincoln National Life Insurance Company, which is the margin of protection to policyholders, has increased approximately $400,000 since the beginning of the year, despite the fact that $16,558,000 was paid to policyholders and beneficiaries. Its investments are in liquid position with several million dollars of instantly marketable securities and the largest bank deposits in its history.

The Company has had the same able and continuous management for more than a quarter of a century. A carefully selected group of investment experts operate on The Lincoln's own rigid investment policy, which is even more exacting in its standards than Indiana laws. This has enabled the company to show an increase in assets in spite of general financial adversity. The surplus to protect policyholders is over $7,000,000 in 1932. Since its organization, The Lincoln National Life Insurance Company has paid a total of $81,800,000 to its policyholders and beneficiaries.

CARRIER GROUP GIVES STRENGTH TO STOCK MARKET

Wall Street Awaits Steel Dividend Action.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 30.—Most news marketwise was of a nature to put traders in a down-in-the-mouth mood, but nevertheless the stock market presented a firm to strong tone today.

Kept in line by a persistently strong railroad section, the list held steady at levels slightly above Saturday's closing and ended a dull session with many advances, albeit fractional for the most part.

The turnover came to a halt around the half-million-share mark, the smallest since last October. The ticker rarely moved at times.

Await Dividend News.

Taking priority over foreign political complications growing out of cabinet turnovers in Germany and France, the major subject of talk in brokerage offices was the outlook for United States Steel dividends, common and preferred. Directors of the company will give the word after the close of the market tomorrow.

Steel dividend prospects on the eve of the announcement were more than ever of a blueish hue, but the market refused to go in the dumps altogether about it.

As a matter of fact it was the strong performance of both classes of steel stock that enabled the general list to survive the session in a higher key. Steel common closed unchanged and the preferred posted a fractional gain. Traders apparently saw no reason for a turndown as long as Steel itself was indifferent to the music to be faced tomorrow.

World News Ignored.

Ordinarily a reaction on the downside would have been in order after the downfall of the governments in Germany and France. On the contrary, these major government upheavals had virtually no effect on stocks. The reich debacle, of course, occasioned the most interest, because of its greater ramifications.

In general the market was calm to the accession to power of the Nazis in Germany. The tendency was to wait and see, with the attitude that, after all, a government enjoying the fullest measure of popular support would be the best in the long run.

Aside from the strength in United States Steel, stocks again were helped by the firmness shown in a number of railroad issues. The carrier group continued to meet good buying on all recessions. On the whole the list was up fractionally. Canadian Pacific recovered more than a point. Chesapeake & Ohio was especially firm, and its running mate, Chesapeake Corporation, swung ahead easily. Sante Fe ruled higher in a rather thin market.

The street could not get further alarmed over persistent reports of an other cigaret price cut and tobacco shares were strong for the first time in several days. At times they shared market leadership. American Tobacco shares were best liked.

Expectation of a dividend declaration held Borden to a higher level. On the other hand, dividend uncertainty kept the brakes on Chrysler. That motor leader acted poorly all day, but hardened in late trading to close unchanged.

Case was fractionally better in sympathy with the strength in wheat.

the attempts to reëstablish the gold standard, culminating in the French return to a gold basis, brought about an international scramble for gold, and collapse came soon after. They continued: "Our situation is such as would have occurred if the world had suddenly acquired a doubled supply of gold and, after becoming adjusted to it, had lost the extra supply in successive collapses."

Would Cut Gold in Dollar.

They proposed to bring about higher prices by reducing the gold content from 23.8 to something like 16 grains. Since prices in America are expressions in terms of gold, if the piece of gold called a dollar is made smaller, then commodities would be worth more pieces—prices would rise. By reducing the size of the dollar by the amount of the decline in the price level, since prosperity days, they would restore the price level to that existing in prosperity days.

The proposal to change the gold content of the dollar is not a new one. As the "compensated dollar," it has been advocated for years by Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale university. In England the plan had the endorsement of Sir Josiah Stamp, Reginald McKenna, and John Maynard Keynes; in Sweden by Dr. Gustav Cassel, and in Germany by Prof. Schulze-Gaevernitz.

Gold Bonds a Problem.

There are most of the same objections to this plan as to the managed currency proposal described yesterday. The gold clause in billions of dollars of contracts makes the scheme ineffective in meeting the debt problem, unless the Supreme court knocks out the gold clause. Having set a precedent in this way, the opponents say, there might be a clamor for again reducing the size of the dollar. Some are firm in the belief that smaller dollars would not automatically bring higher quotations. Any indication that the plan had the support of the administration would probably result in a panic.

"The compensated dollar plan," says Thomas A. Adams, who has been the financial adviser to more than one secretary of the treasury, "deserves thorough examination by every person whose mind is practical enough to entertain the belief that some of the deeper sources of cyclical disturbances may by time and thought be removed. But it is not practicable at this time, because people believe it impracticable if for no other reason. It proposes to lay hands upon the economic holy-of-holies and before it can be acted upon it will require an amount of critical discussion commensurate with that which should be given say to a proposal to alter fundamentally the marriage relation."

COTTON TRADE LIGHT; CLOSES AROUND BOTTOM

Influence at work in the cotton market produced an irregular movement of prices within an extremely narrow range and finished around the lowest, with net losses on futures in Chicago at 4@11 points and other markets 8@11 points. Spots declined 15 points in New York to 6.10c, with New Orleans off 10 points to 6.00c, or the same at Galveston, while Houston was 5.90c. Liverpool 5@6 points net lower.

Liquidation of March contracts featured the early trading and weakened the market slightly, but a surprising absorption of the offerings created a better feeling and a recovery of part of the loss. Later, however, there was limited buying, producing weakness and lower prices, with trading light toward the last.

Worth Street reported a good business the last week and mill activity is said to be holding at about the recent level. The trade is at sea as the market seems to have no regular trend. Washington reported President Elect Roosevelt was considering currency reflation in order to raise commodity prices and ease financial stringency. Prices follow:

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was quiet today and no sales were reported. Offerings appeared to be a little more liberal at the last paid price of 2.70c for nearby sugars, but refiners showed no interest above 2.68c. Evening up in March or exchanging from that delivery to later months was the principal feature in futures. Fluctuations were narrow, the market moving within a point range throughout the session and closing net unchanged to 1 point lower. Increased offerings in the spot market probably were responsible for a little March liquidation, and this, together with some selling by houses with producing connections, accounted for the partial decline. Cuban interests appeared to be buying March and selling the later deliveries, while trade and commission houses sold March and bought later months. Sales were 7,950 tons, including 3,200 in exchanges from March to September and December. Prices follow:

would buy power generated by the dam.

Attorneys for the receivers of Middle West objected to the completion of the project on the grounds that these contracts were "grossly unfair." They declared that it would be necessary for the Central Power and Light company and the West Texas company to repudiate the contracts made to purchase current furnished by the dam.

The attorneys also claimed that R. W. Morrison, head of the Colorado River company, who is behind the proposal, is not investing anything while putting himself in a position to derive large profits from the undertaking.

No Hearings Held Here.

Judge Lindley's order was mailed in from Danville. No hearing has been held here on the question.

It was generally understood that when Insull began the project it was assured of an outlet for its power. Samuel Insull, as head of Mississippi, was the power seller, and Samuel Insull, the real head of the other operating subsidiaries, was the purchaser. The project is said to have been forced on the officials of the operating subsidiaries.

Independent utility operators assert that the rates which the companies agreed to purchase power when the dam was finished are greatly in excess of what it would cost to generate their current.

Couldn't Earn Interest.

Bankers familiar with the set-up assert that even with these contracts the Hamilton dam could not earn enough to cover interest on invested capital.

"While it is creditable for the receiver to attempt to salvage assets for the concern," Judge Lindley said in denying the motion, "the court is not disposed to authorize the undertaking which is of doubtful legality, and which will, no doubt, result in extensive and costly litigation."

LONGS SELL JANUARY LARD; MARKET WEAKENS

Liquidation in January lard was of sufficient volume to weaken the entire market with the close 2½@5c lower, the latter on January. There were a few cash lots delivered which went into the hands of warehousemen.

Trade expectations are that Chicago stocks will increase 1,000,000 to 2,000,000 lbs. for the month. There were also several lots of bellies sent out and stocks of bellies are expected to increase 3,000,000 to 4,000,000 lbs.

A moderate cash business in lard and meats is under way and the provision situation is fairly healthy, the first half of the winter packing season having been passed. Cash lard was $3.80 for regular, with loose $3.40, and leaf $3.25. Bellies were unchanged for January and 2½c lower on May, with cash lots steady at $3.87½. Prices follow:

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Reports regarding the political, financial and economic conditions at home and abroad were regarded by wheat traders as not conducive to active operations in the market, and prices held within a range of around ½c yesterday. The limited speculative interest on the Chicago Board of Trade was in keeping with that in other countries, and the professional element generally is inclined to go very slow on either side pending further developments.

During the last three trading days May wheat in Chicago has had a range of less than 1c per bu, and the close yesterday, while ¼@⅜c higher for the day, was the same as last Friday. May finished at 47½@47⅝c; July, 47⅝c, and September, 48⅞c. Winnipeg gained ¼@⅜c in Canadian funds while Liverpool was unchanged to ⅛c lower and Buenos Aires was up ¼@⅜c for the day.

Crop News Not a Factor.

Leading wheat traders expressed themselves during the day as inclined to look for the market to hold within narrow limits until there was more distinct evidence of the probable trend of prices in the immediate future, and in the meantime they were not taking a decided stand on either side. News developments during the day generally were of a character to have stimulated buying under normal conditions. No rain was shown in the dry sections of the winter wheat belt, with dust storms over the week end in parts of Nebraska.

According to a London cable Prime Minister MacDonald's British agricultural advisers were reported as having notified the government wheat prices would probably advance, looking for a considerable reduction in the present surplus stocks, while the supply and demand position would be more closely adjusted than for some years. Both the United States and Russia, it was claimed, would probably disappear from international trade as sellers, and Russia may even become an importer.

Sell Corn; Buy Wheat.

Selling of corn against purchases of wheat, which traders credited to a leading local professional, had a depressing effect on the former. May sold down to 26@26⅛c, or about 1c above the inside figure of the season, and closed on a fractional rally at 26¼c. July was 27⅝@27¾c, and September, 28⅞, prices being unchanged to ⅛c lower for the day. There was no export business indicated, while country offerings were small and eastern shipping demand slow.

Oats finished ⅛c lower, with May 17c and July 17⅛@17¼c, the action of corn being the main influence. Rye again followed wheat, but there was relatively little spreading between the two grains. The finish was ⅜@½c higher, with May closing at 34½c and July at 34c. Barley lost ⅛c, with May at 27⅝c.

REPORT BRITAIN WILL ALTER RULE ON WHEAT VIA U.S.

WINNIPEG, Man., Jan. 30.—(AP)—The Winnipeg Free Press said today it understood on good authority that the ban against shipping Canadian wheat through Buffalo and United States Atlantic ports under the British tariff preference regulations soon will be lifted.

"A second shipment of wheat left New York two weeks ago on the steamer Brittanic, and it is believed to have been granted the 6 cents preference," the Free Press said.

"A statement to this effect is likely to be made by the British treasury within a few days.

"The British customs department refused free entry to a quantity of Canadian wheat shipped from New York on the steamer Laconia last December.

"By slightly changing the documentation of the grain sent on the Brittanic, it is believed that the regulations of the British customs have been complied with and the grain is entitled to the preference."

FIGURES LOSSES OF STEEL MAKERS AT $12.50 PER TON

Cleveland, O., Jan. 30.—(AP)—W. S. Doxsey, editor of Daily Metal Trade, said today that a survey made by the publication indicated that financial losses of the first ten steel companies in 1932 exceeded $131,500,000.

The survey also showed, Doxsey said, that the average loss on steel ingots made by these ten companies was $12.50 a ton, and average losses on finished steel they sold were more than $18 a ton.

The paper's compilation included these companies, listed in the order of their rated ingot capacity: United States Steel corporation, Bethlehem Steel corporaation, Republic Steel corporation, Jones and Laughlin Steel corporation, Youngstown Sheet and Tube company, National Steel corporation, Inland Steel company, American Rolling Mill company, Wheeling Steel corporation, and Corrigan-McKinney Steel company.

The ten companies represent 85 per cent of the nation's steel producing capacity.

EXPECT STEEL TO CUT PREFERRED DIVIDEND TODAY

Observers Look for Year's Deficit of 100 Millions.

New York, Jan. 30.—Now that the financial community is fairly well resigned to expect either omission or a deep cut in the preferred dividend of the United States Steel corporation when directors meet tomorrow, speculation has turned to the estimates of the giant organization's losses in the last quarter and what without question was the worst year in the history of the steel industry.

The loss from operations in the last three months of 1932 are estimated in the neighborhood of $5,000,000, and on this there seems to be some agreement in conservative quarters, while after the payment of interest charges and other outlays the deficit for the quarter is expected to run somewhere between $22,000,000 and $25,000,000.

Expct 100 Millions Deficit.

In the first nine months of 1932 the loss from operations reported by Big Steel reached $8,974,862, while the deficit after the payment of charges and the preferred dividend mounted to $73,457,188, which indicates the deficit of Big Steel for last year is in the neighborhood of $100,000,000.

This would compare with a final deficit after dividends of $49,165,485 for the previous year. This was equivalent to a loss of approximately $1.40 a share on the common stock.

All during the year there was a continued drain on the resources of steel, and at the end of the third quarter cash was shown at $82,000,000 and $48,773,000 was in United States government securities.

Differ on Dividend Action.

What the comparable figures at the close of the year were there is not so much guessing about for the reason that cash can be held fairly stable through the sale of securities, although such sales weaken the working capital position.

Differences of opinion as to just what action the board of directors will take on the preferred dividend tomorrow continue, some observers maintaining that a $4 annual rate is preferable to a complete omission.

Also there has been a revival of the talk about a further cut in wages, which will be announced following the cut in the preferred dividend, but in well informed quarters it is not thought that the big Steel board will act on that question for some time.

Another Atlantic City Bank Closes; 14 Million Tied Up

Atlantic City, N. J., Jan. 30.—The Atlantic City National bank and its two branches, having approximately 15,000 depositors, failed to open today. It was the second of this resort's banks to close within the last four days. Resources totaled $14,200,740.36. The bank borrowed $1,325,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation up until July of last year and obtained an additional $350,000 in December.

du Pont Report Reveals Rise in Holdings of General Motors

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 30.—Several activities of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours company have shared in the general improvement which some important industries have shown since July, Lammot du Pont, president, declared today in issuing its report for 1932.

The net income for the year was $26,234,778, equivalent after dividends on the debenture stock, to $1.82 a share on 10,867,678 common shares, against $53,190,059, or $4.29 a share on 11,008,512 shares in 1932.

The company, it was revealed acquired in the latter part of 1931 300,000 shares additional of General Motors corporation common stock, which was carried in the report for that year under the caption "marketable securities."

Increase Investment Holdings.

"It has since been decided," the report states, "to round out the company's permanent investment in General Motors corporation to the equivalent of 10,000,000 shares (approximately 23 per cent of the outstanding stock), and for this purpose 18,780 shares out of this special account have been transferred to the permanent investment account at $16.90 a share, the same value at which the other stock in the permanent investment account is carried. At Dec. 31, 1932, the remaining 281,220 shares are included at cost."

The 10,000,000 shares carried as a permanent investment are equal to approximately nine-tenths of a share of General Motors corporation stock for each share of Du Pont common stock.

The company's dollar volume of business in 1932 was about 27 per cent less than in 1931. The reduction in tonnage accounted for 21 per cent of this decline, while about 6 per cent was caused by the cut in selling prices.

The company's current assets at the end of 1932 were $107,325,753, and current liabilities $10,630,857. This compares with current assets of $121,928,313 at the end of 1931, and current liabilities of $9,455,003. Total assets were $595,486,070, against $620,540,020 at the end of 1931. The surplus was $178,717,373, against $198,933,044.

Hits Heavy Taxes.

In summarizing the outlook for business, Mr. Du Pont said:

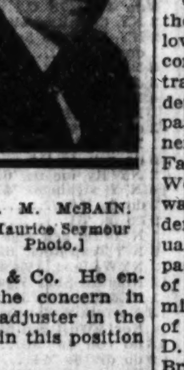

"The downward trend of industrial activity of the preceding two years was continued during the first half of 1932. Since then in some important branches of industry there has been a noticeable improvement, which has continued to the present time with only seasonal changes. Several of your company's activities have participated in this improvement.

"The success of business will be secure when confidence fully returns. Confidence cannot return until the fears arising from the threat of unwise and disturbing legislative projects are allayed.

"Most important of all steps in the restoration of confidence is the further drastic curtailment of public expenditures and a lowering of the tax burden. Unless the immediate and substantial reduction of federal, state, and municipal expenditures is effected any real business recovery will be greatly retarded."

SUGAR INDUSTRY AT LOW LEVELS, BUT IS HOPEFUL

Natural Forces Working for Improvement.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

That the situation in the sugar market may not be as bad as the present preponderantly bearish sentiment suggests is the opinion of some close observers of the situation. Prices of this essential world commodity are now quoted at abnormally low prices but above the low prices established last year. A combination of forces is at work which may bring prices and production costs into a more normal relationship, statisticians assert.

Production this year, according to reliable estimates, will fall below consumption for the first time in several years. The situation is somewhat akin to that existing in wheat. The small price yield to the grower is acting as an automatic curb on production. This is particularly true of Cuban production, which must overcome the 2 per cent import tax. Cuban sugar competes in this country with domestic and Philippine sugar, which is tax free. The Cuban crop is the balance in the market which tips prices up or down.

Banks Wary of Sugar.

The American banking interests which ordinarily finance the Cuban crop are wary of financing producers at present prices. The Cuban producers who buy their cane from native farmers normally begin their grinding season Feb. 1. The Cuban mills which depend on financing from the American bankers are expected to get little assistance this year.

The reason for this may be seen when it is considered that the expense of transporting 100 pounds of raw sugar from the Cuban mill to the New York warehouse is approximately 44 cents. Spot raw sugar is currently selling in New York between 67 and 70 cents a hundred pounds. This leaves approximately 24 cents which must take care of the cost of the cane, the cost of operating the mill, interest on capital involved, and depreciation. These figures are compiled by Lamborn, Hutchins & Co., leading sugar commission house.

With such a small margin from which to squeeze a profit, the Cuban mills are finding it difficult to obtain capital.

Output Off 2,400,000 Tons.

World production will be diminished this year by approximately 2,400,000 tons, according to present indications, Lamborn, Hutchins & Co. estimates.

This will eat further into the world's surplus stocks, which are today approximately 12,000,000. This surplus is about 3,500,000 tons more than normal, the house says. Considering the forces now at work the world surplus will probably be reduced to 10,000,000 tons this year, the firm believes.

Another factor which enters the outlook for the sugar is the possibility of inflation, either psychological or actual. At the present time the big buyers in this country, the chain store organizations and the refiners, are keeping their stocks at minimum. Prospects of inflation may bring a real buying movement, observers believe.

FIRE INSURANCE PREMIUMS PAID DECLINE 38 PCT.

Reduction in Buildings' Value Causes ½ of Drop

Before and after depression figures on the premium income of fire insurance companies doing business in Cook county, as revealed yesterday by Jay Glidden, president of the board of Chicago Fire Underwriters, and others show an approximate decrease of 38 per cent in the last three years.

The average total fire insurance premium income in Cook county during the depression period, according to Mr. Glidden, has been about $20,000,000 a year, as compared with an average of $32,250,000 before the decline set in. The difference in dollars is $12,250,000 a year. These figures include fire insurance premiums on buildings, contents and personal property.

Building Values Off.

Reasons for the decrease, according to the underwriters, are not hard to find. Foremost is the decline in building valuations, which the insurance men estimate accounts for about 20 per cent of the 38 per cent reduction in insurance premiums. Owners and receivers of properties have carefully revised their own valuations in the last year or so and have reduced the amount of insurance carried accordingly.

In some few cases, where the owners have been so hard pressed for cash that abnormal sacrifices were necessary, insurance has been dropped entirely. This has been far from the rule, however, and because most buildings are mortgaged and the mortgage holders demand adequate insurance protection, the loss of premiums from this cause has not been great, the insurance men said.

Fewer Small Businesses.

Another cause for dwindling insurance premiums has been the large number of small businesses, which normally carried fire insurance or stocks of merchandise, have disappeared. Also, many stores have found it expedient to reduce the amount of insurance carried on merchandise, in many cases because values have diminished with falling commodity prices.

The large number of buildings in receivership in Chicago has affected the premium income of the underwriters only slightly if at all, they said. In the great majority of cases, receivers have attended to adequate insurance protection of the properties as a matter of first importance. In accordance with customary procedure, however, receivers do not carry long term policies on the properties in their care, but take out insurance for one year.

R. J. Reynolds Tobacco.

How do you consider Reynolds Tobacco?—T. M. J.

R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company's two principal products are Camel cigarets and Prince Albert smoking tobacco. These two contribute about 80 per cent of total earnings.

Earnings increased steadily from 1920 through 1931. Net for 1932 was $33,675,000, or $3.37 per share of common and class B common, against $36,397,000, or $3.64 per share of common and class B, for 1931. During 1932 $4,000,000 of the annual advertising appropriation was not spent. The sum was, however, charged against income. Had it not been deducted the company would have reported record net income of $37,675,000, or $3.76 a share.

Net for 1930 was $34,257,000, against $32,211,000 for 1929, $30,173,000 for 1928, and $29,081,000 for 1927.

Current assets on Dec. 31, 1932, were $144,774,000 and current liabilities were $12,162,000. Cash and United States government securities alone were more than $60,000,000. Working capital was $132,612,000 against $128,242,000 the year before. Investments in its own stock, 585,000 shares carried at $18,209,000, were not listed as current.

The company has no funded debt. There are outstanding 1,000,000 shares of $10 par common and 9,000,000 shares of $10 par class B common. Both classes of stock have paid annual dividends of $3 a share since January 1930.

The company's growth prior to 1931 was due to the general increase in cigaret consumption combined with ability to get its share of new business. In 1931 and in 1932 growth was due more to increase in wholesale prices than to increased use of cigarets, as consumption then showed its first indications of reversing the upward trend evidenced for many years.

This reversal of trend was partly due to reduced purchasing power, which was instrumental in causing some smokers to turn to cheaper forms of tobacco, such as pipe tobacco and homemade cigarets. A more serious factor entered the picture in the summer of 1932. Continued low prices of tobacco fostered the introduction of the 10 cent package of cigarets. They were sold primarily on the basis of price—there was little expense of distribution. To meet this competition Reynolds, together with American Tobacco, Liggett & Myers, and Lorillard cut wholesale prices to $6 a thousand from $6.85.

Future growth rests primarily on three factors—general trend of cigaret consumption, trend away from the 10 cent brands, and ability to maintain the position of Camel cigarets against its three major competitors.

The common and the class B common are high grade.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 30.—Deposits in mutual savings banks in the United States amounted on Jan. 1 to $9,970,947,424, a decline of $59,066,961, or slightly more than one-half of 1 per cent, from the beginning of 1932, according to the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks.

This slight recession, the association says, shows that savings deposits have been well maintained in the face of contrary movements of virtually every other business index.

Total resources of the mutual savings banks fell $26,666,741 last year to $11,180,207,996 as of Jan. 1, while the combined surplus account of the savings banks increased $18,859,046 to a total of $1,142,113,019.

The number of depositors in savings banks fell 91,205 in the year to 13,268,466, with a slight rise in the size of the average account from $750.77 on Jan. 1, 1932, to $751.48 on Dec. 31 last. The highest average on record was $753.56, estimated on July 1, 1931.

"Hardly any other result of 1932 shows so clearly the strength of public resistance to the difficulties of the times," said Wilson G. Wing, president of the association, in making public the record for the year. He continued:

"It is satisfying indeed to know that such a large number of people have had to draw upon their reserves for only slightly more than ½ per cent in a critical year."

FOUR WAYS OPEN TO CURB PADDING ON BIDS BY BANKS

Mills May Pass Action to Successor.

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—Secretary of the Treasury Mills' sharp warning to banks to stop padding their bids on government security issues may never materialize into any concrete restrictions.

Before the next refinancing issue is floated on March 15, the date when 660 million dollars in certificates mature, Mills and the present treasury staff will be out of office, and the incoming administration may not consider the over-subscriptions serious. Mills may plan the March 15 issue before he leaves, but it will be concluded under the next secretary.

A Friendly Warning.

When the 250 million dollars of five year notes offered for Feb. 1 were over-subscribed 31 times in a single day, Mills told the banks that both in their own interest and in the interest of the treasury he was considering means of curbing the padding of subscriptions. This statement is now regarded as nothing more than a friendly warning from the retiring secretary.

Four methods are open to the treasury if it decides to check padding in which banks have indulged because of the treasury's practice of not filling any bid on an over-subscribed issue in full but of allocating the issue on a percentage basis. Banks padded their subscriptions in the hope that the percentage they were allowed would meet their actual needs.

The most expeditious and easy method for dealing with the padding would be to announce that the issue would be allocated by drawing lots. Faced with prospect of having an enormously padded subscription drawn out and allocated in full, subscribers would not blow up their bids.

Plan for Quotas.

Another method would be to set up quotas for each of the federal reserve banks through which the bids come to the treasury. A third method would be to combine the first and the second setting certain small quotas for each federal reserve bank and selling the remainder of the issue by drawing lots.

Still a fourth method, but one which is not popular, would be to call for bids on notes and certificates and sell the issue to the highest bidders. Treasury bills, the shortest term paper offered by the government, are now floated on this basis, and their subscriptions seldom amount to more than three or four times the issue.

New York, Jan. 30.—Foreign bonds, particularly Germans, were upset today by news of the appointment of Adolph Hitler as German chancellor. Losses up to three points were suffered by German issues.

Better support came into the German list around noon, after foreign selling had cut into the gains shown in reich bonds during recent week. The entire foreign list, however, was unsettled by Hitler's ascension, and profit taking was general in many European and South American issues.

High Grade Rails Rise.

High grade railroad bonds advanced from fractions to more than a point, partly in reflection of the highly favorable earnings statements for December now coming to hand. Leading the group were issues of Atchison, which reported net operating income of $1,224,270 for December, compared with $944,960 during December, 1931. Chesapeake and Ohio 4½s, issues of Pennsylvania, and Union Pacific and others also gained.

United States government securities remained steady today, but dullness indicated little disposition on the part of buyers to follow up the advance at present.

Other Foreigns Weak.

Affected by the selling in Germans were issues of Australia and its component states, and miscellaneous foreigns. Bonds of the Canadian Railway systems were lower.

Utilities and industrials tended lower, with industrial conditions remaining much the same. Motion picture liens were under slight pressure, reflecting receivership of leading companies in the field.

Call Light Group Meeting to Act on DissolutionFeg.15

Members of the National Electric Light association have been summoned to meet Feb. 15 in New York to act on the national committee's recommendation that the organization be dissolved at once. When the Edison Electric institute was recently founded as a successor to the association, it was understood that dissolution was not to be effected until after the annual convention scheduled to meet June 5 to 8 in Chicago.

FARM AID BILLS ASSAILED, SO ONE MORE APPEARS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—Farm relief legislation in this congress has taken on today some of the indestructible characteristics of those moving targets in a shooting gallery. Secretary of the Treasury Mills and a Chicago packer knocked over two of the pending bills today only to have still another come along, bobbing and upright, under the sponsorship of Senator Henrik Shipstead, the Minnesota Farmer-Laborite.

It was at the Frazier farm mortgage measure that Mr. Mills directed his aim. The Frazier bill would have the federal land banks refinance farm mortgages at 3 per cent, granting loans up to 80 per cent of assessed value, with funds to be provided out of the sale of bonds bearing 1½ per cent interest.

Would Wreck Reserve.

Since no one else would buy such unattractive bonds, said Mr. Mills, they would have to be taken over by the federal reserve board, according to the bill, and notes issued against them. Since nearly every farmer would want to get in on the plan some nine billion dollars worth of bonds would have to be issued, or approximately twice the amount of gold now in the United States.

"The adoption of the proposed legislation," said Mr. Mills in a letter to Senator Charles L. McNary [Rep., Ore.], senate agricultural committee chairman, "would be ruinous to the federal land bank system and the federal reserve system, and would imperil the monetary standards of the country."

Swift Attacks Allotment.

It was at the domestic allotment plan that Gustavus F. Swift of Chicago, as representative of the Institute of American Meat Packers, fired a magazineful of arguments. He did not want the hog farmers "relieved" by any such legislation.

Pork being a perishable commodity, Mr. Swift explained to Senator McNary's committee, it must be sold at what the public will readily pay. Higher prices, brought by the allotment bill, would mean less pork sold in competition with other foods, less hogs bought, and the cash market for hogs destroyed.

"The important thing," said Senator Kendrick [Dem., Wyo.], a cattle rancher at home, "is to have an outlet for one's product. Be prices high or low, fixed charges go on. The live stock producer must sell regardless of price."

And that, said Mr. Swift, was just what the hog raiser would not be able to do very shortly after the allotment bill was passed. He saw no solution for the problem of low farm prices except the restoration of the consumers' buying power.

Sees Injury to Farmer.

Neither did F. S. Snyder, Boston packer and chamber of commerce president.

"I can think of no more serious damage to the American farmer than to see this bill passed," he said, and advised a state and local coöperation program to get farmers to cut production without being induced or forced to do so by the government.

W. R. Ronald, editor of the Mitchell [S. D.] Evening Republican, being one of the five men who originated the allotment scheme, was naturally all for it. He suggested, however that though the general principles were simple, the details were complex and he rather left those to congress.

Then came Senator Shipstead's bill into the senate, very much like the Frazier bill, except that it would supply the farmer with mortgage credit at 3½ per cent and would consolidate all the farm credit agencies of the government into a new bureau in the department of agriculture.

BRITAIN STRIKES BLOW AT AMERICAN BRANCH FACTORIES IN CANADA

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Jan. 30.—United States manufacturers who apply minor finishing touches to their goods in Canada, then send them to Great Britain duty free as "empire goods" will lose that privilege under an order issued by the board of trade tonight.

"Certain classes of empire goods imported into Britain," the order says, "in order to qualify for the imperial preferences agreed upon at Ottawa, must contain in the future a minimum of 50 per cent of empire material and labor instead of 25 per cent as at present."

The regulation will go into effect April 1. The list of goods affected is being withheld.

Hits Big U. S. Investments.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—[Special.]—The order of the British board of trade raising the empire content on goods exported from Canada to the United Kingdom from 25 to 50 per cent strikes a blow at the more than 1,000 American branch plants in Canada, representing about $1,500,000,000.

CHASE NATIONAL TO SELL STOCKS INSULL PLEDGED

New York, Jan. 30.—[Special.]—The Chase National bank today is announcing the sale at an auction to be held in New York on Feb. 7 of practically all the collateral securing its loans to the National Electric Power company, principal eastern holding unit of the Insull Middle West Utilities system.

The loans, aggregating $5,485,051 principal amount, have been in default since the company went into receivership on June 30, 1932.

In taking this action, the Chase National bank is following similar measures taken by the Central Hanover Bank and Trust company on Dec. 29, 1932, with respect to its advances of $5,789,917 to the National Public Service corporation, which was National Electric Power's largest subsidiary. The New York Trust company, the Manufacturers Trust company, and the Chemical Bank and Trust company, also large lenders of funds to the same group, have not yet announced their plans with respect to the collateral they hold.

Officials of the Chase bank said they had put off the sale of their collateral as long as possible in order to coöperate to the fullest extent with the security holders and other creditors.

SUPPLY OF HOGS LARGE; PRICES 10 CENTS LOWER

Cattle Market Declines; Trading Is Dull.

Hogs suffered a rather severe setback yesterday. Supplies overran expectations and prices melted rapidly after hovering around steady for a short time at the opening. Uneven losses of 5@20c were cited in comparing with Saturday, with the close 20@30c lower than the best time last Friday. The general average for the day lowered 10c more to $3.20, which was 20c lower than last Friday. Top selected light declined to $3.40, comparing with a high of $3.65 Friday, the highest spot since November.

After prices had worked down 10@15c large local houses were more willing buyers, Armour, Swift, and Wilson slaughtering a total of almost 40,000 hogs, including directs and stock purchased on the market. Receipts at the yards were expected to reach 50,000, according to last estimates. Reports from the west indicated a lighter supply on the way for today. Five western markets expect 50,500, against 65,600 last Tuesday.

Cattle Market Sinks.

The cattle market sank to a new Monday low, with trading sluggish at the reduced level of prices. The depreciated condition of the trade was attributed partly to the plainer quality of the supply. The proportion of good grades was smallest for Monday in many weeks. Only a small quota was good enough to sell above $6.00. Yearlings averaging 998 lbs topped the market to Swift at $6.70, with 825 lb steers and heifers at $6.60.

While demand was slack in all divisions of the yards there was a noticeable preference for the heavy beef cattle at the relatively low prices in vogue at the end of last week. The country has evidently decided to hold back the $3.75@4.25 kinds, averaging 1,600@1,900 lbs. Few of these were in the run yesterday. Good to choice 1,300@1,500 lb steers sold largely at $4.40@5.00, some "stick outs" bringing $5.50@5.90 that averaged 1,300@1,450 lbs.

Lambs Weak to Lower.

Lambs found a slow topheavy market waiting yesterday and sold at weak to 25c lower prices after a long dragged out session. Closing sales were as low as any of the day. Packers bought fed westerns of choice quality around $5.75. City butchers paid up to $5.90, while shippers took a few at the $6.00 top. Natives handpicked by yard traders also reached the latter figure. Yearlings of lamb weights sold at $5.25. Aged ewes were scarce and held firm, lightweights going for slaughter up to $3.00.

BUTTER AND EGGS EASY

Butter futures failed to hold an early advance on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, closing ¼c lower. Eggs were unchanged to ⅜c lower. Butter opened firm, with new buying and short covering, as a result of bullish weekly storage information and light receipts. Selling appeared within a short time, however, and the market started drifting lower. The daily four market storage movemnt showed a net inward total of 40,000 lbs, which compared with an outward total last year. Eggs continued under pressure, receipts holding well above those of last year, and the spot market was lower. February fresh firsts withstood the pressure fairly well, covering helping to maintain the price level. Sales: Butter, 88 cars; eggs, 30 cars. Deliveries: Butter, 1 car; eggs, 9 cars. Prices follow:

RECEIVER SUITS FOR PARAMOUNT CONTINUE SPREAD

Difficulties of the Paramount-Publix corporation spread yesterday.

In New York a conference of attorneys in the receivership was postponed until Wednesday at the request of A. J. Schanfarber of Chicago, attorney for a group of bondholders. He asked more time to study the case. There was no objection.

In another New York action a petition for a temporary receiver for twenty-three film productions of the company, filed by Robert S. Levy of Chicago, was granted.

In Hollywood two petitions seeking appointment of ancillary receivers were filed, one by William Beal of New York, owner of a $1,000 gold note and the other by the E. W. Reynolds company of New York, on a claim of $171.81 for merchandise.

In St. Paul the Minnesota Amusement company, subsidiary of Paramount-Publix, controlling 70 theaters was put in receivership.

In Boston a petition for an ancillary receiver for the Massachusetts properties of the company was filed. Hearing was set for Thursday.
